Brian Lane group fights Ponderosa on 'range rights'

by LYNN ASINOF

Residents living on Brian Lane, a small gravel road off Dundee Road, may lose their privacy or one of their entrances as a result if a proposed Ponderosa Steak House is built on Dundee Road.

Bernard Kron, developer of Harmony Village, is seeking rezoning of 2.32 acres between the Wildwood Apartments and the cemetery on Dundee Road. The property, however, includes the land occupied by the northern section of Brian Lane.

Mona and William Olson, 71 Brian Ln., at first objected to the rezoning, saying cars might use their street to exit from the proposed Ponderosa. "Our concern is at times they would exit out Brian Lane," Olson said.

When developers said they could merely block the gravel road, the Olsons objected to losing their access to Dundee Road. Brian Lane also connects with Wolf Road to the east.

"WE HAVE BEEN using this road for 20 years," Mrs. Olson said, noting that the residents have spent considerable money on its upkeep. She noted a state law that says any street used by the public for 15 years is a public highway.

The same statute was successfully used by residents of Haben Lane, located off McHenry Road, when Hollywood Builders tried to close their private road last year.

As in the Haben Lane case, developers said they would try to work out the problem with the Brian Lane residents. The zoning board, however, noted that the solution might mean some loss of privacy for people living on Brian Ln., since cars from the steak house might not be stopped from exiting onto that street.

BRIAN LANE RESIDENTS, however, might have nothing to worry about since there is some question about the legal description for the Ponderosa property. Documents submitted to the zoning board raised questions as to whether the land has been subdivided and whether it is part of the Wildwood Apartment complex.

Village Atty. Paul Hamer said if the land is part of the apartments, the steak house could not be permitted since the acreage would have been used to compute the apartment's density.

Peter Manatis, owner of the Spot Snack Shop, also objected to the requested zoning. "As a businessman and a restaurant man, I don't think this town needs any more restaurants. I think this board ought to draw the line," he said.

As proposed to the zoning board, Ponderosa would lease the land from Kron on a 20-year lease. Kron, contract purchaser of the property, would maintain ownership of the site.

THE ZONING BOARD members said they were concerned about the steak house's closeness to the apartments and residential areas. Neil Brant, zoning board member, asked if Ponderosa could possibly reduce the odor of cooking steaks which might bother nearby residents.

Members of the zoning board also asked Ponderosa representatives to consider requesting a different zoning classification, noting that the proposed B-4 business zoning would allow several undesirable uses such as gas stations. The matter was continued to May 28 so that the developers could research the legal descriptions of the property, the zoning codes and the Brian Lane problem.

Village hall now open evenings

Beginning May 1, the Wheeling Village Hall will be open Wednesday nights from 6 to 8 p.m.

The new hours replace the Saturday business schedule, which will be discontinued until September. The additional office time will allow residents to conduct their village business after the normal working day.

THE OLD CHURCH in Chamber of Commerce Park appropriately housed Tuesday's discussion of a local celebration of the nation's Bicentennial. Twelve community groups were repre-

types of celebration possibilities, and proposed that the village pass an ordinance that would create a special commission.

Bicentennial commission proposed by local groups

A group of civic organizations and village commissions May 6 will present the village board with a sample ordinance creating a special Bicentennial commission.

The sample ordinance was proposed by Patrick Murray, regional coordinator of the Bicentennial Commission of Northern Illinois, at a community meeting Tuesday. The meeting, called by the Wheeling Woman's Club, brought together representatives of 12 community groups to discuss a local celebration of the nation's 200th birthday.

Shirley Koeppen of the Woman's Club said the group favored the establishment of a Bicentennial commission by the village board so that all segments of the community could be involved. The ordinance would create the special commission and outline its duties.

"Really it is entirely up to the board what they intend to do with it beyond this point," Mrs. Koeppen said.

Trustee Al Lang has already spoken in favor of village participation in a local Bicentennial celebration. He asked that the Wheeling Relations Commission serve as liaison between the board and any community activities in this area.

Organizations represented at the meeting include the Lions Club, Jaycees, Jaycee Jills, Historical Society, beautification committee, environmental commission, civil defense, village board, Naval ROTC and the Wheeling Public Library.

College-aid advice to be given parents

An open meeting for parents who want to learn more about financial aid for college-bound students will be conducted at 3:30 p.m., Thursday, May 2, in the guidance department at Stevenson High School in Prairie View.

Russ Corey of the University of Chicago admissions staff and a financial aids expert will discuss how to apply for loans, grants, scholarships and other funds to be used to defray college expenses. The information will apply to any college or university.

Corey also will conduct two other group information sessions at 1 and 2:15 p.m. for students. Parents may also attend these sessions.

Park board seeks ruling on holding closed meet

The Wheeling Park Board is awaiting an opinion from its attorney before determining the format of tonight's meeting.

The board had planned to meet in executive session to discuss personnel for the 1974-75 budget. A new opinion issued by Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott, however, states that closed meetings for personnel can only be called to discuss the hiring and firing of a specific individual. This means that general salary discussion is not allowed at a closed-door meeting.

Park Supt. Dave Phillips said he did not think the new decision would cause any problems, but he said he wanted an opinion from the park attorney before conducting open discussion on the matter.

2 Roosevelt graduates

Two Wheeling residents have graduated from Roosevelt University in Chicago.

Don B. Farrow, 1450 S. Sandpebble Dr., received his bachelor of general studies in January commencement exercises. Panee Weravanish, 1212 Iota Ct., received a master of arts degree.

"I don't think it will cause any problems. We're not trying to hide anything. It's just the way we've always done it," Phillips said. "If it has to be changed, we'll do the right thing."

The board also will review other sections of the 1974-75 budget. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the Heritage Park recreation building, 222 S. Wolf Rd.

This thief thinks BIG...

A three-ton manhole cover was stolen Monday from a Wheeling construction site, police said Wednesday.

The manhole cover, owned by J. S. Adams Co., 1250 Golf Rd., Des Plaines, was taken between noon and 11 p.m. Police did not disclose the whereabouts of the construction site, other than to say it was under a Commonwealth Edison Co. right-of-way.

Will Dundee Road work end by fall?

The rebuilding of Dundee Road between Illinois Routes 83 and 53 was back in full swing Wednesday and state officials predicted the project will be completed by fall. Albert Sifrer, project engineer for the Illinois Division of Highways, said two lanes have been completed between Rte 83 and a point about 300 feet west of Buffalo Grove Road. The two lanes should be finished all the way to Rte 53 by July 15, Sifrer said, with the remaining half of the four-lane road completed by Oct. 1. Delays in the project, which includes the realignment of Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights roads, have prompted criticism by local officials and Dundee Road business owners.

Cop nabbed in Elk Grove theft

A policeman from south suburban Hometown has been arrested by Elk Grove Village police in the Jan. 23 theft of $98,958 worth of television equipment from an Elk Grove industrial plant. Ernest C. Weyhe, 37, of 4614 W. 88th St., is accused of driving away from the GTE Sylvania Plant with a trailer full of television and stereo equipment. The Federal Bureau of Investigation is "looking into" theft, a spokesman said, but has made no charges. Weyhe, who is being held in Cook County Jail, was relieved of duties in his part-time police job, according to Hometown Police Chief Donald Buckley.

League hit on sewage plant

A decision by the Illinois Municipal League to join Des Plaines in its fight against a proposed sewage plant has been condemned by the Elk Grove Village Board. The board passed a resolution Tuesday blasting the league for siding with Des Plaines in its legal battle with the Metropolitan Sanitary District. "I want this board's support to ask the league to take its nose out of this affair," said Trustee Ed Kenna. "As members of the league, Elk Grove Village should have been checked with before the league announced its alliance with Des Plaines."

Lake Briarwood oil spill cleared

A weekend oil spill at Lake Briarwood in Elk Grove Township no longer poses any danger to wildlife. Clean-up crews continued work Wednesday vacuuming oil from Higgins Creek and storm sewers, which had been dammed to keep oil out of the lake. Fuel oil spilled into the sewer and creek when a furnace pump stuck at Boyer-Rosene Moving and Storage Co. Algonquin Road and Clearbrook Drive. State conservation officials inspected the spill Tuesday and reportedly said it no longer posed a danger to fish and ducks at the lake.

Village dislikes restaurant decor

Schaumburg officials who had hoped for a turn-of-the-century motif in the village's Old Town area have learned that the first new business there will be a Taco Bell restaurant. Village trustees said they welcome the Mexican restaurant chain to the village but asked for changes in the shape of doorway and toned down of "garish" special effects. Mayor Robert O. Atcher noted that the standard Taco Bell sign has "a little bit more of a carnival nature than we intended." He suggested a few changes would make the restaurant "not look nearly so out of place."

Rolling Meadows skating dropped

Spring and summer skating programs have been dropped by the Rolling Meadows Park District Sports Complex skating rink because of a lack of interest. Rudy Nelson, facility coordinator, said the district would lose at least $5,000 because of the closing. District officials have been fighting declining interest in the rink almost since the indoor facility first opened in 1971.

FTC accuses talent agency of deception

A Chicago talent agency has been accused by the Federal Trade Commission of misrepresentation in soliciting parents to bring in their children to be placed as models in advertising agencies. Some residents of the Northwest suburbs had recently received letters from the firm, National Talent Associates, which also operates in New York, New Jersey and California.

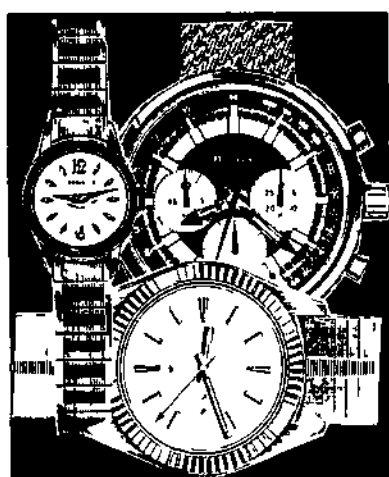

According to the FTC, the firm sells photos and services in connection with the placement of persons in the advertising, modeling and entertainment industries. The FTC accused the firm of misrepresenting their ability to make such placements and using "unethical and high-pressure sales tactics." Named in the complaint were Sanford Storm and Jerome P. Ashfield, controlling officers of the firm, a theatrical agency in New York, and an officer of that agency.

THE FTC ALLEGED that the firm had not, in most cases, received information indicating that a child had the necessary qualifications, but rather obtained names from commercial mailing lists and other sources.

The FTC charged that the firm has no special expertise for selecting persons qualified for these fields, and that children placed under contracts "have little or no chance for obtaining paid employment as models, actors, or entertainers."

While the firm's salesmen allegedly insist that parents sign and pay for the contract immediately, 98 or 99 out of 100 children are ultimately rejected by the New York theatrical agency named in the complaint, the FTC said.

The FTC's proposed order would halt the challenged practices, provide customers a three-day cooling-off period, within which to cancel the contract with full refund rights, and would require the firm to fully disclose employment and earning prospects.

The state

OK amendment to end cumulative voting

Rushing to meet a May 5 deadline, the Illinois House acted yesterday on four proposed amendments to the state constitution. Two survived, including one to eliminate Illinois' unique cumulative voting system. The amendment would wipe out the method under which a voter in House races has three votes he can give to one candidate, split between two, or give one vote to each of three.

Protest GE's part in B1 bomber program

Demonstrators, including a former B52 pilot discharged for refusing to bomb Cambodia, marched in front of the Prudential Building in Chicago yesterday where General Electric was holding a shareholders' meeting. The march was in protest to GE's participation in the B1 bomber program. The stockholders were urged by the marchers to restrict GE's building of the jet engines.

Seek end of 'nightmare' debt collectors

Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott and Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan yesterday announced they have prepared legislation to end "nightmare" tactics of some debt collection firms. The bill would prohibit harassment, fraudulent guises by debt collectors to induce fear, and excess charges heaped upon people in debt, but pocketed by the collectors. Scott also said he has expanded to 50 states, his lawsuit to force the release of $150 million in anti-pollution funds now frozen by the federal government.

Most policyholders covered in car pools

State Insurance Director Fred Mauck said yesterday 99 per cent of Illinois auto insurance firms have agreed that policyholders will remain fully covered if they take part in car pools. Mauck also said 169 companies are offering rate cuts to those who participate in car pooling.

Patty calls father 'pig' in SLA tape

In another SLA tape yesterday, Patricia Hearst called her father "pig Hearst," and her fiancé a "sexist, racist pig," and said it was ridiculous to think she was brainwashed into joining her Symbionese Liberation Army captors in a bank robbery April 15. Her father, issued a statement saying the family still believes she was brainwashed by her kidnapers.

Nothing now banned in Boston

Everything faintly smacking of prurience used to be banned in Boston. Now nothing is. Massachusetts' highest court has struck down the state's anti-obscenity law on grounds it is so ambiguous in light of U.S. Supreme Court rulings that it is unworkable. The decision left Massachusetts with no laws or legal restraints against obscenity.

Buzhardt: Moorer knew documents stolen

Former Pentagon counsel J. Fred Buzhardt concluded after investigating alleged military spying at the White House in 1971 that Adm. Thomas Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, knew he was getting stolen documents and told an "improbable" cover story. Buzhardt, whose testimony was published by the Senate Armed Services Committee, said it was impossible to prosecute anyone involved because of the potential for disclosure of other military and political secrets.

Charge two with torture killings

Two airmen, Dale Pierre of Trinidad, West Indies, and William Andrews of Jonesboro, La., believed to have been crazed by drugs, were charged with first-degree murder yesterday in the two hour torture slaying of three persons, the wounding of two others and the rape of one of the victims. The pair are being held without bail in the Ogden, Utah county jail.

Israeli raid condemned by U.N.

The U.N. Security Council Wednesday night condemned Israel's April 13 raid into Lebanon and all "acts of violence," without mentioning the Arab guerrilla attack on an Israeli village which 18 persons were killed. Israel walked out of the council in protest before the vote was taken. The U.S. voted for the resolution after unsuccessfully attempting to amend it.

Army rangers reach Pan Am dead

Indonesian army rangers in Bali scaled a sheer mountain-side yesterday and located 43 burned and dismembered bodies of the 107 persons killed when a Pan American jetliner crashed and burst into flames Monday. It was reported the remains of the other 64 persons lay in gullies and ravines accessible only by rope climbers. It was estimated it would be five days before the remains could be recovered.

Ulster Protestants discuss majority rule

Northern Ireland's militant Protestant groups met yesterday to discuss adopting common political policies aimed at returning the violence-torn province to majority rule. In England, meanwhile, British Defense Minister Roy Mason said pressure was growing for the withdrawal of British troops from Ulster. The 15,000 British troops were initially sent to Northern Ireland four years ago to protect the Roman Catholic Community from Protestant violence.

Stocks battered again

Stocks were battered for the second consecutive session on the New York Stock Exchange as inflation-recession worries continued. Trading was the heaviest in six weeks. The Dow Jones average sagged 13.61 to 832.37, adding to the previous day's loss of 12.59 points. Declines outnumbered advances as losses were general throughout the list. In the busiest trading since March 14, volume totaled 16,010,000 shares, compared with 14,110,000 shares Tuesday.

Nixon asks $5.1 billion foreign aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon Wednesday asked Congress to approve a $5.1 billion foreign aid package that includes $457.5 million for Egypt and Jordan and $350 million for Israel.

The President also asked Congress to authorize an appropriation of $839.8 million for assistance to South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

"The amounts I am requesting for fiscal year 1975 is a minimum essential to support the responsible and constructive American role of international leadership and cooperation, a role it is in our national interest to continue to strengthen," he said.

The aid package for the fiscal year starting July 1 would include $1.5 billion for assistance to international development institutions. The rest is for military and economic aid.

Egypt's allotment of $250 million, virtually the only American aid it will have received since 1967, was earmarked for clearing the Suez Canal, repairing war damage to cities along the waterway and to help restore Egyptian trade.

Nixon also proposed a total of $207.5 million for Jordan and requested congressional approval of a special requirement fund of $100 million for the Middle East to be used as needed for peace-keeping forces, refugees and development projects.

He said the aid for Southeast Asia was vitally needed because South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos "are trying to make the difficult transition from war to peace."

In Cambodia, Communist troops, riding the crest of a string of victories in their dry season offensive, overran a government position five miles from Phnom Penh Wednesday, killing 80 Cambodian soldiers and forcing 72 others to swim to safety.

In South Vietnam, Saigon government helicopter gunships and artillery pushed a battered Communist battalion back toward its jungle sanctuary 35 miles northwest of Saigon. A South Vietnamese officer said his troops had killed 100 Communist soldiers including several women on front-line duty.

In the Mideast, Israeli and Syrian fighter-bombers Wednesday flew raids along the Golan Heights where tanks and artillery dueling for the 44th consecutive day. An official Syrian newspaper warned the fighting could escalate into the fifth Middle East war.

SOUTH VIETNAMESE troopers view a captured Viet Cong flag and captured weapons following a battle near Trang Ban, South Vietnam. An estimated 100 Communist soldiers and "several women," were killed.

Simon rules out tax cut; cost of food leaps again

From Herald news services

Treasury secretary-designate William E. Simon ruled out a tax cut as an inflation-fighter Wednesday, as the government reported more evidence of how bad it is and made an effort to slow it down.

Ex-energy czar Simon, appearing before the Senate Finance Committee which is considering his nomination, said "a tax cut at this time would be highly inflationary," but said he would make as his top priority "getting the inflation dragon back in the cage."

Several prominent Senate Democrats have been pushing for a tax cut, and the Senate is expected to pass such a measure perhaps as early as next week as a rider to a minor tariff bill.

In his testimony, Simon described himself as a "financial conservative," and generally followed the administration economic line, including the opposition to a tax cut. He said his major efforts in controlling inflation would be directed toward increasing the supply of food, fuel and other scarce goods.

As he testified, the Agriculture department reported another sharp jump in the price of a typical family food market basket — up $15 in March to an annual rate of a record $1.747.

The figures showed that the farmer's share actually dropped by $33, but the middleman's cut — for processing, handling and selling — jumped $43. Almost $1,000 of the annual cost goes to the middleman.

In a bid to slow down bank loan demand and hold down inflation, the Federal Reserve Board and major commercial banks raised interest rates sharply.

Seven of the 12 Federal Reserve banks raised the discount rate — the interest rate member banks must pay for money they borrow and relend — from 7½ to 8 per cent. At the same time, several more commercial banks joined the parade to the all-time record of 10½ per cent the interest rate on prime business loans to larger customers.

In related action:

• Senate Democrats accused the government of abandoning the fight against inflation, and called for standby authority to continue wage-price controls.

• Cost of Living Council director John Dunlop conceded inflation "ain't going away," and said he expected another bulge in prices after April 30.

Recommendation due today

May drop 30 impeach points

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee's lawyers have recommended dropping as many as 30 of the 56 potential impeachment charges against President Nixon, including questionable financing of his California and Florida homes, it was learned Wednesday.

John M. Doar, the committee's chief impeachment counsel, and Alfred Jenner, his Republican counterpart, will make their recommendation this morning when the committee meets in public session to hear the results of its legal staff's preliminary investigation.

According to the lawyers' draft proposals al which Jenner read to GOP committee members Wednesday, he and Doar would continue to investigate a large number of other allegations against the President, notably obstruction of justice in handling of the Watergate cover-up. The recommended narrowing of impeachment charges would leave only allegations of criminal action and drop all non-criminal items.

It was also disclosed by another Republican source that the committee's second request for additional White House materials, centering chiefly on the ITT and milk fund cases, includes 79 tapes covering more than 46 hours of conversation.

Meanwhile, assistant chief counsel Terry W. Lenzner of the Senate Watergate committee said "sensitive case reports" on income tax matters were transmitted regularly to former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman and sometimes to President Nixon.

Lenzner also said the Internal Revenue Service had damaged the committee's work "irreparably" by refusing to turn over — despite Senate action authorizing it — IRS case reports the panel is seeking.

EPA orders ban on sale of aerosol pesticides

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency Wednesday issued a rare emergency order to halt the sale of thousands of cans of pesticide sprays containing vinyl chloride — a chemical linked to a rare form of liver cancer.

The order, which takes effect immediately, covers 28 aerosol products intended for use in the home, hospitals, places where food is handled or other enclosed areas. Outdoor sprays are not affected, but the EPA said manufacturers are recalling them anyway.

An estimated 19,000 cans covered by the ban are believed to be on the market, and an unknown number of others are likely to be in the hands of consumers.

The industry already was in the process of recalling the sprays, but EPA administrator Russell E. Train said the process was not moving fast enough.

The action was believed to be the first of its kind taken under the 1972 Federal Pesticide Law which gives the agency power to issue an emergency order.

Bud 'Who's on first' Abbott dead at 75

• Bud Abbott, the thin half of one of America's best-known and most-beloved comedy teams, died Wednesday of cancer at age 75 in Hollywood. Teaming with fellow burlesque house comic Lou Costello in 1926, the two became the unparalleled team of the 1940s, with their most famous routine, "Who's on first?", putting into the lexicon the catchphrase for miscommunication. But their zany brand of comedy, featured in more than 50 movies, faded until the team broke up in 1957. For Abbott, who once boasted of making $400,000 a year, it was all downhill after 1959. Costello died, a government tax action left him living on Social Security, and — beginning in 1965 — he suffered a series of strokes that left him in ill health until the end.

• Other deaths: Austrian President Franz Jonas, a loyal Socialist who worked his way up through party ranks to the presidency in 1965, of stomach cancer at age 74 in Vienna. Stephen A. Mitchell, Democratic national chairman from 1962 to 1965, campaign chairman for Adlai Stevenson's run for the presidency in 1960 and Eugene McCarthy's convention bid in 1968, and himself an unsuccessful candidate for Illinois governor in 1980, at age 71 after a long illness in Chicago. F. Dudley Vornor, a song-writer and music teacher who in 1911 — as a sophomore at Albion (Mich.) College — penned the music to the ageless, "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi," at age 81 in Detroit. Lili, one of only two giant Pandas in Europe after presentation to the French people by the Peking government last year, of undisclosed causes at Vincennes Zoo, Paris.

• The presidency: Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, says it still appeals to him, but doesn't expect to make another bid and considers Sen. Edward Kennedy the "obvious front-runner" for the party nomination in 1976. Kennedy continued his Soviet tour with another warm response on a campaign-type tour through Leningrad.

Blair anti-RTA plans called 'over-reaching'

by STEVE FORSYTH
House Speaker W. Robert Blair, who sat out the fight by suburban legislators against the March 19 RTA referendum, is now trying to out oppose the original opponents. State Rep. Eugene Schlickman said Wednesday.

Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, was one of the leaders of the known RTA committee which sought defeat of the March 19 referendum because legislative leaders refused to allow key amendments to the RTA bill.

Arlington Heights Mayor Jack Walsh, who opposed the referendum and has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the RTA board, told The Herald, "This has got to be the most political move Blair has to appear totally inept as a political leader."

Walsh said he totally disagrees with Blair's proposal to allow counties to withdraw from the RTA although some of the other proposed amendments are the same ones Walsh and other leaders worked for before the referendum.

OTHER DETAILS of Blair's proposals include a provision that 100 per cent of taxes raised in a county for the RTA be spent within that county. This is overkill and might not allow any flexibility in the future, Walsh said.

State Rep. Cal Skinner, R-Crestview, who introduced amendments that would require that two-thirds of such tax money be spent within each county. Schlickman and Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Chicago, Wednesday introduced legislation that provides:

- Elimination of the requirement that RTA enter into purchase of service agreements with the railroads to put them on an even footing with the buses.
- Authority to create a suburban transit corporation instead of a suburban rail corporation so buses could be included.
- A limit of 7 per cent on interest rates for general obligation bonds (instead of the present 9 per cent) and a requirement that the bonds be sold publicly.
- Authority for the General Assembly to change powers and duties of the board (a point generally questioned in the existing bill).
- A limit of two years instead of one, to file legal claims against the RTA.

Schlickman said other bills that should

ILLINOIS HOUSE speaker, W. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest, has a side comment for Gov. Daniel Walker as legislative leaders met with the state's chief executive to examine new developments in trying to create a Regional Transportation Authority for the Chicago area.

he endorsed include those that would better define the parking tax, require transportation planning consistent with regional planning and prohibit arbitrary land acquisition and use of municipal streets.

With these amendments the RTA would attract public interest and confidence, Schlickman said. To do less or more would be self-defeating.

Specific proposals by Blair, R-Park Forest, to change the RTA and to provide transportation grants to counties outside the RTA, Schlickman said. They are:

- He now states he is going to listen to the people. He is forgetting, apparently, that when the RTA was considered last fall that the people speaking through their representatives vainly sought amendments which he summarily dismissed. Why wasn't he listening then?

SCHLICKMAN SAID there is presently not enough support to pass Blair's proposals in the House or Senate despite Blair's appeal to the downstate legislators through his promise of transportation grants. A high level meeting with Gov. Daniel Walker Wednesday morning was political and depressing, just gamesmanship, Schlickman said.

Walker emerged from that meeting

Walker taking no position on RTA amendments

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Gov. Daniel Walker said Wednesday he is not going to take a position on a series of amendments which could kill or cripple the newly created Chicago-area Regional Transportation Authority.

"As the governor of this state," Walker told a meeting of legislative leaders in his office, "I'm not taking a position here. I'm not going to be cast in the position, by anyone present, of one who will stand up and argue and reargue the RTA."

Walker called the meeting, he said, to determine whether the leaders plan to support RTA amendments during this legislative session.

THE MAJOR reason for Walker's concern, however, is a plan submitted by House Speaker W. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest, which would allow any of the six RTA counties to leave the authority. Passing of that measure, critics charge, would mean a quick death for the RTA.

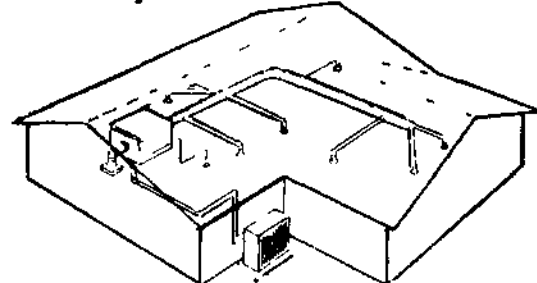

Walker asked each of the leaders in turn whether he plans to support such an amendment.

Senate Pres. William Harris, R-Pontiac, the man whose support Blair needs the most, said he had come to the meeting "principally to listen. I've been feeling out the members on the Republican side of the aisle but we have no definitive position on this issue."

The Democratic leaders of each house — Sen. Cecil Patter of Chicago and Rep. Clyde Choate of Anna — indicated generally that they would look with disfavor on any proposal which would in Walker's words, "dismantle the RTA." Neither, however, said flatly that he would oppose all attempts to amend the RTA law.

IT'S STILL TWO LANES but at least it's now for drivers on the unfinished portion of Dundee Road between Elmhurst and Buffalo Grove roads. State officials hope to have traffic riding on new pavement between the entire widening project, Elmhurst Road to Ill. Rte. 53, by June 15.

Dundee Rd. work under way again

by JOE FRANZ

Construction of Dundee Road was in full swing Wednesday and state officials said if the nice weather hangs on, construction should be completed by fall.

Albert Sifer, project engineer for the Illinois Division of Highways, said workers have finished tearing out the old westbound pavement and have begun final grading. After grading is completed, the sub-base will be installed, followed by paving.

The project consists of widening the road to four lanes between Elmhurst Road and Ill. Rte. 53 through Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights.

BEFORE CONSTRUCTION was shut down for the winter, workmen have paved two lanes between Elmhurst Road west about 300 feet past Buffalo Grove Road.

Sifer said the two lanes should be completed to Rte. 53 by June 15. At that time, traffic will shift completely from the two battered lanes that now exist to the new pavement. State officials have said the new pavement will make traveling on the road much safer.

Sifer also said the realignments of Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove roads will be connected to Dundee Road once that initial two-lane job is finished.

Both roads were realigned last summer to meet extensions north of Dundee Road. Officials said the realignments will eliminate congestion and may possibly reduce accidents around Dundee Road.

The realignments originally were not going to be hooked up until the entire project was finished, but Buffalo Grove officials requested the work be done when two lanes are finished.

IN ADDITION TO the realignments, Sifer said the 900-foot portion of Arlington Heights Road north of Dundee will be repaired after June 15. The road has been in a state of desrepair for more than a year now, and residents have complained about the hazardous driving conditions and damage sustained by their cars.

Sifer said completion of all four lanes on Dundee Road is scheduled for Oct. 1. The project, he said, is the number one road priority in the northern region of Illinois.

State officials and Greco Contractors, the firm doing the work, have been severely criticized by residents, merchants and village officials because construction was not completed last year. Residents have complained that the road is dangerous and an inconvenience and merchants claim its condition has hurt business.

Under the state contract, Greco has about 100 working days to complete the project before a fine is assessed against them, Sifer said. Working days are defined as days when weather and other factors will permit construction.

"IF YOU COUNT their working days, they probably would have until clear through December to complete the project," Sifer said. "But we're going to push them as hard as we can so they finish way ahead of time."

Sifer said progress on the road will depend to a large extent on the weather and the availability of construction material. Last year, the state blamed rainy weather and a shortage of cement for the delays in construction.

At present, Sifer said, it looks like there will be enough cement, but he warned that the situation could become "tight" later in the year. "As far as the weather goes, if we get a lot of rain, like we did last fall, we could be in real trouble," he said.

As construction progresses, Sifer said, the state will be closing several streets where they intersect Dundee Road. The roads will be closed for several days to allow the pavement to dry, he said. Residents will be informed of the closings and be given suggested detours several days in advance, he said.

Cool aides

'Assistant teachers' help school to upgrade education

by JILL BETTNER

Aid: a shorter word for help. Help for overcrowded classrooms, overworked teachers and students who need individualized instruction at Field School in Dist. 21.

In this case, relief for the problems accompanying an enrollment of more than 600 and still climbing at the Wheeling school appears to have been found in 14 shapes and sizes of teacher aides.

The school on St. Armand Lane in Wheeling serves an area that includes two expanding developments, Cedar Run and Whippletree Village, both north of Old McHenry Road.

Principal Bill Kinzer predicts the enrollment at Field, already the second highest of the elementary schools in the district, will go even higher next year.

MOST ELEMENTARY schools in Dist. 21 average two to three aides. Kinzer said by hiring 14 aides at Field last September instead of a lesser number of regular classroom teachers, he has been able to reduce the pupil-teacher ratio at the school from 30 to 1 to about 15 to 1. This means more individual attention for each student, he said.

"The key to the whole program here at Field is the amount of individualization we're able to provide," Kinzer commented. "Look at one teacher with 30 kids who has to plan, grade papers, run off dittos and still teach — it's a real load. Our teachers don't have to do that kind of clerical work."

About half the aides at Field School are fully certified teachers. However, the regular classroom instructors direct all activities, with the aides working under their supervision.

FOR EXAMPLE, Kinzer said a teacher may begin a particular academic unit and then ask an aide to work with small groups of students on exercises or academic games. The aides also grade papers, put up bulletin boards and handle other similar routine duties.

Regular teachers are the only ones who give grades and conduct parent conferences.

"Simply, the aides free the teachers to work directly with kids all day long," Kinzer said. "That's the main reason we like this set-up."

During the past two summers, Field was remodeled to aid in individualizing instruction. Walls were knocked out to create larger classrooms, some of them with folding partitions, to allow for more small group work.

THE LEARNING center, which Kinzer describes as "one of the best-supplied in the district," is also utilized to a great extent in helping children with special academic problems.

A group of about 40 active parent volunteers also provide extra attention to students by working regularly in the motor facilitation program, the learning center and in the classrooms.

Although most schools in the district use team teaching to some degree, at Field School it is implemented in all grades one through six.

Teams consist of two or three teachers, two or three teacher aides and often an intern from Trinity College in Deerfield. Last semester, five interns or seniors in the teacher training program worked at Field and Kinzer is expecting 10 interns next year.

There are about 70 children assigned to each team, receiving instruction at different times, again usually in small groups.

"Whenever I talk about Field School, I always stress individualization because that's our goal," Kinzer said. "We're always looking for ways to individualize and better meet kids' needs."

traffic accidents along McHenry Road. Passolt said he does not think the state is taking into consideration the rapidly changing character of the street. He said people traveling from the north along McHenry Road are not always aware that they are approaching a densely populated area. He said the reduced speed limit would help solve this problem.

"We can't have cars traveling through there at the highest speed allowed in the country," Passolt said. "I have no idea what effect this (letter) will have, but I certainly have to try because I do think it is important."

In reviewing its survey, the state did say that it planned to restudy the McHenry Road area during the summer because of the changing character of the street.

Park district wrapup

Parks director gets $900 raise

Prospect Heights Park Director Ronald Greenberg was given a $900 raise, retroactive to April 1, at Tuesday night's park board meeting. While the pay hike was voted on in public session, the raise was discussed — apparently illegally — in a closed executive session.

Also discussed in the apparently illegal executive session was an hourly wage increase for the park district's secretary. After the session, the park board voted a 25 cent-an-hour increase to $3.40 an hour for that salary. Greenberg's annual salary now is $13,700.

The votes were unanimous, with Comr. Wendell Sampson absent.

'Personnel' discussions clarified

According to an opinion issued by Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott, the only matters that can be discussed under "personnel" are hiring and firing of employees and starting salaries for new employees. The Illinois open meetings law also states that collective bargaining may be discussed in executive session. There is no provision, however, that allows closed-door discussion of salary increases for current employees.

Informed prior to the executive session that it may be illegal, the park commissioners said they would hold it regardless and asked the Herald reporter present to leave.

The complete park district budget should be ready for tentative approval at the next park district meeting on May 14.

Park referendum set June 4

The Prospect Heights Park District referendum will be June 4, with the polls open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Although the exact amount of the referendum is not set yet, it will be about $1 million. Most of the money would be used to renovate Lions Park pool, which is in danger of being condemned by state health officials, and to build a sports-community center at the pool site. Other improvements, such as tennis courts, are being planned for neighborhood parks.

The probable voting place will be the Prospect Heights Public Library on Elm Street. Tours of the pool are planned for the day of the referendum. Absentee ballots will be available at the park district office, which is behind the library.

Park board officers elected

Max Lyle has been elected as the new president of the Prospect Heights Park District.

Other officers selected Tuesday night were Vice-president William Kuhns, Treasurer Patricia Kerwin and Secretary Rosemary Roth.

Walton League to use center

The Prospect Heights chapter of the Isaac Walton League will meet at the Prospect Heights Park District's service center. The change of meeting place, which is permanent, was approved Tuesday by the park board.

Also the park board gave permission to the Prospect Heights Little League to hold its fittings of players for uniforms at the service center. If needed, The service center is located north of Camp McDonald Road and behind the Prospect Heights Public Library off Elm Street.

The park board approved the expenditure of up to $600 for meeting tables and chairs.

Carrier won't ask recount

Troehler wins Harper post—by 1 vote

One vote made the difference as Judith Troehler defeated Stanley Carrier and was seated on the Harper College board of trustees.

In the final official vote tally from the April 13 board election Mrs. Troehler had 1,346 votes to 1,345 for Carrier. Carrier's final total differed by five votes from his previously announced unofficial total, apparently because of an error made by judges in a Prospect Heights precinct in recording the unofficial tally.

The official tally Tuesday night confirmed the election of incumbent William Kelly, Robert Rausch of Hoffman Estates and Shirley Munson of Palatine.

Kelly was then elected board president by a 6 to 1 vote.

Following announcements of the tally Carrier said he would not seek a recount and added that he does not believe Mrs. Troehler will serve her full three-year term. "There will be a vacancy before the year is over," he said. "I will run for her seat when she resigns."

Mrs. Troehler, however, said that she fully intends to serve a full term "unless there are unforeseeable circumstances." She added, "I don't think I would resign out of frustration."

MRS. TROEHLER'S election means that the Harper board has a majority of four women. She is a student at Harper and says she intends to graduate from the school in June, 1975.

Earlier in the day, Mrs. Troehler was notified that Harper's attorney Frank Hines feels she might be liable to a charge of conflict of interest if she continues as a student at the college after becoming a member of the board even though two other board members served while students at the college.

The advice came in a call from College Pres. Robert Lahti. Mrs. Troehler said the information left her somewhat "shaken" at the time and added that "I wonder why they waited until today to tell me."

Stanley Carrier

Judith Troehler

Hines said the law under which he has formed his opinion, Chapter 102, Section

3 of the Illinois Revised Statutes, is "admittedly vague and general." However, he said the law, combined with an opinion from the Michigan state attorney general on a similar statute and a new Illinois law providing for a non-voting student member of college boards, may be combined to indicate that a voting student member of the board would be involved in a conflict of interest.

THE LAW CITED by Hines states, in part, "No person holding any office, either by election or appointment under the laws and constitution of this state, may be in any manner interested, either directly or indirectly . . . in any contract or the performance of any work in the making or letting of which such officer may be called upon to act or vote."

Hines said he focuses on the phrase "in any manner interested" and the word "contract," and added "The relation between a college and a student is primarily contractual."

The law goes on to prohibit public officials from representing persons bidding for a contract before their organization and from accepting bribes in return for votes.

THE LEGAL opinion, Hines said, "doesn't mean the board could refuse to seat her." He said he has advised college officials of this law in the past. Two other board members have served while students at the college, Hines said, adding, "I presume that these past candidates were aware of this, but they simply disagreed with it."

However, board member Larry Moats, who was a student when he was elected to the board in 1969 said yesterday that, although at one point a college committee was formed to study the whole issue of conflict of interest, "I don't recollect that particular statute ever being brought to my attention."

School news notes

Members of the club include Jeanne Lindstrom, Dave Drewes, Mike Waters, Chris Moeller, Wendy Conner, Tracy Stevens, Melissa Wiesler, Neal Smith, Billy Gasparoc, Lenny Moreno and Tom Hintze.

The children meet once every other week after school to work on special science projects. Several students have studied the solar system, and others made a wind velocity chart and learned the function of an anemometer. Future plans call for a nature hike and a study of ecology.

The Holmes Junior High School girls' gymnastics team will participate in three meets with teams from other schools this year.

The Holmes team is scheduled to compete against girls from Sunset Ridge, MacArthur and River Trails junior high schools.

The girls will do compulsory beginning routines on the balance beam, uneven parallel bars, floor exercises and vaulting.

Can Harper board member also be a student—legally?

Don't even say that one vote doesn't make a difference

Judith Troehler of Mount Prospect and Stanley Carrier of Hoffman Estates know better Tuesday night one vote determined which one of them would sit on the Harper College board of trustees and which would go home a loser

Mrs Troehler won and Carrier says he won't ask for a recount The members of the Harper board are now William Kelly, who was elected board president Tuesday night, Jessalyn Nicklas the former president and last member remaining of the original college board elected in 1965; Lawrence Moats, a 26-year-old electrical contractor who was a student when first elected to the board; Marilyn Marier, an Arlington Heights housewife and active "good government" type; Robert Rausch, a new board member who is surprised that he was elected; Shirley Munson former member of the Palatine village board and Mrs Troehler, a Harper student

Altogether it's an interesting group and as the months pass it will be interesting to find out how this board will react to the problems facing the college

ATTENTION WILL probably focus at least for awhile on Mrs Troehler who has to have taken her seat by the slimmest margin of any board member in the Northwest suburbs

There are two things about Mrs Troehler's position that may make things a little awkward for her at first

First of all the memory of the last young woman student board member, Annalee Fjellberg is still fresh in the minds of many Mrs Fjellberg was elected to the board last year after making a number of critical statements about the way the college was run After about eight months on the board, she resigned for "personal reasons" Some people at the college think it was because she discovered how hard it is to change things at Harper

Because of Mrs Fjellberg's action a lot of people will be watching Mrs Troehler to see if she will do the same thing That was probably what Carrier meant Tuesday night when he said he was sure he'd be on the board because "there'll be a resignation within a year"

THE SECOND thing that will make Mrs Troehler's position at least temporarily awkward is the legal opinion the board attorney came up with earlier on Tuesday — in which he told her that she might face a possible "conflict of interest" as a student serving on the board

Attorney Frank Hines said he has let the college administration know about the possible conflict for student board members in the past although Moats said he never heard of it

Hines' interpretation, which he made clear does not affect Mrs Troehler's right to sit on the board, involves a statute that says no board member should have an interest in any contract on which he or she may have to vote

Education today

by Wandalyn Rice

The law may apply to a student board member, Hines says, because "the relationship between a college and a student is primarily contractual." In addition, Hines points out that the Illinois General Assembly passed a law requiring each college board to have a non-voting member elected by the students — and says that may imply that a student should not serve as a voting member of the board

IT'S HARD for me to see just how being a student board member can be construed as a financial conflict of interest of the kind the law seems to be talking about (later in the same law, there is a reference to public officials taking bribes in exchange for votes)

But even if Mrs Troehler were to run into a conflict (if, for example, she might have to vote to lower tuition, something that would affect her economically) she could abstain from voting Mrs Nicklas has done that on many occasions whenever the college has purchased anything from IBM because her husband worked there

In addition college Pres. Robert Lahti serves on the board of directors of the Bank of Elk Grove, and the college puts money there Lahti apparently is not violating the conflict of interest laws because, as a college employee, he does not vote on where the money will go

AT ANY RATE, it's hard to believe that Mrs. Troehler is going to have any major problem with conflict of interest — even in the days of what Spiro Agnew called the "post-Watergate morality"

In the months to come people are going to be watching the new Harper board, including new board members Mrs Troehler, Rausch and Mrs Munson

In addition, all women will probably hope that the statement made by one joker after Tuesday's meeting is wrong Noticing that the board now has a majority of women, he said, "The meetings will last longer — you know that women talk more"

Forest industry, environment controversy looms

by LEA TONKIN

Arbor Day celebrations Friday are dedicated to trees — their beauty, usefulness and perpetuation. First championed by Nebraska newspaper editor J. Sterling Morton in 1872, the tree-planting day symbolizes forestland conservation programs.

Despite the nation's vast forestland — some 754 million acres — and the success of many forest management programs, a conflict between forest industry and environmentalists is brewing. The current shortage of wood products in the United States may be intensified by the end of the century as timber demand here and abroad increases, predicted Edward Cliff, former chief of the U.S. Forest Service. Intensified forest management could enable the country to double its production of timber by 2020, he added.

The U.S. forest land base is eroded by 1 million acres a year as highways and other developments are constructed, adds Roger Zeiman, regional manager for the American Forest Institute in Des Plaines. Intensive land use in U.S. forest lands and privately-owned forest lands can alleviate the problem, he said, adding that environmentalists "can go too far in locking up our nation's forest resources. All we ask is how much land should be set aside for wilderness use," he said.

The push for multi-use forest lands contrasts with the conservationists' efforts to preserve the forests and to set aside wilderness areas where human activity is limited chiefly to foot and horse-back.

Following the passage of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1970, hundreds of suits aimed at halting or curbing development of forest resources have been filed in federal and state courts. A primary goal of many suits is to offer protection against timber sales, oil drilling and other activities. Sluggish efforts by the U.S. Forest Service in the designation of potential wilderness areas has aggravated the conflict. With the nation's increasing demand for forest products, the value of wilderness will be scrutinized closely in years to come.

2 incinerators closed

A new incinerator program initiated several months ago by the Cook County Department of Environmental Control resulted in the sealing of two incinerators in Cook County. The unit at Arlington Heights Animal Hospital, Golf and Algonquin roads, was recently sealed on orders from the Cook County Circuit Court. The hospital received a ticket for failure to obtain an effective certificate of operation. The environmental control department's engineering section denied the hospital an installation permit, and the incinerator was later ordered sealed. The other sealed incinerator is located at Garofolo's Finer Foods in South Chicago Heights.

Free pollution tests offered

Free auto pollution tests will be offered to motorists Saturday at several locations. The 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. service is part of the Chicagoland Check your Vehicle Emissions Day program. Participating stations include: Euclid and Wolf Shell, at Euclid and Wolf roads, Mount Prospect; Art's Arco, 1228 E. ## Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Small slam makes one way only

Pessimistic Pete looked over the dummy and remarked, "We have a pretty good play for seven, but since we are in six I had best try to insure my contract."

Pete took his ace of diamonds, led a low spade and ducked in dummy. West held the trick and led a second diamond. Pete, ruffed led a trump to dummy's king of trumps, discarded his four losing clubs on four spades and claimed his contract.

The hand is worthy of considerable study. Seven would not be a bad contract. It would make against a better break in either major suit, but with the actual distribution of the East-West cards Pete's line of play was the only one that would bring in 12 tricks.

As a further point of interest if West had been one of those super players who see all the cards before the opening lead is made, he would have plunked the 10 of clubs on the table. Pete would have been unable to find any play to make the slam.

Cure sought for muscular disease

Members of the Myasthenia Gravis Foundation will meet May 19 at the Loyola Medical Center in Maywood to discuss research toward conquering the disease.

Myasthenia Gravis is a neuromuscular disease that generally strikes between 20 and 30 years old. Characterized by weakness and abnormal fatigue of the voluntary muscles, the disease has affected some 30,000 persons in the United States. Cause and cure are unknown.

In the normal course of the disease, a patient can go into remission with no symptoms or weakness. But the symptoms can reoccur any time. The prospect of adequate control is especially good in children and those who are diagnosed and treated early.

The Chicago area chapter of the MG Foundation was formed in October, 1972 to help raise money to search for a cure. The members of the board of trustees, who have the disease, help newly diagnosed patients accept and learn to live with the disease.

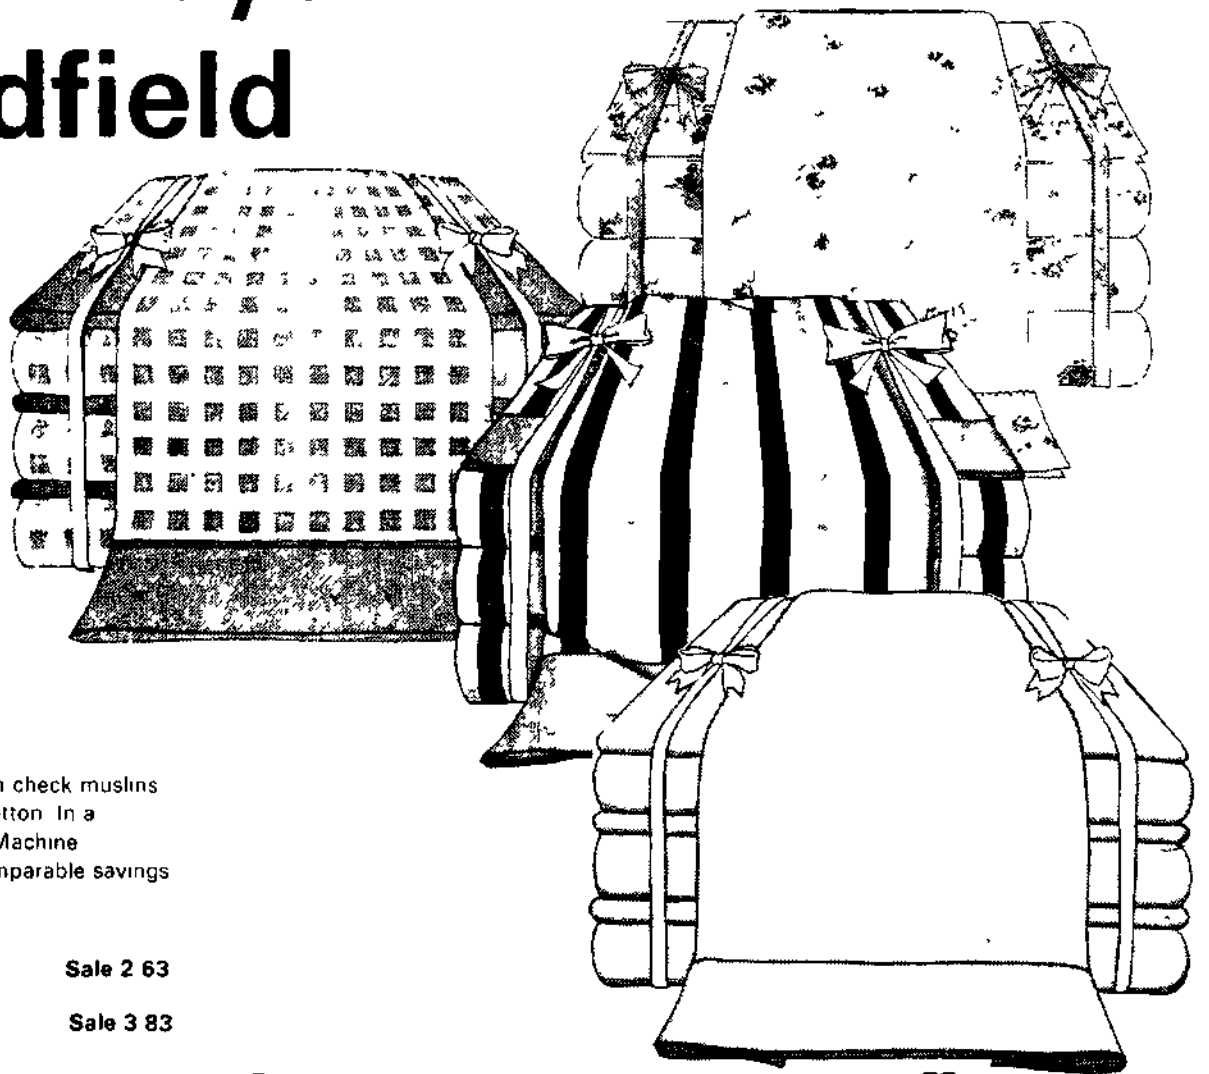

Officers are Malcolm Bowman, Northbrook, chairman; George Wilson, Western Springs, secretary, and Nadeanne Baumann, Des Plaines, treasurer. Contributions and requests for more information to the foundation can be sent to MG Foundation, 566 Marshall St., Des Plaines, Ill. 60016.

Low 1st quarter at C&amp;NW

The Chicago and North Western Transportation Co. had consolidated net income of $2,863,000 or 64 cents a share and total operating revenues of $114,315,000 in the first quarter of 1974. In the 1973 first quarter, net income was $5,004,000, or $1.13 a share and operating revenues totaled $100,553,000.

North Western Pres. Larry S. Provo said the lower 1974 first quarter results were due largely to "our inability to adjust our freight rates upward until late in the first quarter to compensate for significantly increased costs." He noted that wage costs went up Jan. 1 and that prices for diesel fuel are approximately double the year-earlier level.

Tours of the Federal Reserve Bank, the Midwest Stock Exchange, the Chicago Board of Trade and the board's Options Exchange will be included in the April 29 program. On May 6, participants will visit the Chicago Mercantile Exchange Inc., and the Merchandise Mart. The May 13 program includes a Chicago Hospital Council visit, focusing on May 12-18 as National Hospital Week, and a tour of the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago. The Cook County Fantus Health Center is among the locations to be visited May 20. For additional information contact the center at 342-5875.

New strike deadline at United Air Lines

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Machinists Union has set a new strike deadline against United Airlines of May 3 at 3 p.m.

Negotiations for a nationwide contract with the airline will resume Monday under the auspices of the National Mediation Board, a spokesman said here Tuesday.

Union members rejected by a reported 5-1 margin last weekend a proposed agreement to increase pay for 17,000 United mechanics and service employees by an average of more than 15 per cent over 28 months. The union declined to reveal the actual vote count.

An official here said workers want larger raises to cope with inflation. He said that United also hurt chances for passage of the ratification vote when it said that pay increases under the proposed contract might be subject to review and change by the Cost of Living Council.

The new strike deadline comes after April 30, when congressional authorization for the wage-price control program expires.

Herald opinion

We back new openness

Illinois Atty. General William Scott has added teeth to the law designed to assure us that public officials do their business where they're supposed to — in public.

The problem has been that the Illinois Open Meeting Law, passed in 1957 and amended ten years later, is a strong but occasionally undefined tool for keeping public officials out in the open where they belong.

Scott's opinion, issued last month in response to a request from a downstate state's attorney, tells us more about what public officials can and can't talk about behind closed doors. Specifically, it shuts down a favorite loophole used by officials to skirt the law.

Too often, officials have met secretly in small groups to discuss public business. These informal meetings, conducted without public notice, have been held in restaurants or hotel rooms. Officials defend these covert gatherings as necessary to conduct public business.

William J. Scott

Scott's opinion, however, points out that any gathering of elected officials is a meeting, whether held in official quarters or in a restaurant. His test is whether public business is discussed; that's the Atty. General's key to determine whether such a meeting is legal.

Scott also declares that a quorum doesn't need to exist, as "often members constituting fewer than a quorum can effectively control a group decision."

Wisely, Scott doesn't define as illegal a social gathering of officials or the meeting of two public officials. But the thrust of his opinion is to close a loophole too often used by public officials to escape the legitimate scrutiny of the public — the public being composed of men and women who pay the salaries and elect such public officials.

Scott's opinion also limits closed-door discussions of personnel. Under his view the closed-door discussion of working conditions and hours of employment in non-collective bargaining situations is illegal. This is a significant tightening of the law, but it isn't as far-reaching as Scott's toughening of the meeting qualifications.

The most important element in Scott's legal opinion is that it provides the public a new tool to scrutinize its leaders. Public officials who blithely disregard Scott's interpretation of the law should be reminded there are criminal penalties in the Open Meeting Law for those who disregard a law intended to keep Illinois government where it belongs — in public view.

'Don't give away land'

Many dangers are not recognized in their incipient form. A threat has come into view recently, the determination of Arab nationals to concentrate their investments in United States land. Last week's announcement that the government owned Kuwait Investment Company has invested in a number of American properties and "is planning to buy the Chicago suburb of Hoffman Estates" indicates a general policy which is not just a random transaction.

Nothing less than land investments would satisfy the astute Arabs, because more than any one else they realize that their rapidly pyramiding riches have the power to change our currency into funny money.

Fence post

The purchase of land by the Arabs contains the seed of grave future trouble for the American people, differing in magnitude from the threat presented when other foreign nationals like Japan and Germany make investments on our soil for several reasons.

The fantastic hike in Arabian oil prices generates untold riches for them which literally swallows up the wealth of the rest of the world. Japan and other nations, on the other hand, have only that surplus which has accrued through dollar devaluation, which is small by comparison. Whereas, control by the Arabs of the oil resources of the world has been accepted by them as a license to turn this advantage into a bottomless cornucopia of inexhaustible capital.

My concern regarding the area of Hoffman Estates is personal because I have relatives who live there, but my opposition to the Arabian investments in U. S. land is, I trust, patriotic. My objections are directed, first, to the attitudes and ethics of the Arab rulers. Although I have only praise for their desire to conserve their natural resources, I look upon the present price of oil as a species of blackmail toward the rest of the world, which is reminiscent of the tribute our country paid for decades to the Barbary States of Algiers, Tunisia and Tripoli in order to be allowed to sail the seas in peace in the late 1700's. What a blessing for the world it would be, instead, if these rulers followed the example of United States leadership under Harry Truman, which when it held the reigns of power after the Second World War, spent $11 billion to rehabilitate European nations under the Marshall Plan.

The strongest objections, however, to land investments by Arabs are the evil consequences from another direction. Our nation has been tarred with examples of these for the entire past year. I refer to the ties between money, power and politics. Who can deny that alliance and solidarity which flourishes and ripens between financial tycoons, political leadership and those who possess power. More, the scope of these tie-ins is supranational.

The business world, too, is myopic in its outlook and it lacks vision and discernment; it is not geared to the ordinary citizen, or deals, such as Abraham Lincoln's description of freedom, "the government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth."

The world of business is much more concerned with the Gross National Product than it is with you and me. I would like to call to your attention an article which appeared in one of our metropolitan newspapers on March 15, in which the chief executive officer of a very large oil company suggested that we lure Arab investments to this country by guaranteeing the Arabs protection from "nationalization."

Someone had better tell the Liberty Bell good and hard. It might pay us to re-read the story of the Louisiana Purchase; how our diplomats in their patriotic fervor exceeded their instructions on the price of the territory and also on the size of the land to be acquired. The fine instincts of patriotism are also to be found in the story of the purchase of Alaska, called Seward's Folly by scathing critics of his day. Their names are forgotten, but Alaska remains a monument to his vision and patriotism. May some of his vision rub off on us today so we can preserve what is ours by inheritance. History reinforces these aspirations; it was the landless citizenry which was at the end the downfall of Rome.

Let's not give away our land for money cheapened by predators.

Amnesty blasted

I would suggest all Illinois people write Senators Charles Percy and Adlai Stevenson on the amnesty issue. From a soldier's standpoint, I've seen the shot up, cut up, burned up, maimed Viet Nam soldier. As a medic, I've seen the price of fighting. 57,000 soldiers died, thousands maimed for life and thousands more girls are now widows. How can the United States Congress speak of forgiveness for draft dodgers?

These dodgers are law breakers and must be tried as criminals under the uniform code of military justice and tried to be punished by military courts. Congress' suggestion to let them serve with us as forgiveness is unacceptable. We in the armed forces do not wish to serve with criminals. No, Congress, return these soldiers for trial and punishment. Show the Viet Nam soldier that his 57,000 fellowmen did not die in vain.

Act responsible. We elected you as other Americans to represent us. Do not fail us again. Stand up with the maimed G. I. and be counted. It's the least you can now do for him.

'Animals almost human'

I think they should have a law against dumping pets off on the side of the road and not caring about what happens to them. I really think that the people should be arrested for doing this.

After all, an animal breathes air just like a human and in my opinion is almost human.

Fire, police departments praised

We would like to publicly express our thanks to the fire and police departments of Hoffman Estates for their help during our crisis in the loss of our son, Joseph Buchholz.

The dedicated paramedics tried so hard to save Joe. We will always remem-

We would also like to thank our friends and neighbors for their kindness and help in our time of need. Their comfort and understanding will never be forgotten.

Bob Lahey's column

Patronage: 'inevitable'

His name was Leo Pfeffer, and in his own domain he was as much Boss as is Richard J. Daley in his empire.

Leo's domain was minuscule. It encompassed only those residents of Champaign County, in Central Illinois, who would admit to being Democrats — and when Leo reigned they were as scarce as hills in that flatland corn country.

He was the minority state representative and the county chairman of that handful of Democrats and among them, at least, his power was absolute. It derived not from electing local Democrats — an impossibility then in Champaign County — but from milking every possible Democratic vote on every election day.

In return for his contribution to cutting into the massive Republican vote, successful statewide Democrats — notably his old friend Paul Powell, to whom he was also attentive in the legislature — gave Leo control over jobs in the state Highway Department in the county.

Secure as he was in his power, thanks to his effectiveness in getting votes in hostile country, Leo often fell into a habit which is anathema to most in his brand of politics: candor.

Once a young reporter called Leo on the eve of an election to check out a report that state highway crews, with state trucks, on state time, were out nailing up Democratic election posters.

"Do me a favor," growled Leo. "You hear of one of my guys who isn't out putting up posters, you let me know. 'Cause the sonuvabitch is gonna be out of a job."

Never was that word "patronage" defined more eloquently.

Lee Epstein, state chairman of the Independent Voters of Illinois, did not exaggerate when he told the Cook County Republican Platform Committee last week, "Patronage is one of the most pervasive and destructive" elements in the pervasive and destructive politics of Illinois.

Patronage, more than any other element — despite that nonsense about the public continually demanding more government services — accounts for the ever-expanding bureaucracy. The more jobs an officeholder has to hand out, the more precinct workers he can bind.

Patronage, more than any other element, accounts for the inefficiency and callousness of government agencies. No matter how accomplished is the head of the department, it is hard for him to fire a loafer protected by a political bigwig because he turns out 99 per cent of his voters.

It is therefore heartening to see the GOP Platform Committee at least opening a discussion on a public stand concerning patronage.

There were indications that some members of the committee would like to see a plank condemning patronage. They aren't going to get it, of course.

The hardnoses on the committee will surely resist a firm stand against patronage. In their view, patronage — what little they may have in Cook County — is their best hope for securing the door-bell ringers, the envelope stuffers, the precinct captains and the election judges which give a political party a hope for success.

And they're right.

Epstein said IVI wants to see people working in elections "because they believe in the candidate's or party's or movement's ideals, not because they want a job or want to keep the one they already have."

A committee member called that desire "Utopian."

He's right. It is Utopian. Because too many people, no matter how much they "believe," will not go out and do those menial, monotonous tasks that make elections work.

And for every job that goes undone by a civic-minded volunteer, there is an opening for one of Leo Pfeffer's highway workers.

Cuba draws OAS interest

by PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

When Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and his Latin American friends talk about "restructuring" the Organization of American States (OAS), it is clear they not always are talking about the same thing.

The hemispheric attitude toward Cuba is a case in point.

In Atlanta, Ga., where the 23-nation OAS will be meeting for the rest of this month, Kissinger outlined a new "good partner" policy of the United States toward its Caribbean and Latin American neighbors.

He did not mention Cuba.

Later, he told newsmen the United States has no intention of restoring diplomatic relations with Cuba, presumably tion Cuba in Atlanta, others were not.

Foreign Minister Alberto J. Vignes of Argentina called the Cuban boycott "unrealistic and anachronistic."

Foreign Minister Miguel de la Flor Valle of Peru spoke of it as "an obstacle to the renewal of inter-American relations which weakens the institutions."

Despite Kissinger's denials, other events have suggested the State Department is prepared to accept the erosion of its 12-year-old economic blockade of Cuba.

Kissinger did not protest when other members agreed their governments should be consulted about possible future involvement of Cuba in the organization. On the question of trade, the U.S. tacitly has admitted there is little it can do to stop it.

An example is Argentina's decision to sell Cuba 60,000 vehicles, automobiles and trucks, many of which will be manufactured by Argentine subsidiaries of American firms.

It is part of an open-end deal by which Argentina promises to supply Cuba with $200 million in credits annually.

The State Department issued licenses for the deal, reportedly after being warned that failure to do so would result in nationalization of the firms involved.

Another American-owned firm is said to be negotiating the sale of locomotives to Cuba.

A U.S. State Department spokesman has said the United States did not intend to be "arbitrary or capricious" about exemption from the boycott.

Said Kissinger in Atlanta:

"We in the United States have come to recognize that a revolution has taken place in Latin America. Industrialization and modern communications have transformed economic and social life. This is why our new dialogue is not a concession by the United States, but a necessity for us all." (UPI) setting to rest speculation that the U.S. was about to change its attitude toward Fidel Castro's Communist island nation at the U.S. doorstep.

Among Latin American members of the OAS there has been a growing demand for a restructuring of the OAS, with emphasis less upon U.S. interests and more upon Latin American interests. Implicit would be a return of Cuba to the OAS fold.

And if Kissinger was reluctant to men-

Ripoff or real concern?

Although Americans are contributing at a record rate, abuses may cut down on giving to charities

NEW YORK — Part of the incidental information culled from the investigation of President Nixon's tax returns was that in 1972 he contributed a mere $292 to charity.

The niggardly gift was surprising to much of the nation, but not really a subject of controversy because of a general belief that charities are old-fashioned, that philanthropy is fading and that donations in general are down.

Not so. According to statistics just compiled, charities are enjoying unprecedented favor in America, and the President, in 1972, simply was not doing his share. The American Assn. of Fund Raising Council reports that some 27-million tax returns indicated charitable deductions last year, and some half-million charities shared in a record-breaking receipt of $24.5 billion.

THE FIGURES are staggering and, to a nation plagued by enough problems of inhumanity and carelessness, they are encouraging. Religious groups and institutions received $10.9 billion alone. One contributor, Mrs. Geraldine Rockefeller Lodge, gave $85 million to set up a foundation in her name, and another philanthropist, Mrs. Helen Bonfils, donated $30 million to the performing arts.

The Fund Raising Council says that individual Americans contributed more than $18 billion of the total for an average contribution of $490 apiece.

BUT BENEATH this good news, there are some signs that the President may not be so out of trend as it seems. Perhaps he is merely ahead of his time. Despite large sums being given to charity at present, there is worry it may not continue.

Already Americans are giving less of their total income to needy causes (1.75 per cent today vs. 1.78 in 1960) and some investigators found that fund raisers for a group called Asthmatic Children's Foundation raised $10 million to help the diseased kids, then pocketed 88 per cent of the total as campaign expenses.

Naturally, this latter abuse will no doubt hinder future collections for asthmatic youngsters. Thus the concern that shady or incompetent fund raisers will eventually cripple charity in general. Schwartz of the Fund Raising Council says that newspapers should do more to protect the legitimate enterprises, by emphasizing the positive rather than the negative side of charity campaigns.

He says the unworthies are "an extremely small percentage" of the total. He adds that the major fund-raising firms will not even consider a charity campaign if the cost gets much above 25-30 per cent.

YET AS OF now, very little is known about the extent of fund-raising abuse. The true crooks may be, as Schwartz says, "an extremely small percentage" of the overall; but then again the NIB, which acts as a fact-finding agency for philanthropists, annually finds that some 75 of the nation's largest and most entrenched charities operate to some degree of inefficiency or exaggeration.

Some states and cities do regulate charities, and demand such information as financial breakdowns, but for the most part, this data, nationally, is privileged. U.S. Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin, D-Calif., reports that he recently tried to check into the operations of several charities and found they refused to answer any questions.

The National Chamber of Commerce and the Better Business Bureau also have had difficulties getting charities to reveal the economics of their operations.

In some cases, the charities refuse for reason of "privacy," and many well-known religious charities say they maintain secrecy on the sacred tenet of church and state separation.

NOT SURPRISINGLY, attempts are being made to change this secrecy. Van Deerlin has introduced a House bill which would force charities which solicit by mail to disclose the facts of their money disbursement. Mondale is leaning toward the creation of some kind of federal information center whereby any citizen can check on the worthiness of his prospective charity and the use of his donated dollar.

Less specific, but apparently equally concerned, the Nixon administration has set up a commission to "study the situation."

But in lieu of new laws or restrictions, legitimate fund raisers and charity workers say the abuses can even now be minimized if individuals and corporations follow two simple and logical rules:

(1) Never give money to unidentified people and (2) Never give money to a charity that will not reveal how its donations are spent. "Charity shall cover the multitude of sins," says Revelations 4:8; and in this day and age, that includes naïveté.

experts in the field, such as Melvin Van de Werken of the National Information Bureau, believe young people, tomorrow's givers, "are being turned off by charity."

The reason for the concern is simple: Many charities operate fund-raising campaigns that raise more money for the fund raisers than the charity. And it's not only young people who are disturbed by such questionable procedures, it's everybody who's aware of what sometimes goes on. Says Jack Schwartz, whose 42-year-old Fund Raising Council is a collection of 30 major, and presumably legitimate, firms:

"We fight this image all the time. Everytime some fly-by-night shyster clips the public, legitimate fund raisers are hurt. People get suspicious and it's harder to get them to give."

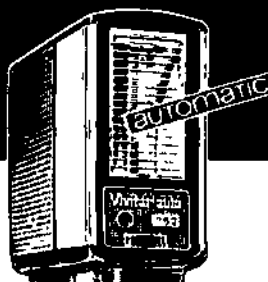

TO BE SURE, there are numerous fly-by-night shysters. One Washington, D.C., fund raiser recently forced charity organizers to sign a contract which allowed him to take his expenses and profit before any donations could go to the needy.

Another group, called the Friends of the FBI, is reported to have used such devious tactics in money raising that the most popular G-Man of them all, TV's Ephrem Zimbalist, Jr., withdrew his name from its list of alleged supporters.

But breaking or bending legalities is not the most prevalent of fund-raising abuses. In most cases the perversion is mostly an ethical one. Fund raisers milk high but lawful profits from ostensibly worthy causes.

Hersey star Corzine will attend DePaul

by JIM COOK

Dave Corzine is relieved that it's all over.

Ray Meyer is thrilled that it's just beginning.

The differing emotional conditions reflect the announcement Wednesday that Corzine, Hersey's magnificent 6-foot-11, 230-pound basketball talent, has signed his national letter of intent to play with Meyer's DePaul Blue Demons.

From Corzine's standpoint, the signing at his home Tuesday night culminated three years of hounding by recruiters from every major university in the country except UCLA and Ohio State.

For Meyer, Dave's signature on the dotted line means the stock in his already formidable basketball program has soared another 100 points.

"He's the biggest catch I've ever had at DePaul," said the 32-year coaching fixture. "We have no doubt that he'll turn our program around completely. Dave has the tools to become another Bill Walton or Lew Alcindor (Kareem Abdul-Jabbar)."

The prime target of the Blue Demons' recruiting activity for three years, Meyer can fantasize with the potential of his front line that also includes Corzine's best friend and former Hersey teammate 6-8½ Andy Pancratz and 6-8 Bill Robinson.

"I've known Andy since I was a freshman at Hersey," Corzine said. "Of course, I am looking forward to playing with him again at DePaul. He's told me how much fun it is playing for Coach Meyer and that we'd really be tough next season if I enrolled there."

Corzine had reportedly whittled down his never-ending chain of college offers to just DePaul and the University of Illinois.

"I looked at a lot of other schools, too," Corzine said prior to taking the floor in the Suburban vs. Chicago All-Star game at Bloom High School in Chicago Heights.

"But nothing stuck out about any of them. I looked into schools down south where the weather is supposed to be better, but they didn't have that much to offer, either."

"I wanted a school where I would be able to step in and play as a freshman immediately and I hope I will be able to do that at DePaul."

Meyer offered this vote of confidence to his prize catch. "His playing days are all ahead of him. His ability is virtually untapped. He's got all the great assets."

"Dave can dribble the ball extremely well for a big man. He's an excellent outside shot and a strong rebounder. The kid is just a fantastic ballplayer."

Corzine's decision to enroll at DePaul was not startling. The mobile giant attended Meyer's basketball camp for four years and his relationship with Pancratz was called "inseparable" by those who saw the two big men together.

The news will be well-received by the other members of DePaul's squad, according to Meyer, even though it will mean keener competition to make the club next season.

"The kids used to come by my office every day and ask 'Did we get him yet? ... Did we get him yet?' One of our kids even went to see Corzine," Meyer continued. "Rich Sloger told Dave, 'With you coming to DePaul, that will make me the best sixth man in the country.'"

"I want to wish him all the luck in the world," Hersey head coach Roger Steingraber said during a break in his tour of jury duty this week.

"I think Dave will improve at DePaul because he'll be facing tougher competition day in and day out. He had a chance to relax against some of his high school competitors, but I think even in practice now, he'll be up against guys that are 6-8 and 6-9."

"There's no telling what the potential of our team will be next year," Meyer dreamed. "It will be the biggest club we've ever fielded here and perhaps the best. It opens a lot of doors. The way both Dave and Andy release the ball, I can see us fast-breaking aReady."

DePaul's formidable 1974-75 schedule will put the pressure and the spotlight on Corzine immediately. "We start out against UCLA," Dave said, while scanning the Blue Demons' opposition. "So we'll know where we stand right off the bat."

"We also see Washington State, St. Bonaventure, Providence, Marquette twice, Niagara, Dayton and Notre Dame," Corzine said.

"I'm glad it's (recruiting) all over. Now I can't wait to get started."

Mid-Suburban leaders need extra innings to post fifth victories

The leaders were extended, but they still came out on top Wednesday in Mid-Suburban League baseball.

Forest View, leader in the South, was pushed to 10 innings before overcoming Elk Grove 5-4.

Fremd, leader in the North, went eight innings in a 7-6 thriller over Hersey.

Both teams now stand 5-1 in MSL play.

FALCONS WIN IN 10TH

Thom Culkar singled in the bottom of the 10th to give South Division leading Forest View a 5-4 victory over Elk Grove.

The Falcons, who are 5-1 in the MSL, staged the rally against Steve Kliff, who came on in relief in that inning. Ray Meinson led off with a single to left and moved to second when Alex Howanski walked, setting the stage for Culkar's single to left. Kliff had been 2-0.

The nearly three-hour marathon game saw the winners commit eight errors which helped the Grenadiers to all of their runs. The visitors scored single tallies in the first and third innings to take a 2-0 lead. The first came home on an error and the second on a wild pitch.

Elk Grove, which committed three errors, let in the first run on a bases loaded walk to Ken Butzen in the third to make it 2-1.

Both teams scored in the fourth, Elk Grove on a pair of hits by John Strybel and Mike Dill and an error and Forest View on hits by Howanski and Don Stevens.

They also matched runs in the fifth with the Grenadiers using two errors and a stolen base by Scott Scholten and the Falcons coming back with a single by Greg Pfaff, an error, wild pitch and passed ball.

The Falcons tied the score in the sixth after two were out. Keith Keller reached on a fielder's choice, moved to second on a wild pitch and scored on a single by Stevens.

Both teams threatened after that, but it took three extra innings to decide the tense contest. Mallian was the winner with four innings of relief.

VIKES WIN IN OVERTIME

Fremd watched leads of 4-0 and 6-2 melt away before rallying for the winning run on a squeeze play in the eighth inning to nip Hersey, 7-6.

Viking John Castor led off the eighth with a double and was squeezed across by Jack Kelleher's perfectly-executed bunt back to the pitcher.

After spotting Fremd a 6-2 lead, Hersey earned a deadlock game in the sixth on three straight walks and back-to-back Viking errors. Jim Lococo's single to left appeared to put Hersey into the lead, but a perfect throw by Steve Dwyer cut down Hersey pinchrunner Kevin Madden at the plate.

Fremd came out hitting and tagged Huskie starter Brian Nelson for four runs in the top of the first. Keying the assault was Jeff Brissson's leadoff triple and singles by Bob Burke, Dwyer, Bill Bullard and Kelleher.

Hersey countered with a pair in their half on John Caruso's run-scoring triple and Tom Good's sacrifice fly. But Fremd peeked away for another run in the third on a walk, an error and Kelleher's second straight hit and another in the fourth on an error and two infield outs.

In boosting its record to 5-1 in the league, Fremd's stellar righthander Jeff Hanisch picked up its second decision in two days, this time in relief. Hersey's record dipped to 1-5.

KNIGHTS TOPPLE BISON

Prospect shuffled eight runs across over the first three innings but had to withstand a late rally by Buffalo Grove before recording an 8-5 triumph.

It was the Bison who took the initiative in the first inning with a three-run assault that was highlighted by Tony Spinelle's booming two-run homer to right-centerfield.

But the Knights bounced back for a pair in the bottom of the frame on singles by Jim Anderson, Mike Quade and Mike Radoll and captured the lead for good in the second on successive base hits by Kevin Kelley, Rick Streng and Laddie Janda, a sacrifice by Anderson and Quade's second hit.

Prospect, 4-2 in the league, iced the game with a four-run third that included doubles by Streng and Anderson, a triple by Quade and a single by Kelley.

Buffalo Grove refused to throw in the towel, scrambling for two in the sixth on a pair of Prospect boots, Tim Tadge's single, a walk to Mark Dentler and John Arendall's base hit.

The Bison threatened in the seventh as well after singles by Dave Derrig and Mike Kelley, but Prospect reliever Rick Streng wiggled out of danger by pocketing the final out to preserve the win for righthander Paul Obuchowski.

The Bison, still winless in the league, dipped to 0-6.

WILDCATS CLUB CARDS

Two big first run rallies pretty much set the tempo for a 10-7 Wheeling triumph over visiting Arlington.

The Cardinals put three runs on the board in the top of the first and the Wildcats came right back with a six-run outburst. Both sides kept nipping away with single scoring spurts through the next six frames but the final three-run span held up, allowing the 'Cats to post their third conference win in a row.

Dar Townsend triggered the opening Card rally, singling down the third base line with the bases loaded. An error in the outfield allowed all three runners to come in and guests owned a momentary 3-0 lead.

In the bottom of the first the 'Cats sent 10 men to the plate and mixed a trio of doubles in with a couple of walks and three errors to regain a 6-3 advantage. Steve Rymer's two-bagger to deep right drove in a pair of runs, a double, by Mike Brzuszkiewicz pushed in another and the rest scored on miscues.

Wheeling padded the bulge with a run in the second on Paul Groot's sacrifice fly, one in the third on an error, one in the fourth on Rymer's third hit of the afternoon and one in the fifth on a hit and error off the bat of George Kaage.

Arlington meanwhile picked up a run in the third on an error, one in the fourth on a sacrifice fly by John Vukovich, one in the sixth on a single by Vukovich and one in the seventh on three walks and Art Busby's fielder's choice.

Brzuszkiewicz picked up the winning decision, with relief help from sophomore Kevin Gough in the seventh. The losing verdict went to Don Kamps, the first of three Redbird hurlers, and lowered Arlington's conference record to 3-2.

PALATINE IN ROMP

Three first inning doubles was all Palatine needed to send visiting Rolling Meadows down to defeat, 9-1.

The Pirates put six runs on the board in the bottom of the first, Jim Lubinski doubling home two, Garth Chase rapping in another with a two bagger and Dave Bordenkircher clearing the bases with another two-base rap.

Ace twirler Buddy Hughes took the cue from there and Palatine went on to post their fourth conference victory in six tries. Hughes earned the winning verdict, his third without defeat, after pitching shutout ball through the first five frames.

Garth Chase came in to spell Hughes in the sixth and was tapped by the Mustangs for a lone run, Dick Blocki driving it in with a single.

Palatine picked up two insurance runs after that with Chris Burrus doubling, Mike Jordan singling and both eventually scoring on a hit batsman and walk respectively.

DERN FIRES ONE-HITTER

Conant's Tim Dern held Schaumburg to one base hit and the Cougars stole 10 bases as they dumped the Saxons, 4-2, in a game marked by loose defensive play on both sides.

The only hit off Dern was a deep drive to right center field off the bat of Saxon first baseman Ray Fairbanks in the fourth inning. The smash, which rolled to the fence, was well out of the reach of Cougar centerfielder John Milke, who made a futile dive for the ball.

Despite the fine pitching by Dern, the Cougars had to fight from behind. Schaumburg scored a pair of runs in the top of the third on three walks and four errors. Bob Poplar, the Saxon third baseman, reached base on catcher's interference and he eventually came around on a mishandled pickoff attempt. Dan Gallagher walked and scored on another bad pickoff throw.

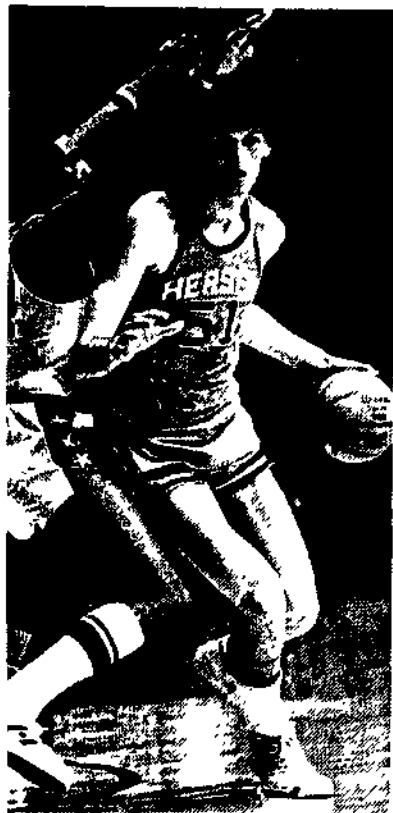

Conant got one run in the third on a hit by Jeff Ironside, a stolen base, and an RBI single by Paul Gebhardt, which was off the glove of the Saxon leftfielder.

In the fourth, the Cougars went ahead to stay. Don Sibrava singled off Schaumburg starter and loser Keith Abraham, and after he was sacrificed to second and wild pitched to third, he scored on an error by the shortstop on a Gary Oslance ground ball. Oslance then stole second and came home on a base hit by Jim Cole.

Dern's first victory brought Conant's record to 2-4. The southpaw fanned six, including four of the last seven batters. Schaumburg is now also 2-4.

DAVE CORZINE

Carey, also a shortstop, stroked the single in the Huskies' three-run fourth inning. Thanks in part to Pfister's 3-for-4 performance at the plate, the Wildcats rallied to win 8-3.

Saxons in easy track victory over Elk Grove

by ART MUGALIAN
Track and Field Editor

The April weather in these parts is without a definite pattern. Some days it rains and the wind sweeps cruelly out of the north. Other days the sun casts its warming rays and forces the mercury into the 70's.

But the Mid-Suburban League track season continues rain or shine. And all for one purpose, according to most of the coaches.

"There's really just one goal in all of this," said Forest View head man Bill Mohrmann. "We want to get as many kids downstate as we can."

Mohrmann's work and the efforts of his boys are all geared toward the district qualifying meet in the middle of May and a ticket to the state meet at Charleston the weekend of May 24-25. Every dual meet, every triangular, is just another "practice" for the state's trackmen. Even the big meets, like this Saturday's Palatine Relays, serve as tests for the athletes, a proving ground with high-level competition.

Buffalo Grove track coach Joe Scarpino knows what the season is all about, too. The Bison mentor is heading up his squad's first varsity season and already his boys are experiencing the "state meet fever."

Perhaps the Bison with the best chance to get past the districts is discus thrower Larry Smolinski. The big junior reached 146-1 in his first outdoor effort Monday and his coach figures he can toss it further.

"One thing we want to get is a state qualifier," said Scarpino, who knows that the qualifying distance of 150 feet is within Smolinski's range. "He's probably our best shot at it."

Smolinski is 6-foot-2 and he weighs around 215 pounds. "He's a discus thrower the year round," said his coach. Another good bet to qualify for the state meet is Wheeling's John Lortz. The senior high jumper has reached the qualifying height of 6-2 on numerous occasions, indoor and out, and he has tied the MSL record of 6-3 indoors.

Lortz jumped only 5-9 outdoors Monday at Libertyville but it was good enough to win in a triangular meet with Lake Forest and the hosting Wildcats. Pete Piet of Wheeling ran the 220-yard dash in a superb time of 23.0, but he was nosed at the wire by Libertyville's Jon Gosser, who ran 22.6 and added a fine 10.2 in the 100.

Jim Nagel's Wheeling Wildcats finished third in the meet as they prepare for Friday's Glenbrook North Relays.

In other action Monday, Schaumburg overpowered Elk Grove, 104 1/2-34 1/2, in a dual meet at the home track of the winning Saxons. Dennis Garber's crew racked up 12 first places, including double wins for Brian Feicho and Mike Palmer, a pair of Saxon juniors who loom large in Garber's plans.

Feicho won the high jump (5-6) and the 120 yard high hurdles (1:16.2) and he took thirds in the triple jump and the low hurdles. Palmer notched victories in the mile and the two mile.

Ed Martin, Schaumburg's versatile performer could manage only second spots in the two hurdles races, but the senior Saxon registered his best triple jump effort of the season, 41-10 1/2, for a first in that event. He also anchored his team's 440-yard relay win.

Jim Wendler's Grenadiers were buried under the depth of Schaumburg, but the Grove did achieve five first places. Dave King took a pair of wins in the 100 yard dash and the low hurdles, Brian Walther captured top spots in the 220 and the long jump, and John Groenhof notched the best shot put, 50-3.

Pirates tip Cougars 3-2 in tennis

Tennis Editor

Palatine and Conant furnished the only excitement in Mid-Suburban League tennis action Tuesday afternoon. The rest of the winners posted shutouts.

Playing at the Palatine courts, the Pirates and Cougars saw the outcome of the meet determined at third singles. Going into the third set, the rest of the matches had concluded with each school owning a pair of victories.

Ed Morganroth had won the first set at the No. 3 level of competition against Orson Faynor, but Faynor came back to take the second 6-4. Morganroth came through in the finale, winning 6-2 to give his team a 3-2 victory. It was Palatine's third win against a like number losses in the MSL. Conant is 1-4.

Forest View stopped young Buffalo Grove 5-0 as Greg Meyer, the Falcons' first singles player, posted the only shut-out victory. The win boosted Coach Doug Tolman's team to a 5-0 league mark. Only Arlington, which cancelled its meet with Prospect and was scheduled to make it up yesterday, also has a 5-0 record.

Buffalo Grove is 1-4. Hersey, winner of four while losing only one, blanked Elk Grove 5-0. Dave Schunk, playing first singles, had the easiest time of it with a pair of 6-1 victories.

The Grenadiers are 0-5. Fremd, owning an identical record as Hersey and owning a victory over the Huskies, stopped Rolling Meadows 5-0. In the closest match of this meet, Chris Lafayette edged Chuck Fischer in first singles 7-6, 6-2.

The Mustangs are 1-4.

Wheeling almost avoided a shutout before falling to visiting Schaumburg 5-0. Mike Martinez won his opening set against Mike O'Loughlin, 7-6. Then the Saxon ace rallied to win 6-0, 6-2.

The win put the Saxons over the .500 mark at 3-2. Wheeling is 0-5. This afternoon promises another full slate of conference contests with Hersey at Forest View, Buffalo Grove at Elk Grove, Fremd at Palatine, Arlington at Schaumburg, Rolling Meadows at Prospect and Wheeling at Conant.

Three Harper netmen earn Region spots

Pat Hill, Clarke Sanders and Jim Richter will represent Harper College's tennis team in the Region IV Tournament, beginning May 3 and concluding on May 4 at Springfield.

This trio won the right Tuesday to go downstate by finishing second in singles and doubles action at the two-day sectional tournament hosted by Harper.

Hill reached the finals in singles play before losing to Oakton's Roger Junge 6-1, 6-4.

Richter and Sanders also lost to Oakton in doubles as John Griffen and Bob Widner took 6-1, 6-3 set victories.

The first four singles finishers and top two doubles teams qualify out of this first sectional ever held in Illinois. Formerly, teams went straight to the regional.

Hill earned a bye in the opening round on Monday. Then he stopped Oakton's Bruce Bozelka (6-3, 7-5) and Wright's Roy Kizyma (6-4, 4-6, 6-4) to reach the finals.

Richter and Sanders posted a pair of wins before dropping the championship match. They handled Oakton's Don Lundeman and Mike Pierce (6-3, 6-2) and Triton's Dave Winter and DeWayne Beck (4-6, 6-4, 6-3).

"They were surprising," said Harper head coach Roy Kearns of his doubles team. "I didn't expect it from them."

Kearns had hoped to get two doubles teams into the finals. However, his top twosome of Jeff Rud and Curtis Anderson was shocked in the quarterfinals by Oakton's Griffen and Widner 6-4, 1-6, 6-4. They got past Wright's John Rotella and Rich McCullum 6-3, 6-0.

The other singles player — John McGowan — received a bye in the opening round. Wright's Keith Jones then stopped his bid 6-3, 3-6, 6-4.

Hockey playoffs continue; Elk Grove in 3-2 triumph

Playoffs are underway this week at the Arlington Ice Spectrum to determine the high school hockey league champion. In a game on Tuesday, Elk Grove defeated Barrington, 3-2, in sudden death overtime.

The winning goal was scored by Larry Mitsch. He had provided Elk Grove with a 2-0 lead after Mike Tucker's first Grenadier goal. But John Pratt and Tony Excell scored for Barrington in the third period, calling for the overtime.

Elk Grove advances to Saturday's 6 p.m. title game against either Palatine or Prospect which play at 7 p.m. tonight in the Spectrum. Saturday's consolation game is set for 4 p.m.

The final regular season standings showed Elk Grove on top with a 21-4-3 record followed by Palatine 21-5-2 and Barrington 21-6-1. Prospect qualified for playoffs by fashioning a 17-9-2 record.

Bringing up the rear were Fremd 11-15-2, Crystal Lake 9-16-3, Forest View 5-22-1 and Wauconda 0-28-0.

The league's two top-ranked scorers were both from Palatine. Mark Langer had 35 goals, 29 assists and 64 points.

Dan McSweeney scored 34 goals and 28 assists for 62 points. Rounding out the top five were Prospect's Terry Cunningham 38-20-58, Prospect's Jerry Weber 33-21-54 and Barrington's Tim Pohl 23-30-53.

In last week's final regular season games, Elk Grove beat Prospect, 6-4, behind two goals by Mitsch plus one apiece from Jim Pecorelli, Bob Morita, Mike Walsh and Rob Goeke. Weber had two Prospect goals while Dick Doel and Bill Iverson scored one each.

Fremd was a 7-1 winner over Wauconda. Gerry Dudziak shot a hat trick and Jim Duich had two goals. Mitch Gullett and Bill Costello got credit for Fremd's last goals.

Two goals apiece by Pete Sparazio and Jim Ryan lifted Forest View into a 4-4 tie with Crystal Lake. Al Sundberg's goal was all Palatine could muster against Barrington in a 5-1 loss.

Cougars coming—thanks to Hizzoner!

Late in February, media people from throughout Chicagoland gathered for a Chicago Fire press party.

On hand during the festivities was Red Rush, former baseball, football and basketball announcer and former resident of Mount Prospect.

He was telling all who would listen that (a) Harv Schmidt was about to leave the University of Illinois basketball job and (b) that the Cougars were going to make the playoffs.

Having connections with both (Casey, his son, is a basketball player for the Illini and Red is the play-by-play man on Channel 32 and 44 for the Cougars) didn't phase some of his listeners. Schmidt's departure was a good bet, but the Cougars weren't.

History has proved the always outspoken and sometimes controversial announcer a perfect prognosticator. Schmidt's out and the Cougars are in.

However, even old Red couldn't have predicted in February, March or even April that the home ice for the Cougars during the second-round playoffs would be in his old hometown, Mount Prospect.

As most who follow professional hockey already know, the Randhurst Twin Ice Arena will host the semi-final round of the World Hockey Association playoff series between Chicago and Toronto. At least the third and fourth games of the series (Sunday and Tuesday) will be there.

Due to the much publicized problem of the Peter Pan show occupying the International Amphitheatre, the Cougars were without home ice until late last week. Then, luckily for the Cougars and their fans, a very important man in Mount Prospect happened to be listening to the radio.

Mayor Robert Teichert heard a sports-cast late Wednesday evening that the Cougars might have to play in Vancouver. British Columbia Being an avid hockey fan, Teichert knew how he'd feel if after following a team all season it would have to play the championship series in some distant locale. So, early the following morning, he called Jordan Kaiser, half of the ownership of the team, with an idea.

He told Kaiser of the new sports complex and offered to do everything in his power to help keep the Chicago team where it belonged—close to home.

"It seemed a shame for sports fans to lose the season's most important games," said Teichert. "I had been to the Randhurst facility on a number of occasions. The arena building was tops in every regard, except for the limited seating capacity.

"I acted on impulse and felt I spoke for the community and our village officials. Knowing the rink operators, I thought they would also cooperate."

Prior to Teichert's phone call, Walter and Jordan Kaiser tried in vain to find an adequate temporary home within a reasonable distance of Chicago. In reviewing the potential sites, Randhurst had been considered but was ruled out because the seating capabilities were initially reported as substantially less.

"I bet we talked to at least a dozen (cities)," said Walter in discussing the other sites considered. "As far west as Vancouver and as far east as Springfield, Mass."

Then they talked to Teichert and decided to take a look at the arena's facilities. They agreed it was big league in every way except for seating capacity. Pressed for an immediate decision because of the league, they decided that they'd play at Randhurst despite the obvious loss of revenue.

Seating capacity will be between 2500 and 3000, depending on how many temporary seats can be installed.

"Frankly, it's an absolute losing proposition financially, but our goal had been to keep the Cougars in Chicago," said Jordan. "We held out until it appeared that all possibilities were exhausted."

"I can't tell you how encouraging it was to have a spokesman for a major municipality feel the same concern we did and find rink owners willing to go along and adjust their schedules at the last moment," he added.

Season ticket holders, numbering about 2000, will have purchased most of the playoff tickets before today. Any remaining will be on sale today at the Cougars' downtown office.

A full house ("I'm sure it's going to be plenty loud," says Walter.) could be the difference in the series for the Cougars, who are tied at 1-1 with the Toros in the best of seven playoffs.

Playing on a regulation sized rink ("The actual ice surface is larger than the Amphitheatre," says Walter. "And it's at least 10 feet longer than the stadium.") before possibly all Cougar fans could make it one of the all-time "home court" advantages.

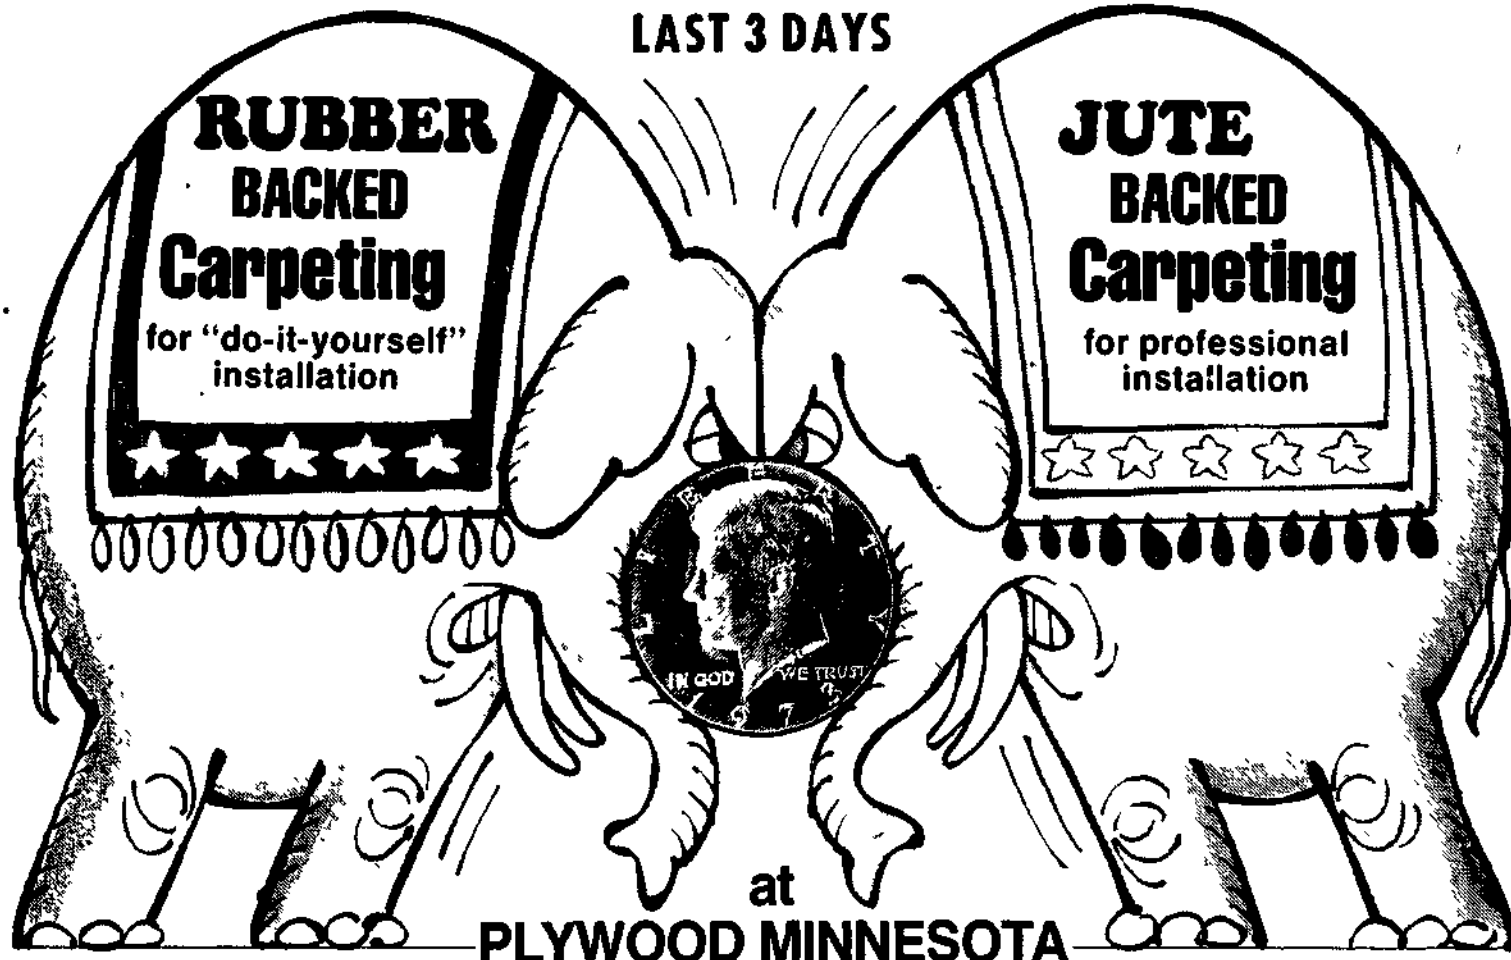

Maybe the Cougars will bring to Chicago a championship its sports fans have sought for so many years. And if it comes about, some thanks must go to Hizzoner... And I don't mean Dick Daley.

THE BEST IN Sports

Arlington Tennis Club prepares for season

The Arlington Tennis Club's new season is about to start.

The club will run eight small, weekend tournaments of various types. In these the matches will generally be 10 game pro-sets, thus tying up the courts as little as possible and still providing quite a bit of tennis.

The club, as usual, will run the Pad-dock Tennis Tournament on Labor Day weekend. This is one of the largest three-day tournaments in the nation. The tournament chairman this year is Mel Timmons.

The club also has an active Challenge Ladder posted at the Arlington High School courts. It consists of 100 men and around 60 women. A person attempts to move up the ladder by challenging and beating those above him.

The Arlington Tennis Club is one of 12 teams in the North and West Suburban Tennis League. Competition is held in Men's A, Men's B, Women's and Junior divisions. Last summer our women's team and men's B teams won the North division, but both lost to Hinsdale in the championships.

The officers of the club are: John Gardner, President; Dick Adashek, Vice-President; Joe Kafka, Treasurer; Reuben Conrad, Secretary. The board of directors of the club consists of Mel Timmons, Chairman, Dave Bone, Mel Haycraft, Royal Smart, Terry Zmrhal, Polly Laffey, Fred Ruprecht, Gardner, Adashek, and Kafka.

Anyone interested in joining the Arlington Tennis Club should contact John Gardner at 1114 N. Patton, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60004.

Membership fees are $6.00 for a single person, $8.00 for a family, and $1.00 for a Junior, 18 and under.

Viking netmen win pair

Fremd's tennis team, one of the best in the Mid-Suburban League, showed two of the three teams it played Saturday that it can be tough in the clutch.

Participating in the DeKalb Invitational, the Vikings of Coach Rick Gablenz stopped Geneva and Freeport, both by 3-2 scores. DeKalb ruined a perfect day by beating the Palatine entrants 4-1. This showing lifted the Vikings to a 6-2 overall record.

Against Geneva, Fremd had two singles wins and one from doubles. Rich Courtney won at second singles over Jamie Heinz (6-3, 3-6, 6-2) and Mike Lincoln took third singles from Gary Mann (6-1, 6-0).

Steve Adashek and Chris Harris stopped Phil Johnson and Mark Larson (6-2, 7-6) at second doubles.

Losing were Chris Laffey to Doug Putz

(7-6, 6-2) and Tom Jensen and Bob Morris to Jeff Sharp and Charlie Steinke (6-3, 6-2).

The same trio accounted for victories against Freeport — Courtney over Cary Twyman (6-2, 6-4), Lincoln over Linn Brei (6-1, 6-0) and Adashek-Harris over Don Foster and Kevin Gibbs (6-3, 6-4).

Laffey fell to Greg Kuntz (6-3, 6-7, 6-0) and Jensen-Norris lost to Don Warz and Kevin McGinty (6-4, 6-3).

Adashek and Harris helped their team avoid a shutout against the hosts with their victory over Rod Read and Randy Devine (6-0, 6-1).

The losses came like this:

Courtney to Eric Rossing (4-6, 6-0, 6-2), Lincoln to Roger Nelson (6-0, 6-3), Dan Seeley to Dale Brew (6-3, 6-1) and Jensen-Norris to Paul Kimble and Brian Schaeffer (6-0, 3-6, 7-6).

Final team totals were Maine North 11, Warren 9, Dundee 7 and Wheeling 3.

Playing first singles, Jenner won each of his three matches in three sets. He beat Warren's Rod Tiernan, 6-4, 4-6 and 6-3; Wheeling's Mike Martinez, 7-5, 3-6 and 6-1; and Dundee's Paul Beyer, 3-6, 6-3 and 7-5.

At third singles, Williger beat Warren's Jim Dugen, 7-5 and 6-2; Wheeling's Morty Knutilla, 6-0 and 6-1; and Dundee's Ron Jare, 5-7, 6-1 and 6-0.

Peariman and Jaffe took their first doubles points from Warren's Randy Sloan and Dave Bell, 6-3 and 7-6; Wheeling's Shawn Folkes and Hal Morris, 6-3 and 6-2; and Dundee's Andy Snow and Pete Oatman, 6-1 and 7-5.

Maine's other points came from two different doubles teams, each of which had one win. Norm Maaschoff and Dave Hunter beat Wheeling's Matt Knupp and Kevin McGover in three sets, 6-7, 6-3 and 6-1. Paul Kotoed and Carl Geppert beat Dundee's Randy Jones and Bruce Marcus, 6-0 and 6-1.

Wheeling had two singles points from Martinez who beat Dundee's Beyer, 6-1 and 6-1 and Warren's Tiernan, 4-6, 6-3 and 6-0. Mike McMahon stopped Maine North's John Vames, 6-1 and 6-2, for the Wildcats' last team point.

Lions just miss tennis perfection

St. Viator captured its first tennis dual meet in the Suburban Catholic Conference Tuesday.

The Lions humbled visiting Montini 5-0 as four of the five matches were shut-outs.

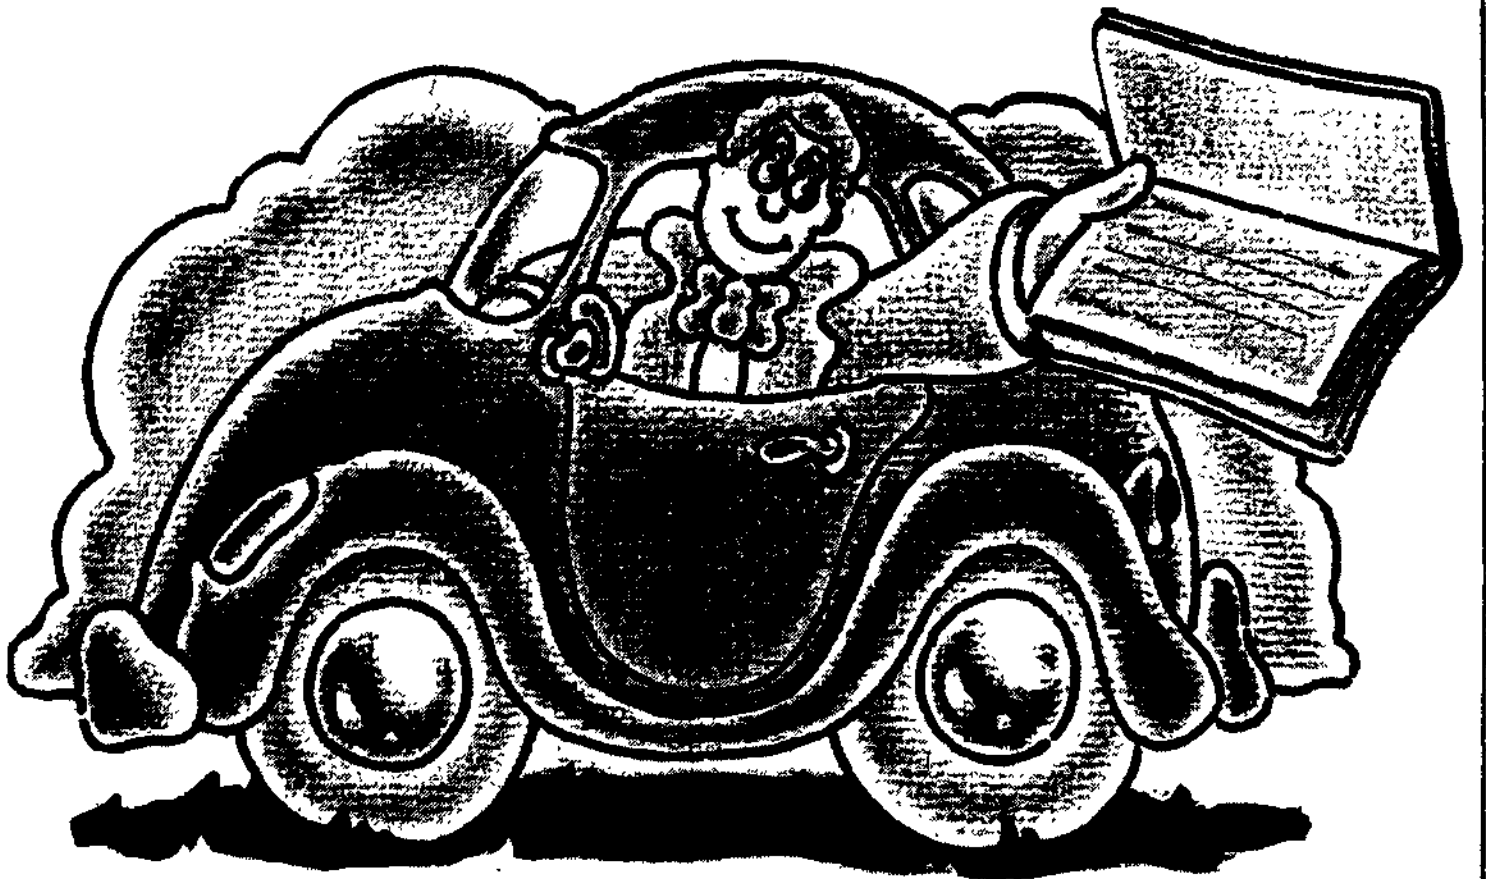

Tom Wenzel and Jeff Davenport posted perfect 6-0, 6-0 victories over Mike Castenhole and Jim McNamara, respectively.

The doubles teams did the same. Don Barnak and Jim Bernardini blanked Mark Granscio and Ron Pudlo as did Greg Casciaro and Tony Stallone over Jim Bakas and Jim Schaeffer.

Only Pat Fleming had to work extra hard before winning 6-1, 6-3 over Cliff Strain.

The Lions are 3-4 overall.

Will meat tenderizer tenderize the stomach lining?

My father and I have been in dispute for quite a while over the use of a product to tenderize meat. My father thinks that if it tenderizes meat it can also tenderize a person's stomach. Is that true? I won't comment on the controversies surrounding all the various ingredients in tenderizers, but none of these really relate to tenderizing the stomach.

Our stomach is protected from tenderizing. The best tenderizer in the world is the acid pepsin juice formed normally by the stomach. The hydrochloric acid and the enzyme will start the initial digestion of any meat we eat, breaking it down into smaller chemical units. Its action helps to convert solid meat into a slush before it can even leave the stomach.

The acid pepsin juice in large quantities will digest areas of the small intestine just outside the stomach causing a duodenal ulcer. Or, if you have a faulty closure mechanism at the top of the stomach the acid pepsin juice will regurgitate into the lower esophagus causing "heartburn" or an ulcer. This can happen with hiatal hernia.

The doctor says

THE STOMACH IS coated with a tough, thick layer of mucus that protects the cells of the stomach lining from the acid pepsin juice. It likewise protects the stomach from a lot of things we eat. So, I think that one danger concerning meat tenderizers can be forgotten.

If you are worried about the adverse effects of any tenderizer, you can always tenderize meat by marinating it. Soaking it in vinegar or wine softens the tough connective tissue and makes it tender. Grinding meat (for example, round steak to make hamburger) also breaks up the tough fibers. Neither wine nor vinegar will hurt you if used to tenderize meat before cooking it. Any alcohol present will be destroyed in the cooking process. You can marinate any meat or poultry.

Incidentally, the longer a meat is cooked at low temperature, the more tender it will become. The persistent low heat will break down the tough fibers and do the job for you.

This is in regard to victims of arthritis using nylon knit or Spandex nylon gloves. I have two friends who are using the nylon Isotoner driving gloves. One wears them at night also. The first friend says her hands are not as stiff and painful in the mornings and just recently bought the Isotoner in Isotoner. Are these really helpful?

I have received an enormous amount of mail from patients with stiff hands from arthritis who claim that they are. I believe them. Any of the stretch gloves that you can find seem to provide good relief for many patients. Many people have had trouble finding stretch gloves. Some have tried other things, including loosely wrapping their hands in plastic, which is claimed to help. Others have used stretchable garments, including panty hose material, and claimed to have benefited from it. Apparently any stretchy material helps provide relief. Perhaps keeping the hands warm also helps, although just warm gloves have not seemed to produce the same good effects as the stretch material or stretch gloves.

The search for mental health

Women aren't the only ones who do family laundry

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, a fully accredited 150-bed psychiatric hospital widely known for its intensive programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

Who did your family's grocery shopping this week? Who did the laundry? The cooking?

Dr. Lawrence Hatterer, associate clinical professor of psychiatry at Cornell Medical School and attending psychoanalyst at the Payne Whitney Clinic in New York, said that with each new generation of married couples there is more and more sharing of domestic chores and responsibilities — once the total domain of women.

"Men are being told by women or they are telling women themselves that they're willing to share roles with them — minimally perhaps — but there is a general diffusion of responsibilities.

"The traditional and major distinction between men and women in their life roles has been that women stay home, take care of the children and are responsible for the nurturing of the family and bringing it along via a vis the family's emotional needs.

"Men are seen as those who go out, work and provide. They are aggressive and play the dominant role in the family. But we know for a fact that this role assignment has changed through time and the roles are not really that well-cut.

"We are seeing throughout the world — and more so in America — that women are moving out of the home sooner; that women do not see their role exclusively as being nurturers, wives and mothers but have taken on a new identity — that of the worker. So women have three roles: wife, mother and worker. That means men must share some of the responsibilities of the women."

HATTERER stresses the importance of sharing in a workable marriage. "There must be a degree of awareness and willingness to give and take. You can say in any marriage the marriage is based on this capacity for sharing.

"The problem lies in those situations where people turn on one another and become destructive. This happens when men de-feminize their women and women emasculate their men along the axes of different areas of conflict.

"That is," Hatterer said, "when the woman says to her husband that he must do certain things and then her husband puts her down for not being feminine enough. Then the woman says the husband is not masculine enough in other areas and she withdraws herself sexually.

"Yet women are finding it easier to ask a man to do things which once may have been thought to be emasculating. Similarly women are less concerned about being archetypal women and they're willing to do roles at one time thought masculine. This is appropriate since our society is changing its concept of what is masculine and what is feminine.

"We must educate people to the necessity for equity in all human relationships," Hatterer said. "We could say the whole element of women's liberation — of many liberation movements today — are essentially trying to bring about equity.

"YOU CAN use simple logic. If a wife has so many chores to do along with her work outside the home and the husband sees that he's expecting her to contribute not only to the home but to economics, then, let's say, he refuses to go out for dinner and spend a few extra dollars when she's contributing the money, he's not being equitable.

"It sounds simplistic but it's that kind of inequity that the intelligent woman is not going to stand by and take. She'll ultimately get back at her husband. Similarly I think husbands have to be understood in that there are many greater demands made on them in terms of masculinity and performance.

"Unfortunately," Hatterer added, "men feel responsible for success in too many areas so I think there should be some understanding of men's liberation and what's imposed on them."

San Francisco-minted silver dollars have good profit potential

Investors in the stock market have long realized the potential of "charting" better issues of stock. Basically, the assumption is that many stock prices are cyclical in nature — they reach new highs, drop back, advance and drop back again depending on a host of external factors.

Obviously, the investor deems it to his advantage to buy in during the down side of the cycle, then ride the stock to its crest and sell when it peaks. The two critical factors being: when do you know the issue has reached the bottom and what are the chances of recovery?

Instead of stock, let us consider the cyclical theory as it might apply to silver dollars of San Francisco. For years these coins were all but neglected by the investment arm of the main stream of numismatics. But almost overnight, two years ago, people began to realize just how difficult it was to acquire these dollars in choice brilliant uncirculated condition.

AS A RESULT, the prices for these "blue chips" of the Morgan dollar series began to skyrocket. And in many cases, tripling or quadrupling of value was experienced. A trend that continued for 12 to 18 months with little or no change.

Collecting coins
by Mort Reed

Consequently, prices began to settle then fall as everyone tried to sell at the top, fearing reversal of the market. This momentum gathered steam and, as a result, prices for many of these dollar coins are 20-to-100 per cent lower than they were last year.

Have they bottomed out? All indications point to an affirmative answer. The 1883-S for example, is a difficult coin to find in extremely fine condition but it reached a wholesale high of $300-$325. Today, that same coin can be purchased for $195 retail, and it would appear that these coins have reached their lowest level and can only go up when the cycle begins again.

THE 1888-S, 1889-S, 1890-S and 1894-S have all experienced the same fluctuation and are all presently at their lowest ebb. But keep in mind that these coins are scarce and seldom if ever available in quantity. They are popular with thousands of collectors and they have a remarkable record for stability prior to the last upsurge. For that reason the time has come for investors to seriously consider the "S" mint Morgan dollars as a series with an excellent short term profit potential. Don't sell their future short.

Want your old coins appraised?

Every wonder how much your old coins are worth?

Almost everyone has a few old coins hidden away somewhere. Now you can learn their value by bringing them to the annual Spring Coin Festival of the Morton Grove Coin Club.

Admission is free. The show will be held from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday, April 28, at the Leaning Tower YMCA, 6300 W. Touhy Ave., Niles.

There'll be a special "coin origin and evaluation booth" at which club members will examine your coins. At no charge, they'll tell you in what approximate range their value falls.

And if you have any foreign coins whose origins you don't know, they'll try to identify them for you. The only restriction is that in fairness to others, there will not be time to appraise entire collections or large accumulations.

The show also will have a bourse section, in which coin dealers, collector supplies and numismatic gifts will be showing their wares. There will also be educational exhibits of U.S. and foreign coins.

Club members are from all parts of the Skokie Valley and the greater Chicago area. Anyone interested in joining can get more information at the show.

The exposition section will consist of numismatic displays from members and nonmembers alike.

Ample parking will be available, and there will be food services.

The club meets the third Friday of every month in the Oketo Park Fieldhouse, 8950 Oketo, Morton Grove. Membership is open to anyone with a sincere interest in numismatics. For more information, see any club member at the show.

New issue to salute horse racing
by BERNADINE M. RECHNER

The U.S. Postal Service will issue a 10-cent commemorative stamp May 4 saluting the sport of horse racing. First day ceremonies will be held at Churchill Downs in Louisville, Ky., in connection with the 100th running of the Kentucky Derby.

Organized horse racing in the United States dates to 1665, when the first royal governor of New York laid out a track on Long Island in the vicinity of the present New York tracks of Belmont Park, Aqueduct and Jamaica.

Making his debut as a stamp designer is Henry Koehler, noted sporting artist and portraitist who has done many paintings of race track scenes.

The stamp will be printed on the Andreotti Gravure press with 50 stamps to a pane and six plate numbers.

Collectors desiring first-day cancellations should send their requests to Horse Racing Stamp, Postmaster, Louisville, Ky. 40201, enclosing the proper remittance, which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed.

THE SECOND in a series of privately prepared COMPEX '74 souvenir cards will further commemorate the centenary of the Universal Postal Union, the theme of this year's Combined Philatelic Exhibition of Chicago and Land.

The card depicts the 5-cent Zachary Taylor stamp issued in June, 1875 to meet reduced foreign mail rates agreed to at the Berne Congress in 1874. In the background are various handstamps and manuscript rate cancellations to show the progression from these cancellations to a finalized postage stamp.

The souvenir card may be purchased at COMPEX '74 during the exhibition May 24, 25 and 26 or by mail for $1 each postpaid from COMPEX '74, 216 LaSalle Hotel, Chicago, Ill., 60602.

THE IRISH Post Office will issue its 14th stamp in the Europa series on April 29.

The Conference of European Postal and Telecommunications Administrations consists of 26 countries of which 21 countries are expected to issue Europa stamps in 1974.

The Posts Commission of CEPT has decided to replace, for a trial period, the symbolic design traditionally used on Europa stamps with a common precise theme. The theme chosen for the next three years are: 1974 — Sculpture, 1975 — Painting and 1976 — Craftwork.

Real Estate Review

PART ONE

The Northwest Suburbs Marketplace for Real Estate

Homes • Property
Apartments • Rentals
Commercial and Industrial Farm Property

Robert N. McGuire, president of Continental, is the third generation head of McGuire & Orr, founded in 1893 and one of Continental's foundations. He is the past president of the Illinois and the Evanston-North Shore Board of Realtors, plus Illinois Realtor of the Year in 1966. McGuire is active in civic and professional real estate affairs and with the National Association of Realtors as a director and member of many committees.

Featuring this week:

Continental Real Estate, Inc.

NORTHWEST OFFICES

150 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates
259 E. Rand Rd., Mount Prospect
1545 Waukegan Rd., Glenview

882-0700

Beverly D. Harter guides the Glenview sales staff. She is a graduate of Northwestern University's School of Social Psychology.

Henry G. Zander III is in charge of all north and northwest offices. He is a director and past president of the Evanston-North Shore Board of Realtors and chairman of its ethics committee for the past two years. Zander is currently district vice president and MLS committee co-chairman of the Illinois Association of Realtors.

John O. (Jack) McCabe, GRI, has served two terms as president of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors and is a director of the Illinois state association. This third-generation McCabe in the real estate business is a member of the MLS and professional standards committees of the National Association of Realtors.

"Professional guidance . . . personal service."

This is the everyday practice at all offices of Continental Real Estate. The firm was founded on the principle that service for buyers and sellers is its prime objective.

To this end, sales representatives are constantly being trained in all phases of real estate by a full time training department. These professionals work under a strict code of ethics to assure fair services for clients.

Charter Westlake residents choose varying townhomes

Last fall Hoffman Rosner Corp., a construction and development firm, introduced a new concept in townhome designs at its Westlake community in Glendale Heights. The new line of attached homes, known as New Dimension Townhomes, were designed to meet the "first home" needs of young families and singles who preferred the space, privacy and equity of home ownership to rent receipts, as well as older couples with grown children who no longer need a large house.

In mid-March, James Katak, sales manager for the New Dimension Townhomes, officially welcomed the first group of owners to move into their new homes with a champagne toast.

Each of the charter families acquired a different unit which, Katak commented, suggests that the Hoffman Homes division has done an effective job providing the right variety of plans to meet the different needs and budgets of different buyers.

Timothy Irons, a bachelor, selected the Aspen model, a two-bedroom unit. Irons, 26, is a supervisor of warehouse scheduling for General Electric Co. in Chicago.

David and Geryl Bischoff, a working couple who visited the models on recommendation of another Hoffman Homes owner, selected the Cascade with a third bedroom that can be used as an ultra-private den or study.

Bischoff, 28, is a claims authorizer with the Social Security Administration. Geryl, 22, is a secretary for Hanover Insurance Co.

Last of the trio of first residents of the new section are Robert and Donna Jean Johnson, parents of a two-year-old daughter. This family selected the Darby, largest of the new townhome units, a three-bedroom model. Johnson, 24, works for Core Enterprises in Lake Bluff. Donna Jean, also 24, is a homemaker.

New Dimension Townhomes are priced from about $28,000 to $31,000.

Furnished models and the community clubhouse are open daily until 6 p.m.

Realtor Week seminar examines legislative and judicial climates

The survival of extinction of the real estate broker in the changing legislative and judicial climates was examined during a special Realtor Week seminar in Chicago on Wednesday.

Presented by the Chicago Real Estate Board, the program featured speakers from across the nation. "The Government is Stealing Your Business," was the title of the opening address by Larry Thurston, president of Heritage Realtors of Dayton, Ohio.

The operations of a brokerage office while "Living Under a Consent Decree" was explained by Donald Grempler, president of Grempler Realty, Inc. of Baltimore, Md.

H. Jackson Pontius, executive vice president of the National Association of Realtors discussed the direction and many services available to members of the National Association, and William D. North, the Association's legal counsel, specified the legal responsibilities of a broker whose salesmen maintain an independent contractor status.

The whys and wherefores of error and omissions insurance was explained by Vincent Nuccio, president of Equity General Agents, Inc., of Los Angeles.

A full explanation of Illinois' new real estate broker and salesman's licensing law was given by Melvin M. Landau, newly-appointed real estate commissioner for the State of Illinois.

Kunkel representatives attend HFL convention

A national public service campaign on what people can do to make their homes and lives safer was announced at the annual Homes For Living Network convention held recently in San Diego.

The HFL Network is a national marketing network of Realtors comprised of over 900 real estate offices in all 50 states and Puerto Rico. Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, is the exclusive Des Plaines HFL Network representative. Attending the convention from Kunkel were

The campaign will be observed during the month of May as "National Homes For Living Safety Month." It will include free booklets on "How To Be Unpopular With Burglars," "How To Protect Yourself" and "Ouch, It Hurts!" on first aid. Each of the booklets discusses in detail recommendations made by authorities in home safety and law enforcement.

George Shafran, president of HFL, speaking at the opening general session of the convention, discussed current trends and problems affecting the real estate industry.

He noted that real estate this year is being frustrated by a tight money market and energy crisis.

Shafran attributes present conditions to three factors. One, "Money is harder to tap. But, I don't think it's been a matter of availability of money, but what it costs to secure."

Second, Shafran said that the costs of homes have been rising on the average of 6 to 10 per cent a year, in some cases higher, and "for many Americans, the cost of housing has changed families plans of moving for the present."

His third factor was the boom in condominiums which has greatly slowed down the residential sales market.

Shafran said he sees a turn in the market, "but a slow one for residential sales." "It's starting to break open now," he said, "and before long the worst will be behind us. Today, we must be top-notch in management and executive ability, to weather any storm."

Principal speakers during the convention were sports great Jesse Owens and Alfred Fleischman, author, lecturer and senior partner of the national public relations counseling firm, Fleischman-Hillard, Inc., of St. Louis.

The more than 45 hours of sessions and workshops during the convention centered on such topics as the energy crisis, and serving the relocation needs of industry. Representatives from several leading equity purchase companies discussed their role in facilitating mass corporate transfers by purchasing the equity of transferee's homes.

Announce division leaders in Kole Real Estate Contest

Three-fourths of the way through the sales contest among Kole Real Estate, Ltd. salespeople, leaders in the three divisions have been announced by James S. Regan, director of training.

Staffs of Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Wheeling and Barrington are in the competition.

Blue division leaders (associates with a year or more of sales experience) are Craig Kral, Wheeling, first; Paul Sorce, Rolling Meadows, second, and Terry Alind, Des Plaines, third.

Red division top scorers (sales associates with six months to one year's experience) are Anne Georges, Des Plaines, first; Al Winkelhake, Palatine, second, and Vince Pennino, Arlington Heights, third.

Ranking first, second and third in the White division (those with less than six months sales experience) are Mary Jo Puhl, Des Plaines; Anne Rogers, Rolling Meadows; and Jane Theeke, Rolling Meadows.

Final winners of the first contest will be announced early in May, and all sales people will start with a clean slate in the second contest which begins May 1. The third competition will start Sept. 1. Scoring is based on sales made and listings which have been sold.

In addition to three prize winners in each division, there will be prizes awarded for the most improved sales person in each of the three divisions in the second and third contests, determined by the difference in point totals from one contest to the next.

Managers of the seven residential sales offices are competing on an office-to-office basis with cash prizes awarded to the manager of the top scoring office at the end of each contest, and an additional prize for the most improved office in the second and third competitions.

First prize winners in each contest may take their choice of a weekend for two at Pheasant Run, a $125 gift certificate from Marshall Field and Co. or a 12" black and white solid state Panasonic TV.

Second prize winners will choose from among a Hitachi portable cassette recorder, a $75 gift certificate from Marshall Field and Co. or a case of wine.

Third prize winners have a choice of a $50 gift certificate, a pocket calculator or a Tissot watch.

Procon and Technip to build oil refinery in Portugal

Procon Inc., a subsidiary of UOP (Universal Oil Products Company), and Technip will build Europe's largest grassroots oil refinery with an initial capacity of 224,000 BPSD for Petrosul in Portugal.

The total project, including tankage and other equipment already purchased by Petrosul, is expected to cost approximately $250,000,000.

Procon, headquartered in Des Plaines, announced that its French subsidiary, Procofrance S.A., Paris, and Technip (Compagnie Francaise d'Etudes et de Construction Technip), of Rueil-Malmaison, France, will be equal partners in a contract with Petrosul (Sociedade Portuguesa de Refinacao de Petroleos S.A.R.L.), Lisbon, for the design, engineering, procurement and construction of the refinery at Sines, Portugal, 84 miles south of Lisbon.

Engineering and procurement began immediately after Procon and Technip received a letter of intent from Petrosul on March 29. Site preparation was already in progress. Completion of the refinery is scheduled for July, 1978.

The refinery and support facilities will be part of a planned industrial complex where the Portuguese government and several industrial firms, including Petrosul, will develop chemical plants. Plans also encompass large, deepwater port facilities for oil and bulk cargo, residential communities and a new town in the area.

UOP's Process Division licensed major processes and has provided process engineering for all process units. They include a crude vacuum unit; a Hydrobon-Platforming combination unit; a distillate Unifiner; a vacuum gas oil hydrotreater; an LPG Isomax unit; four Mercox units; a liquefied petroleum gas (LPG) recovery unit and units for amine treating, sulfur recovery and asphalt oxidation.

Technip and Procon will manage detailed engineering, procurement and construction for these units and for support facilities which will include crude and product storage tanks, an in-line blending system, steam and electrical power generation plants and installations for ship, rail, and truck loading.

Lummus Nederland B.V. provided basic engineering design for offsites, utilities and adjacent facilities and acted as interim contractor for preliminary field and procurement activities.

There will be a labor force of approximately 4,000 on the site at the peak of construction activity.

Project financing is being provided primarily by French firms.

Real estate courses start in Arlington on May 6

The Illinois Association of Realtors and Real Estate Education Co. of Chicago will co-sponsor a special course for prospective real estate salesmen in Arlington Heights starting May 6.

Since Oct. 1, the state has required that candidates for salesmen's licenses complete 30 hours of accredited classroom instruction in the basic principles of real estate before being allowed to register to take the state's license examination.

The course in Arlington Heights is part of a program to bring classes to prospective salesmen throughout Illinois, according to Douglas C. Carson, I.A.R. president. Participating local real estate boards are those of Northwest Suburban, Barrington and Lake County.

Classes will be held in Arlington Park Towers on May 6, 7, 9, 13, 14, 16, 20, 21, 23 and 28 from 7 to 10 p.m. Successful completion of the course will enable prospective salesmen to register prior to the June 14 deadline to take the real estate salesman's license examination in July.

Tuition of $100 includes textbooks and other classroom materials, according to Richard Herb, vice president of Real Estate Education Co.

Further information and registration can be obtained from the participating local real estate boards, the Illinois Association of Realtors, Illinois Realtors Plaza, Springfield, 62703, or from Real Estate Education Co., 500 N. Dearborn, Chicago 60610.

Computer helps Gladstone analyze ownership costs

Whether to rent or buy is a question that has no simple yes or no answer, because each family has an individual li-feestyle that helps determine the decision. During Realtor Week April 21-27 Gladstone, Realtors has put its computer to work in helping their experienced staff of sales associates in the Des Plaines, Mount Prospect and Elk Grove Village offices guide families into the right move.

Home ownership costs are analyzed by feeding into the computer information on monthly payments, insurance rates, individual tax brackets and other factors. The answers present a solid basis for making the decision on rental versus buying. This is one of the many free services offered by Gladstone, Realtors, not only during Realtors Week, but all year as well.

As Bob Poltzer, manager of Gladstone, Realtors, points out, "Owning a house, condominium or an apartment is one of the best hedges against inflation. Over the years the value of an American home, including the land on which it sits, has risen at least twice as fast as the rate at which inflation has been eating away at the buying power of dollars saved and invested."

A couple who thinks they have no alternative but to endure living in an apartment with inadequate privacy and other inconveniences for which they are paying $255 a month in rent would do well to use the computer service of Gladstone, Realtors.

Bob Poltzer has just shown his auto mechanic, who was in a rental situation, the way to take that big step of purchasing a condominium or townhouse. The Veterans Administration doesn't require a down payment, and if a couple has saved $1,500 to $2,000, they can purchase a very comfortable home with a conventional mortgage loan.

As Poltzer points out, "Here was a man, newly married, paying $255 a month rent in his apartment and he just had his rug saturated from the overflowing washing machine upstairs. That $255 rent would actually buy him $275 to $300 a month in mortgage payments. In other words, if he paid $300 a month in principal, interest, taxes and insurance, his deduction for taxes would actually reduce his monthly payments $25 to $50."

"That is just one benefit," Poltzer continues. "The buyer gains additional savings in two ways. His monthly mortgage payment gives him a bigger percentage of ownership of his home and reduces his loan balance. If he borrowed $25,000 to $30,000 to buy a home and makes his first year's payments, at the end of the year the amount he has reduced his loan by is actually money in his bank account. The second factor is appreciation. As inflation mounts, the home value historically increased 10% to 15% a year in the suburban areas of Chicago."

Many people formerly investing in other types of securities have turned to real estate as a more solid and profitable investment. Owning real property is something everyone can understand and appreciate.

As leading financial columnist Sylvia Porter recently noted, taking on regular home mortgage payments becomes a form of "forced savings." By contrast, the rent you pay is money spent rather than saved. The renter ends up with nothing to show for the monthly payments.

Gladstone, Realtors will consult with a prospective buyer or with anyone who would like answers on the rent or buy dilemma. However, making the ultimate decision must take into consideration factors of age, income level, job mobility and willingness and capacity to take on a long-term commitment to build a future family nest-egg, individual values and preferences. Getting all personal preferences down on paper will help Gladstone sales associates guide you in finding the right answer.

Poltzer notes, "Even with all these considerations, the odds are that you will own a home over a much greater span of your lifetime than you'll rent. Dollar for dollar, the living space you buy will cost you significantly less than the space you rent."

Park Ridge firm okays marketing plan

STEAMBOAT LAKE, Colo. (UPI) — The Middle Park Land and Cattle Co. said Monday it signed an agreement with the P.I. Corp., Park Ridge, to market in the Chicago area the Colorado firm's 7,000-acre recreational development at Steamboat Lake.

P.I. Corp. is also developing the Padre Isles, a 98-acre resort near Corpus Christi, Tex. It will also be the first condominium developer at Steamboat Lake, which is located 23 miles north of Steamboat Springs.

A spokesman said an intermediate ski area, country club complex and home sites were planned at Steamboat Lake.

Truly fine living in a home designed and built for you.

Board president Sebastian salutes Realtor Week

"A Realtor is more than a real estate broker," says William B. Sebastian, President of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors. "The term (when capitalized) is a registered trademark and an indicator of special qualifications because only a member of the National Association of Realtors can identify himself by that term."

Reviewing the code of ethics during Insurance agents move to Des Plaines

Officials at O'Malley & McKay, Inc., general insurance agents, announced today that the firm will move to new quarters in Des Plaines on Saturday, May 11th. Founded in 1927 by Austin J. O'Malley and John McKay, the company has been headquartered at 222 W. Adams St. in Chicago since 1930. The firm's new offices are in the recently-completed Continental Office Plaza near Touhy Ave. and River Rd. intersection, at 2340 Des Plaines Ave.

Realtor Week, Sebastian pointed out that it was one of the first such codes adopted in the history of American business. "Under its articles," he said, "Realtors pledge fair treatment and the benefit of their total real estate knowledge to both parties of a contract, the buyer and seller."

Sebastian also praised Northwest Suburban Realtors leadership over the years in furthering the institution of private property ownership and speaking out on issues favorable to the ownership of property.

Realtor Week (April 21-27) is not only the time to honor the American Realtor, but also a time to point out the Realtors obligation to all clients — buyer and seller, Sebastian asserted.

"Realtors," he added, "contribute greatly to America's prosperity. They promote property and home ownership, both by business in which they are engaged and by support of favorable legislation. This has made home ownership possible for millions of families who could not previously afford it."

"Real estate means more in the 1970's — and so does the term Realtor."

Robert Starck in Dallas for relocation conference

Robert Starck, president of Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors, is in Dallas this week attending the tenth annual spring conference sponsored by the Employee Relocation Council.

Participating in the two-day conference are corporate employers and representatives from firms that serve the relocated employees. On the program are employee relocation specialists from such firms as Kraft Foods, Owens-Illinois, Inc. and Eastman Kodak Co.

The 1974 Spring Conference will focus on the economic uncertainties facing the relocated employee and employer. Additionally, the program structure will provide the participants with an opportunity to discuss specific problems and potential solutions.

Spring conferences have been held since 1963 to discuss the rapid and efficient relocation of employees. ERREAC is a non-profit organization formed in 1964 by representatives of major corporations that transfer their employees from one location to another and are confronted by the many problems incidental to such transfers, particularly those concerned with assisting the transferee to dispose of his existing home and acquire one at the new location.

"The northwest suburbs could perhaps be called 'bedroom communities,'" said Starck. "Many employees of nationwide corporations reside in these suburbs and commute to Chicago or outlying office complexes, and they are often subject to several transfers during their careers. They expect and need professional real estate service. We have made special efforts to provide this service since 1960."

Starck has offices in Arlington Heights, Hoffman Estates, Mount Prospect, Palatine, and Schaumburg. Additionally, a separate relocation department, staffed by specially trained relocation specialists, is located in the Arlington Heights office. Starck is also an award-winning member of RELO/Inter-city Relocation Service which, according to ERREAC, is the largest relocation service in the world, with almost seven hundred member firms. For the last two years, Starck has received awards for over two million dollars in referral sales.

Established suburbs are regaining popularity

Remodeled existing homes are like used cars during World War II in that they're in great demand.

"The energy crisis is creating a booming housing market for refurbished homes on the fringes of our cities," says Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston, a private mortgage insurance organization.

"Housing in the old suburbs and also along the outer edges of the city is appealing because of the shortage of gasoline and fuel oil. Entire neighborhoods are being upgraded to attract residents of way-out suburbs.

"Proximity to downtown office buildings means less gasoline used by the family car, and the occupants are assured an adequate supply of fuel oil, unlike some new home buyers," Goss notes.

But he warns that more is needed to convince the housewife to leave the distant suburbs.

"She wants a nice neighborhood, and she is seeking those modern conveniences she has grown accustomed to having in the newer suburbs.

"That means she won't look twice at a freshly remodeled home that is standing next to an old wreck featuring peeling paint or broken siding. The entire neighborhood must be renovated at the same time," Goss emphasizes.

Landscaping and perhaps new sod and shrubbery is a must, he points out.

"Ask any housewife who inspects an older home what she doesn't like about it and chances are she'll point emphatically to an old bathroom or an obsolete kitchen.

"New bathroom fixtures and a modern convenience-oriented kitchen make all the difference," Goss observes.

Another housewife concern is where to shop.

"Many shopping areas in the outer-city as well as inner-suburbs are run-down and, quite frankly, they don't have the variety of merchandise you see in most suburban shops," Goss states.

There is a great deal of work to be done if the old suburbs are to achieve their previous popularity.

"Operation Facelift" is the name of the game," Goss concludes.

Larwin townhomes open in Gurnee

Larwin-Illinois has announced the opening of five model townhomes in Gurnee, located about six miles from the Waukegan shores of Lake Michigan and within 10 miles of the Illinois Dunes State Park.

The new community called Rockpointe covers 305 acres and when completed, will include 384 townhomes, plus Club Rockpointe, a recreational facility with game rooms, swimming pool, a separate children's wading pool and a spacious clubhouse with dressing rooms, showers and sauna.

According to Terry T. Bickel, Larwin-Illinois' marketing vice president, the new offerings include four two-story models — two with sliding doors to verandas off the master bedrooms — and a townhome in ranch style with a dramatic vaulted ceiling. Bickel said the new models have garden-view family rooms.

Infrastructure designed to reduce city congestion

The architects who designed it call it the "infrastructure."

It is the basic four-level substructure that will underlie Illinois Center, the $2 billion, 82-acre commercial, residential/recreational development presently rising along the Chicago River and waterfront in downtown Chicago.

The base structure provides for three levels of vehicle traffic: the lower level for truck deliveries, the intermediary level for through traffic and the top level for local traffic. In addition, there will be a deeper level for subway and railroad connections and an exclusive pedestrian concourse situated below the top level.

This pedestrian level will include two major air conditioned, forty-foot-wide passageways leading directly from Grant Park to the Chicago River and from Michigan Avenue to the lakefront.

"The basic concept is the multi-level platform," said architect Joseph Fuji-kawa of Mies Van der Rohe. "We can plug in any kind of tower into that base, whether it's an office building, an apartment building or whatever."

Thus far, five new structures have been "plugged in": twin 30-story office towers, One Illinois Center and Two Illinois Center; the 80-story Standard Oil Building (one of the four tallest structures in the world); the 1,000-room Hyatt Regency Chicago (the first major new downtown hotel to be built in 47 years); and the first component of Harbor Point, a high-rise condominium community, which will eventually total 4,000 living units.

"The infrastructure is what it is all about," said architect John Buentz of the firm of Solomon, Cordwell, Buentz & Associates. The two architectural firms are joint planners for Illinois Center Plaza Venture.

"It involves a vertical organization of space rather than horizontal. Compare it with the traditional support systems, where all access to a building occurs on one, or at most two levels," Buentz said.

"Someone is unloading cabbage at a loading dock. Someone else is arriving at the hotel by cab. Through traffic is streaming by. We've taken the alleys and put them on one level, the guy driving in from the expressway on another and buses and taxis and local traffic on a third."

Buentz noted that other modern planned developments, such as the Place Ville de Marie in Montreal, consist of only two levels — a pedestrian arcade and a top level street. Buildings associated with these new developments still only have two levels of access and only one level for trucks, through traffic and cabs and buses.

In addition, Buentz pointed out, that the most highly developed portion of the Illinois Center development near Michigan Avenue will have direct access on a fifth level to the new distributor subway system to be constructed in the Loop and to the Illinois Central commuter train station that will be extended into the project area.

Both architects stressed the importance of the pedestrian walkway level in providing direct access to the entire development from Grant Park on the south and Michigan Avenue on the west. When the development is completed, it will be possible to walk from the Loop to a new 100-acre land-fill park on Lake Michigan and to a new park along the south bank of the Chicago River without ever having to cross a street. The walkways will also open up onto a six-acre park in the heart of Illinois Center and will be lined with stores, restaurants and theaters, forming the commercial and cultural centers of the development.

At the upper level, the absence of trucks and through traffic will open up the spaces between the structures for plazas and pedestrian ways. The more concentrated office buildings near Michigan Avenue will blend into the residential community being developed along the lakefront, which will eventually provide a permanent population of some 35,000 people in the heart of downtown Chicago.

When completed, Illinois Center will include 9 million square feet of office space, 14,000 residential units, 4,500 hotel rooms and 1.25 million square feet of retail space. Illinois Center is expected to contribute over $50 million a year to the city in property taxes alone.

Despite the scope of development, the multi-level base will make it possible for more than 75 per cent of the 83-acre site to remain open at the plaza level for parks, local streets and esplanades.

"This project is of such a scale," Fuji-kawa said, "that it should be a positive contribution to downtown Chicago, just as Place Ville de Marie has made its contribution to downtown Montreal and Rockefeller Center was a shot in the arm for mid-town Manhattan."

And the "infrastructure" is likely to be imitated in new planned developments all around the country.

ILLINOIS CENTER'S multi-level transportation network is designed to reduce congestion. The upper level streets will carry local traffic; the intermediate level is designed to carry three arterial streets through the project; a lower level street system is designed for delivery trucks and loading docks, and the pedestrian arcade between the intermediate and upper levels will link all buildings. A distributor subway system will connect Illinois Center with other downtown locations. The subway station will be located under Stetson Avenue between the Standard Oil Building and the Prudential Building and the commercial pedestrian arcade.

Larwin introduces Arcadia

Larwin's Arcadia townhome at Horizon offers plenty of privacy for individual family members and a layout designed for relaxed living and easy maintenance.

Parents can get away from it all in their upstairs master bedroom suite which with its own sitting alcove, outdoor balcony, walk-in closet and full private bath becomes a unique "home within the townhome," said Terry T. Bickel, the company's marketing vice president.

The Arcadia, with an exterior of rough sawn cedar-finish masonry, has a covered side entrance opening into a classic foyer with a guest closet. The foyer serves as central core to first-floor hallways and rooms.

The rectangular living room with a volume cathedral ceiling is situated through a passageway from the foyer and embraces sliding glass doors which open onto the rear patio area, affording more space and opportunities to entertain large groups of guests who may flow casually from inside to outside.

There is a full formal dining room, and the Arcadia kitchen is large enough for informal meals. The kitchen, which comes with range, dishwasher and waste disposal is well appointed with wall-hung and floor-mounted storage cabinets.

Also on the first floor are two additional bedrooms and a full bath.

The Arcadia is priced from $42,490.

The lessor was Lederer Realty Company. Term rental was $30,000.

Gymastics Unlimited leased nearly 3,000 square feet at 1231 East Remington Road, Schaumburg, with a right of first refusal for adjoining space. Thomas Roelle of Arthur Rubloff & Co.'s Oak Brook office was co-broker with Bill Lederer. The lessor was Unitai, Inc.

Older neighborhoods are recycled for singles, elderly

Remember the older suburbs — the first perimeter of stores and residences just beyond our busy downtown streets?

"These neighborhoods have often been forgotten as people migrated away from the city into distant and newer suburban developments."

"But 1974 marks the turning point for older suburban areas; this is the year of recycling," observes Marshall C. Dennison, president and chief executive officer of Associated Mortgage Companies, Inc., a national real estate financing and servicing organization based in Philadelphia.

"Motivating this trend are energy-derived deficiencies of certain construction materials for large-scale new projects plus fuel shortages which draw people back to close-in communities," Dennison says.

He points out that rehabilitation is already underway in the proximate suburbs. Decaying storefronts and run-down shopping complexes are being transformed into modern neighborhood shopping centers.

"Energy-conscious builders emphasize window placement, insulation, direction of sunlight and roof contours in their recycling efforts," Dennison adds.

"And in those communities where traditional or historical values are attached to existing structures, renovation proceeds along the same basic design so as to preserve the building's heritage."

Dennison forecasts that by mid-year these new neighborhood centers will be focal points for community living, becoming "mini-cities" or "micro-polises" complete with shopping malls, office buildings, community centers, recreation and entertainment facilities.

"Further, these centers are often within walking or biking distance of many shoppers and will therefore place a premium on walk-ways, bicycle paths and bike parking areas."

Dennison notes that the profile of today's close-in suburbanite pictures mainly the older and younger end of the population spectrum, the senior citizen and the single apartment dweller.

"To accommodate the elderly, builders will feature sheltered rest areas, ramps and escalators and gathering spots where retired people can relax together."

"Attracting the younger crowd will be mod boutiques, tennis courts, swimming pools, restaurants and movie theaters," he explains.

Dennison predicts that as office buildings are renovated within these micro-polises, they will become the site of one-stop living styles — park or walk and work, shop, eat and socialize with friends.

"Mini-cities' burgeoning popularity will also have a definitive effect on the rehabilitation of surrounding neighborhoods. Initially, structures within the immediate peripheral blocks will be renovated, then gradually most of these suburbs, including apartments and homes, will join the renaissance of '74."

"Consequently, families will be induced back to recycled, close-in areas, eliminating today's long drives to regional shopping centers as well as to work."

"And at the heart and stimulus of this newly evolving community life style will be its micropolis," Dennison concludes.

Don't build dream house on soil that's a nightmare

You buy or build your dream house after months of anxious looking. The house has everything you think you need — beauty, nice location, satisfactory construction, modern conveniences, enough space and a price you can almost afford. You move in anticipating, perhaps, some minor adjustments like the door sticking or the paint streaking.

Then the basement floods, the septic tank doesn't work, the foundation cracks: your dream house turns into an expensive nightmare.

It can't happen to you, you say, not after you were so careful to check everything. Everything, that is, but the soil, the basic foundation of your house.

It can happen and it has happened to thousands of intelligent, prudent homeowners. The home buyers looked at their houses from the foundation up, forgetting that underneath was soil. They forgot, or never knew, that different soils vary widely in their qualities and in their suitability for building purposes. In short, they ignored the soil on which they built or purchased their house.

If you are planning to buy or build a house, examine the soil carefully before you buy or build, or ask a qualified specialist to do so.

What should you look for when considering where to buy or build? Among other things, ask yourself if the soil will support a house without settling, if the basement will be dry, if the septic system will be trouble free.

Check to see that the lot is not in a flood plain and subject to flooding during a heavy storm, that the lot is not on a hillside and subject to soil erosion. Make sure the soil will support grass, flowers, shrubs and trees and it is not "fill", or raw subsoil, that needs added topsoil and special care.

Beat the heat this summer

Summer is coming and after a cold winter, it will be a welcome arrival. To enjoy it to the fullest, the information center of the hydronic (modern hot water) heating industry offers some simple tips for cool comfort.

The place to start is at the top, the roof. The roof should be as light in color as possible. Light colors reflect heat, dark colors absorb heat. If you have a light colored roof, the heat rays of the sun will bounce off without penetrating it.

Under the roof is the attic. It should be well insulated to prevent heat from getting into the rest of the house. This has an added benefit — in the winter it will prevent the heat from leaving the house, and you will use less fuel.

If you can afford it, air conditioning may be the solution to your summer heat problem. The Council strongly insists that all cooling outlets, whether for a room air conditioner or for a central air conditioning system, be located close to the ceiling. Warmed air rises and cooled air falls, and if your cooling outlets are near the floor, only your ankles may feel relief from the heat.

If air conditioning isn't within your budget, a fan in the attic will circulate the air and prevent a heat build-up. And finally, to shut out the sun, the Council recommends awnings and shade trees.

New buyer protection plan introduced by Homefinders

A unique buyers' protection plan providing for the repair or replacement of essential home components for one full year from date of sale has been introduced by Homefinders Realtors in the northwest suburbs.

According to Robert L. Zaun, president of Homefinders, "We expect many of our listing clients to request this buyers' protection plan before they sell so as to make their homes more saleable and to remove the fear that many purchasers have regarding costly repairs."

The buyers' protection plan will protect the buyer for one year for deficiencies in the heating system, plumbing system, entire electrical system within the home, water heaters, sheet metal duct work, central air conditioning systems and window units less than five years old, built-in appliances, all plumbing fixtures, except toilet seats, water softeners, built-in dishwashers and disposals. Roofs will be covered based on number of years of service.

"Now prospective buyers know that there are homes they can purchase with the assurance that they won't be immediately faced with unexpected repair bills," states Zaun.

The new plan is presented by Homefinders in its capacity as an ERA broker. ERA is a nationwide network of Realtors established by Electronic Realty Associates. The buyers' protection plan is the most recent innovation developed by ERA through Home Owners Repair Service, Inc.

Homefinders is the exclusive ERA broker in the northwest suburbs.

Specifically, the buyers' protection plan provides that at the seller's option, when a home is listed for sale with Homefinders, the firm's sales associate will inspect the home components covered by the plan and make out the endorsement showing that everything is serviceable and in working order. The endorsement and a service agreement will then be turned over to the purchaser. Repair or replacement of the covered items during the protected year will be performed by local contractors carefully selected by Homefinders and Home Owners Repair Service, Inc.

"In addition, when people list their home with us their property will not only be advertised locally, but also will be presented to potential buyers everywhere who will be moving to this community," says Zaun. "This is because a photo and description of the home will go into ERA's central listing files for transmission to out of town buyers."

Zaun's reference is to the ERA "moving machine," the use of telephone facsimile equipment to help a buyer in one part of the country select his home in another area. Through the electronic transmitting and receiving device, Homefinders will provide "living room" shopping for persons seeking residences elsewhere, usually because of company transfers. The man or woman can view six pictures of different residences in the new community at one time and make a preference prior to visiting the area and seeing the house in person.

Homefinders maintains sales offices in Palatine, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Schaumburg, Streamwood, Buffalo Grove, Lake Zurich and Antioch. A ninth office location in Roselle is scheduled to open this April.

Homefinders also has a commercial and investment division located at 235 N. Northwest Highway in Palatine.

Property investments protect against dollar shrinkage

"If you've been searching for a silver lining around the dark clouds of inflation, it may be nearer than you think," says a Chicago suburban realtor.

Dick Caruso, president of Rich Port, Realtor, notes that "most economists feel we're in for an extended period of inflation at the rate of five per cent per year, and some way we'll see years when it is more like ten per cent. But even if it gets worse than that, the average homeowner not only has a roof over his head, but more than adequate protection against shrinkage in the dollar he earns."

Caruso points out that if an average businessman took home $15,375 last year and takes home $16,225 this year after receiving a pay raise, the businessman will find that in terms of buying power his raise of $850 was actually a cut of about $685.

Bad news for consumers to be sure, especially if consumers have no real estate investment. While the businessman's net pay was shrinking by $685 in purchasing power, a mere 2% increase in the value of a home would more than make up for the loss.

"This is but one of the many unique benefits enjoyed by home owners which offset the impact of today's economic

Help for body and spirit

Good nursing care is as near as local home health service

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

A 40-year-old northwest suburban housewife suffers from multiple sclerosis, a chronic disease that may lead to paralysis, changes in speech and inability to walk. Affected for 11 years, this woman begins falling in her home.

Another suburban homemaker, 30, mother of several children, is afflicted with lateral sclerosis. Though the disease has progressed to where this patient can do little for herself, she must spend time unattended at home.

The father of a family with a mentally retarded son and an ailing wife experiences a severe stroke. Almost totally handicapped when he returns home from the hospital, he receives grossly inadequate care.

A YOUNG mother has difficulty feeding her new baby and becomes depressed. An older woman, whose other children are grown, gives birth to a new baby and becomes distressed and over-anxious in this unexpected role. Both women are suffering postpartum emotional upsets, and have no one to turn to when they come home from the hospital.

Diagnosed seven years ago to have Parkinson's disease, a 70-year-old man who lives at home now cannot even turn over in bed. Relatives want to help but don't know what best to do.

Parents of a hydrocephalic baby become concerned when at 18 months their child cannot sit up.

Still another family is apprehensive when their youngster swallows a caustic substance and comes home with a respiratory dysfunction. He needs an air tube to breathe.

AND IN ANOTHER case, a new infant is having gastric problems and must be fed through a tube.

Such responsibilities can frighten untrained family members, and may pose discomfort and potential hazards for those ill and handicapped who live at home. These families need help.

Northwest suburban residents who qualify may get this help from the Cook County Department of Public Health through its Home Health Care Services. Anyone may telephone the health department in Des Plaines, 298-5800, and ask for Home Health Care. Or a hospital patient may ask for information from the hospital's home care coordinator, social services and/or his physician.

"The health department provides skilled nursing and rehabilitative services for any patient who can be safely cared for at home," according to Mrs. Faye Krauss, registered nurse who serves as home care coordinator for the public health department.

Any resident whose doctor prescribes home care — and who is not under the care of any other certified agency or health department — is eligible for a wide range of health aid, she continued. Cost of such services is based on the family's ability to pay.

ABOUT 15 health department registered nurses are helping between 110 to 140 homebound patients in this area monthly. Their services range from teaching patients and their families (and others who are concerned) the techniques of home health care and nutrition to performing nursing skills such as changing dressings, relieving bowel impactions, giving male catheterizations, injecting medications and administering intravenous fluids.

"All is done under medical direction," Mrs. Krauss emphasized. "Perhaps most important, the nurses give patients and those concerned for their welfare the moral support they need," she added.

Once home health care is requested, a visiting nurse first comes into the home to identify the total needs of the family and to evaluate what health care is indicated. The nurse proceeds with assistance only when the patient's physician approves.

LOUISE METCALFE is the visiting nurse helping the young homemaker who can't do much for herself. Louise found her patient with rigid muscles and speech so guttural and slurred as to be unintelligible. Louise arranged with the telephone company to install a switch in a foot pedal that activates the telephone. This apparatus is hooked up to the fire department and when the patient is alone, she can hit the switch with her foot should she need help.

Mrs. Metcalfe also has worked out personal communication with her patient and has taught concerned church members how to transfer the patient from bed to wheelchair to commode.

"It is gratifying to help someone accept a situation like this," Louise says of her patient.

NOT A PRIVATE duty nurse (visits generally run one to two hours once to three times a week), Louise helps — as do other home care nurses — both patient and her family until the nurse feels they or others can provide the needed care.

"Health department services are not terminated without medical approval," Mrs. Krauss advised.

Nurse's visits are determined by the patient's health needs and how well the family or others are able to cope with his care. "Our services are based on individual needs," explained Faye Krauss.

For example, the man who suffered the severe stroke and his family need much help and instruction. Lorraine McCambridge, the visiting nurse, came to the home and determined that the man's wife could not care for him without help.

FOLLOWING directions from the patient's physician, a health department physical therapist determined the necessary exercises to strengthen damaged muscles. (A similar procedure was followed for the elderly man disabled with Parkinson's disease.) Lorraine then taught the wife and a neighbor how to give motion exercises and how to manage sickroom equipment. She also showed them how to plan a proper diet, give medication on time and manage good skin care for the patient.

One very important aid a home care nurse gives a family is a listening ear and emotional support. New mothers who exhibit anxiety or depression, for instance, need assistance in caring for their new babies and moral support in feeling secure as mothers. This the visiting nurse can provide.

Visiting nurses also can spare families both anxiety and inconvenience. Mrs. Krauss, who works in the field as well as serving as home care coordinator, saved the family of the breathing-impaired youngster a 60-mile round trip three times a week when they first brought the child home. She checks and cleans the air tube and reassures the parents that their child's "rattle" is normal in such a case.

FAYE ALSO helped the baby with the feeding problem and assisted in setting up a physical therapy program that enabled the infant who couldn't sit up to walk at 24 months.

"All our nurses are very well qualified to deliver multiple health services to the community," said Faye.

The Cook County Public Health Department is one of several community agencies providing home health care in the northwest suburban area. Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights and Lutheran General in Park Ridge include such service in their total care program. Holy Family, Des Plaines, refers patients to the Cook County department, while Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village shares a health care program with the county.

Some villages, including Arlington Heights and Des Plaines, employ their own visiting nurses.

THE HELP OF a visiting nurse is available to all ages, from infants and young children to old ages. Nurse Sherrie Lovett guides the exercising of young Bobby Weaver, Des Plaines.

Woman in top police job

Her title's deputy chief

by PAMELA REEVES

When the 165 policemen in Chicago's traffic administration division say "Good morning, chief," a woman answers.

She is Marilyn O'Regan, 53, a 26-year veteran of the force who was appointed to the $27,000 a year job last week in a shakeup of the Chicago Police Department by the new superintendent, James Rochford.

It is the highest post ever held by a woman on the 13,750-member force, and one of the highest held by any police-woman in the nation. Mrs. O'Regan, one of only 185 women in the department, says she was "surprised and overwhelmed" by the appointment.

Her job title is deputy chief of the administrative group of the Traffic Division. That means she is in charge of a 165-man force which handles traffic court, traffic records, special events and traffic safety for department cars.

MEN HANDLE two other divisions of the Traffic Department which are co-equal to hers, and all three deputies report to Traffic Supt. James B. Conlisk. Conlisk resigned as superintendent of the police department last year after a number of officers were indicted on charges of shaking down tavern owners.

Mrs. O'Regan, a friendly, soft-spoken woman, was administrative assistant to Conlisk before he resigned, and she stayed on in the same job when Rochford took over. When Rochford promoted her last week, he said she would be an example to other women.

"They will have the same opportunities as men have," he said. "Many more will follow her."

Mrs. O'Regan says she has been "very fortunate" throughout her police career, although the department has had a tendency in the past to overlook women employees.

She joined the department in 1948 when she was 26 years old, taking a job as police matron.

"IT JUST CAME naturally," she said. "My father, brother and several uncles were all policemen. I was the first woman in the family to join, and I can't say my dad encouraged me, but he did say, 'If you take the job, do the best you know how.'"

It appears she did just that.

In 1954 she was appointed head of the women's division where she was in charge of cases involving women, children and family problems. In 1962, when "reform" Supt. O. W. Wilson was brought into the department, the women's division was abolished, and Mrs. O'Regan was appointed head of the pedestrian school crossing patrol. In 1972 she became Conlisk's assistant.

Mrs. O'Regan, who met and married a deputy police commissioner (now retired) while working in the department, feels women have a definite future as police.

"FOR A PERIOD, it may be the department had lost sight of the value of a woman to the police department," she said. "But in the last two years, her value has been recognized again."

"There are some areas where women are just more effective, and many areas in which men and women working together are effective."

Put a woman on an undercover investigation, she said, "and the element of surprise is there, because no one suspects a woman."

Diabetic teens invited to talk session May 2

To aid juvenile diabetics in adjusting to the diabetic regime the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation is formulating plans to initiate small discussion groups for teenagers and pre-teens. The sessions will be designed so the young diabetics can share and express their feelings with other diabetics in groups of no more than eight participants of the same age level.

By airing their feelings with someone other than a parent or doctor, founders of the group feel that acceptance of daily diabetes management can be better accepted by teenagers.

First meeting is set for 8 p.m. Thursday, May 2, at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge.

"Pre-adolescence, Adolescence and Diabetes" will be discussed by Jerome J. Lillian, who leads diabetes teen groups at the University of Illinois. Dr. Zena Lillian, pediatric endocrinologist, will talk on medical management.

Young people do not have to be a member of the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation to participate. Interested youths may call Carol Brownstein, 935-6516, to register and get further information.

Open air market Saturday at Hoffman Estates center

An open air market of fresh vegetables, fruits, mushrooms and eggs will fill the grounds at Hoffman Estates Community Center, 161 Illinois Blvd., Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Customers are assured that the produce will be top quality at prices lower than retail, according to A. J. White and Carol Jacobson, co-chairmen of the sale.

The market is sponsored by Hoffman Estates Woman's Club, whose members are also arranging for canned goods, cookies and candy to be sold, as well as name-brand tents 9x9 feet, at $26.95.

CUSTOMERS ARE asked to bring along their own shopping baskets, bags and egg cartons.

Rain date for the market is Sunday. In case of bad weather on that day, it will be held indoors.

Shoppers are welcome to inspect the newly refurbished community center which has been a special project of the woman's club. Anyone interested in renting office space in the building will have a chance to view that, also.

Proceeds of the market will be used to purchase Resus-Annie, a life-sized mannequin for paramedics of the Hoffman Estates Fire Department. It is used in training recruits and in giving demonstrations for interested groups.

A day for prayer

In response to a resolution adopted by Congress proclaiming Tuesday, April 30, as a National Day of Humiliation, Fasting and Prayer, the Women's Association of First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights is sponsoring a one-hour service at 10 a.m.

The Tuesday morning service will be held in the chapel of the church, 302 N. Duntun, and all members of the community are invited.

PHYSICAL THERAPY is only one of many services provided by the visiting nurse. Mrs. Ruth Elberfeld helps patient Tom Bradley of Elk Grove Village work out on bicycle exerciser. Visits, usually from one to two hours, are made once to three times a week. Moral support is equally important.

Aid for non-English speaking forthcoming soon from FTC

Spanish-speaking consumers of the Chicago area, as well as others who speak little or no English, will soon get help from the Federal Trade Commission.

As of June, the FTC will begin enforcing a new rule in door-to-door sales, requiring that the "cooling-off period" be explained to each customer in his language.

The "cooling-off period" is a 3-day time limit during which a consumer can cancel a contract for magazines or other merchandise sold door-to-door. The FTC already requires that door-to-door salesmen give customers written notice of this option, but in June they will have to provide the information in the customer's language.

In addition, the FTC is translating its various consumer pamphlets into Spanish. According to Jerome Lamet of the Chicago office, the Commission is the first government agency to do this.

EASTER HAS passed without passage of the Consumer Protection Agency bill earlier predicted by Senator Percy to have become law by this time.

However, the outlook for the bill is not bad. The House passed it shortly before Congress recessed, and managed to keep it intact despite last minute efforts by the White House to cripple the proposal with pro-business provisions.

In the Senate the bill should reach the floor before the end of May. It was reported out by the Senate Commerce Committee April 11, which means the Government Operations Committee, which shares jurisdiction, will have to act on it within 45 days, according to Stuart Stalter, legislative aide to Senator Percy.

If the committee fails to act, the bill will go directly to the Senate floor.

Asked if the Senate is being pressured by the administration to make the concessions rejected by the House, Stalter said, "We haven't heard anything from the administration."

The consumer

by Monica Wilch Perin

Ironically, he added, the Senate bill no longer contains a key compromise called for by the administration: a provision that the new agency would have to channel all requests for information through the agency having jurisdiction over the matter. The way the bill stands now, the consumer agency will be able to contact businesses directly for any data it wants.

According to Stalter, Senator Percy has been given informal assurances by House members that this provision will be retained in any subsequent House-Senate compromises.

It turns out the "milk from contented cows" isn't from cows at all.

The Carnation Co. has been ordered by the Federal Trade Commission to stop claiming that its Carnation Instant Chocolate Flavored Nonfat Dry Milk, or any similar product, is the nutritional equivalent of milk or reconstituted nonfat dry milk.

The company must also, for one year, disclose in its advertisements that the products are not equivalent nutritionally to milk or reconstituted non-fat dry milk.

The complaint zeroed in on several of the company's TV commercials, including one in which a woman explains she is giving a brood of children the Carnation product for a snack "because I'm sort of a health nut." The woman then says the product is "nonfat dry milk with protein, calcium and B-vitamins."

Area Tri-Sigma alumnae host 76th birthday fete

A lot of pennies will be jingling in the pockets of Tri-Sigma Saturday as they observe Founders Day and the 76th birthday of the sorority.

The party, at Plentywood Farm, will be hosted by Chicago Suburban Northwest Alumnae Chapter, with women from the six alumnae chapters in the Chicago area invited.

There will also be collegians from the four Illinois university chapters at the celebration. They include women from Northern, Eastern, Southern and Western Illinois Universities.

EACH OF THOSE attending will bring 76 pennies in honor of the founding of Sigma Sigma Sigma 76 years ago at Longwood College, Farmville, Va. The pile of pennies will then be donated to Walton House, national headquarters of Tri-Sigma, in Woodstock, Va., and to sorority philanthropies.

The Tri-Sigma will gather at 11:30 Saturday for a luncheon and afternoon program. National officers will bring greetings, and toasts will be made to the theme of the party, "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow."

Linda Plunkett of Rolling Meadows will entertain with folk music during the program.

Small kitchens her gripe

Dear Dorothy: Hope I can get you to sounding off about those awful tiny little kitchens they build in apartments these days. My closest-and-best friend and I almost got into a snapping argument about it. She's been hunting a new place and I've been making the rounds with her. She got taken with one of those "elegant" new places with fancy picture windows. But the kitchen was a horror — one of those narrow things. She was so caught up with the rest of the place she would have signed then and there if I hadn't been around. Don't you agree the builders need challenging?

—Marie Darcell

You've zeroed in on one of my major gripes. Just wish some of these builders had to live around one of those kitchens. And it goes for homes as well as apartments. Tell your friend that it isn't enough to have room to ladle something out of a pot into dishes. Counter space in a kitchen is as vital as the appliances in it.

Dear Dorothy: After several years of laundering, my lovely woolen blankets have gotten a bit shorter and a bit narrower. I don't mind the width narrowing, as they can be put on twin beds, but it's hard to tuck the blankets in at the end. Is there any way these can be stretched?

—Madeline Booth

Sew a strip of matching flannel or muslin to the end. This can be tucked in at the bottom of the bed and never noticed.

Dear Dorothy: This is in answer to the reader who didn't know how to cut an angel food cake without having it look as if it had been hacked with a saw. I find the best way is to use a piece of sewing thread, slicing through both sides at once. This is also an excellent method for cutting petit fours before icing so there will be no crumbs.

Gardeners talk together on chemical vs. organic

Report to "them that missed" the big garden deal: When spring fever hits but the weather is still biting, the best prescription is a trip to a gardening convention.

I did just that — and came home raring to attack the garden, with an ice pick if necessary.

This particular confab, at Michigan State University, was a very special one. Called "Gardening the Organic Way," the three-day April seminar was a summit meeting between the chemical establishment and the organic movement.

It was the brainchild of the National Council of State Garden Clubs, which has made organic gardening one of its 1974 horticultural action babies. The regional seminar, a first of its kind, was co-sponsored by Organic Gardening and Farming Magazine and the Kellogg Center for Continuing Education at Michigan State, and registration was limited to 350.

RALPH NADER once said that the technique of change follows a pattern of defense, attack and finally listening. There was just a bit of the first, hardly a smidgen of the second and mostly stiff doses of the last. No serious dialogue or discussion on the pros or cons of chemical versus organic methods ever quite materialized. Most everyone was expecting some kind of confrontation, since the opening speaker, Dr. John Carew, chairman of the Michigan State Horticulture Department, launched the initial session by making a distinction between what he considered the science of horticulture (chemical usage) and the art of horticulture (organics). I think people were just being polite.

Since it is widely recognized that research at land grant universities is subsidized by chemical industry interests, it was no surprise to hear from Dr. Carew that his greatest concern "is when some groups attempt, through legislative means, to impose their gardening lifestyle on the rest of society, when they attempt to have chemical fertilizers or pesticides banned or curtailed."

IT WAS A slap in the face to people expressing concern for the environment, some of whom came from as far away as Maine, California, Texas. But the seminar showed the scientists and university men that people really care about gardening ecologically. Dr. Carew conceded, "We warmly welcome the display of interest in protecting our environment. We admire the vigor with which people spade soil and build compost piles. We support completely the emphasis on organic matter and crop rotation as important factors in crop growth." But evidently not enough for him to put his spray gun into moth balls.

But this was the first — the Malta of the meetings of the minds. More such meetings are indicated, more dialogue, more information. The best dialogue actually took place after the convention when a group of gardeners from the Town and Country Organic Gardening Club in Michigan got a good rap session going with Dr. Carew.

Janet, as first place winner in the local contest received $15. Other winners were Cindy Mayer, $10 and Tami Oliveto, $5.

Methodist Women to sponsor sale

Co-chairmen are Mrs. Harold Peterson and Mrs. William Beeson.

Potting shed

by Mary B. Good

SOME OF THE topics covered were choosing disease-resistant varieties of vegetables as an alternative means of combating garden problems and controlling pests without pesticides.

I could have listened to Lee Goldman, managing editor of Organic Gardening magazine, all night. His easy, low-key delivery, which complimented all the Rodale press people, spelled confidence in a way of life that has become a second nature to him. Goldman spent the lion's share of his time answering questions from the floor.

Tom Fogely, from the East Pennsylvania School District, put a little sunshine into school and youth gardens and John Haberman, vice president of Rodale Press, told of the new audiovisual material (film strips, cassettes, professional teaching aids) now available through them for teaching community courses on natural gardening. Haberman called on me to relate "How to Put Pizzazz into Teaching Organic Gardening To Adults," since I teach the subject at Nicolet College. (My remarks will appear in an upcoming issue of Organic Gardening magazine.)

DEREK FELL, director of the National Garden Bureau, proved to be one of the most colorful and engaging personalities at the seminar. His comments on some of the tastiest varieties of vegetables to plant deserve special mention, so I'll save that for next week's column.

Mrs. John Dennis, a member of the board of directors of the State Garden Clubs of Michigan, said that organic gardening is "good, environmental gardening." Said Mrs. Dennis: "If the stigma of chemical gardening has been attached to our organization (garden clubs in America), it can no longer be justified with our new organic section in the horticulture division. There is no doubt we have lagged in our responsibility to teach safer gardening practices," she said, "but it is not too late."

The confab was a portrait in extremes, particularly noticeable when some delegates appeared in evening gowns while others showed up in bib overalls for an evening reception. But I believe the physical impression exemplified the polarization that exists, but at the same time shows attempts are being made by opposing forces to come together to bridge that environmental gap.

Legion auxiliary card party slated

Des Plaines American Legion Auxiliary 36 will hold its annual card party and penny social Saturday at 8 p.m. at the American Legion Home, Golf and East River Roads, Des Plaines. Proceeds will go toward auxiliary projects.

The organization is currently observing Foreign Relations Month and will take part in Lights of Friendship, sending money to Korea for purchase of electrical supplies.

Girls State Chairman Mrs. Edward Tanka reports that the unit will sponsor a Maine North High School Junior to Illinois Girls State, to be held at MacMurray College, Jacksonville, in June.

A Paddock review

'Funny Girl' a hit

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Since Karen Mason has never yet disappointed an audience, the odds favored her in the role of Fanny Brice for 1973's production "Funny Girl."

And right they were, for the show by the troupe in musical theater guild is a hit, an evening of good entertainment that has won community recognition and support.

From the beginning in her first major role in "I'm the Greatest Star," Karen Mason has played the role of unpredictable, stubborn but very determined Fanny to heart. It comes naturally to an actress with a clear, strong voice, overflowing enthusiasm and a funny ability to clown out.

STEVE STRONG is Fanny's debaucher, but down and out gambler husband who is shattered by his own lack of talent and his wife's career in the theater.

Strong plays and acts the part perfectly. His destruction of his cherished innocence. His powerful voice makes it easy for Karen and him to work together. Exemplified by one amusing scene around the popular song, "The Woman I Am Man."

One expected standout of the show is M. S. in the role of Eddie Ryan, Fanny's childhood friend who helps her through the hard times and periodically shows up to support and unheeded.

ALAN MESSING on stage. Sims and uses his way through many scenes. In one he is even called upon to sing for his band and whistle.

As for the women who helped make "Funny Girl" a success including Susan Keenan as director, Fran Pitch as cost director and Camilla Barancik as photographer, who incorporated some polished dance routines into the show.

The orchestra pit and the seated high enough can watch her dance. Perhaps yet a common problem with community musicals showed up at the opening night. The accompaniment was loud.

Though she was often competing with the orchestra, has enough natural volume to rise above it and make herself be heard. Others weren't quite so lucky.

ALLEN JOHNSON could not be heard in the Follies scene and Jan Di Cosola, who gives a fine performance as Fanny's mother, is unfortunately too soft-spoken. Many of her lyrics were buried by the accompaniment.

To be sure the stage crew was hard at work making the necessary frequent scene changes and for the most part, everything went smoothly with only a few minor bloopers.

Yet many of the sets themselves were incomplete and disappointing. Action is sometimes lost on a large bare stage when concentrated in only one small area utilizing a minimum of props. A backdrop is needed much of the time to hide the back curtain and draw everything together.

Some scenes were excellent including Henry Street, the Amsteins' new mansion and the private dining room where Fanny entreats Nick to seduce her.

LIGHTING COULD also be improved. Occasionally one of the main characters is giving her or his lines in the shadow of the main spotlight. More attention could easily remedy this problem.

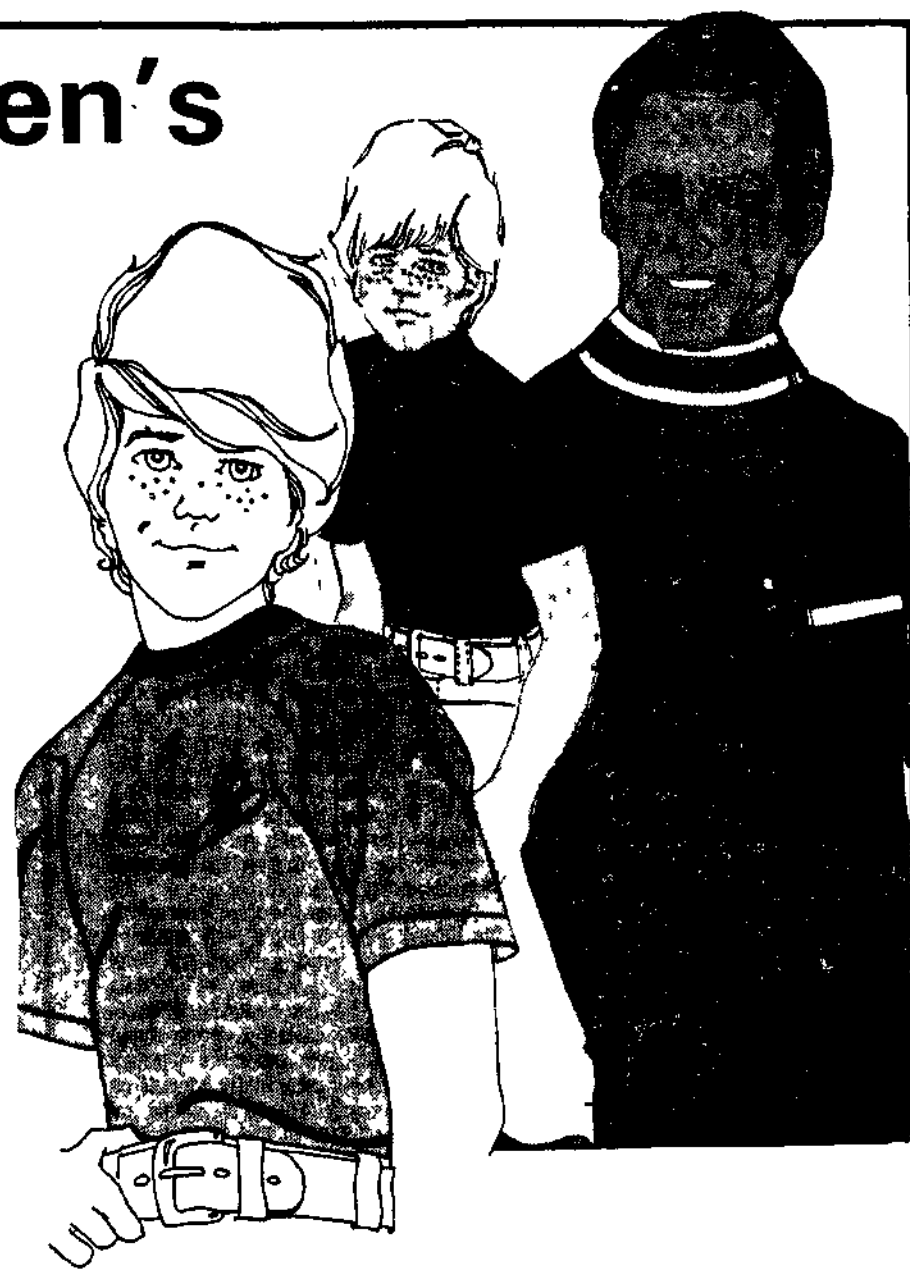

BOB can be highly complimented for the great amount of detail paid to costuming for every member of the cast and chorus. The time period shortly before and after World War I is accurately captured.

Miss Mason is very well dressed and the work that went into the costumes for the Ziegfeld girls is greatly appreciated by an admiring audience. The costumes alone make the Follies number come alive.

Overall "Funny Girl" is one of the most enjoyable shows to be produced this season by community theater. It appeals to a vast audience for its noteworthy musical score and light-hearted yet still touching tale of a dedicated actress who must balance her success on stage with the discord and unhappiness she indirectly brings upon herself at home.

"Funny Girl" is again being staged tomorrow night and Saturday at Buffalo Grove High School. Tickets, 392-4875.

MAIN-DISH MACARONI

Whether talking about macaroni or spaghetti or any of the 150 different shapes that fall under the umbrella title of pasta, this is the year for discovering new ways to serve it. Pasta is a thrifty way to stretch meat and fish, and combined with cheese it makes a nutritious main dish for meatless meals. The recipes offered here introduce a new way to dress up pasta — that of using mayonnaise as an ingredient in hot pasta dishes.

The secret of working with pasta is to time the cooking of the macaroni, spaghetti or noodles to dovetail with the preparation of the rest of the recipe. Once the pasta is cooked and drained, everything should be ready to serve or the other ingredients ready to be mixed with the hot pasta. In all cases follow the directions on the package for cooking the pasta.

Hot Macaroni Salad

- |                                   |                            |
|-----------------------------------|----------------------------|
| 8 ounces (2 cups) macaroni shells | 1 teaspoon salt            |
| 1 cup diced cooked carrot         | ½ teaspoon dried dill weed |
| 1 cup cooked peas                 | ¼ teaspoon white pepper    |
| ½ cup chopped celery              | ½ cup mayonnaise           |
| 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion | ¼ cup milk                 |

Cook macaroni in boiling salted water according to package directions; drain. Toss together hot macaroni, carrot, peas, celery, onion, salt, dill, and pepper. Stir in mayonnaise and milk. Turn into 1½-quart casserole. Bake in 350 degree oven 10 to 15 minutes or until salad is heated throughout. Makes 6 servings.

Spaghetti With Creamy Clam Sauce

- |   |  |
|---|--|
| 2 cans (8 oz. each) minced clams          | ¼ teaspoon dried thyme leaves              |
| 1 cup (about) bottled clam juice or water | Dash white pepper                          |
| ½ cup mayonnaise                          | 1 pound thin spaghetti, cooked and drained |
| 2 tablespoons corn starch                 | Chopped parsley                            |

Drain clams reserving liquor. Add clam juice or water to drained liquor to make 2 cups. Stir together mayonnaise and corn starch. Gradually stir in clam liquor. Stir in thyme and pepper. Cook over medium heat stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Stir in clams; continue cooking just long enough to heat clams. Serve over spaghetti, sprinkle with parsley. Makes 6 servings. Note: For a thinner sauce use 1 tablespoon corn starch.

Mexicali Macaroni

- |   |  |
|---|--|
| ½ pound ground beef                                   | 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce                      |
| 1½ cups shredded American cheese                      | ½ cup mayonnaise                                     |
| 1 can (8 oz.) stewed tomatoes, broken in small pieces | 8 ounces (2 cups) elbow macaroni, cooked and drained |
| 3 tablespoons chopped green chili peppers             |  |

In a large skillet brown ground beef; stir in cheese, tomato, chili pepper and Worcestershire sauce. Heat over medium heat, stirring occasionally, about 10 minutes or until cheese melts. Stir in mayonnaise. Toss with hot macaroni. Makes 6 servings.

Stewed Veal On Green Noodles

- |  |   |
|--|---|
| ¼ cup flour                            | 2 cups chicken bouillon                             |
| ¼ teaspoon salt                        | 2 tablespoons lemon juice                           |
| Dash pepper                            | 2 teaspoons paprika                                 |
| 1 pound veal shoulder, cubed           | ½ teaspoon dried thyme leaves                       |
| 2 tablespoons corn oil                 | 1 package (10 oz.) frozen peas                      |
| 3 small onions, sliced                 | ½ cup mayonnaise                                    |
| 1½ cups celery sliced in ½-inch pieces | 1 package (8 oz.) green noodles, cooked and drained |

Stir together flour, salt and pepper. Coat veal with seasoned flour. Heat corn oil in 5-quart Dutch oven over medium heat. Add veal and brown well. Add onion and celery. Sauté lightly. Add bouillon, lemon juice, paprika and thyme. Cover and simmer about 30 minutes or until veal is tender. Add peas; simmer 5 minutes longer. Just before serving, stir in mayonnaise. Serve with cooked noodles. Makes 6 servings.

Tuna Noodle Bake

- |  |  |
|--|--|
| 1 tablespoon margarine                             | ¼ teaspoon salt  |
| ¼ cup finely chopped onion                         | ½ teaspoon pepper  |
| ¼ cup finely chopped green pepper                  | 1 package (8 oz.) nookies  |

Toss together in large bowl tuna, tomato, lemon juice, salt, pepper and onion-green pepper mixture. Cook noodles in boiling salted water according to package directions; drain. Add noodles. Mix mayonnaise and milk. Stir into noodle-tuna mixture. Turn into greased 2-quart casserole. Top with bread crumbs. Bake in 400 degree oven about 20 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

| 3 tablespoons corn starch    | ¼ cup sherry                                    |
| 3 cups chicken bouillon      | 1 clove garlic, crushed                         |
| 2 cups cubed cooked chicken  | 1 teaspoon salt                                 |

Bread baking is weekly event for Rita Maves

WEDNESDAY IS BREAD baking day for Mrs. Gordon Maves of Arlington Heights. She bakes a rye-wheat bread which has a mild, sweet flavor. The crusts are coated with butter to make them soft and shiny.

by LOIS SEILER

An interest in cooking and sewing since childhood led Mrs. Gordon Maves of Arlington Heights into a home economics career. Rita Maves taught home economics at Arlington High School at one time, and has been teaching sewing and dress-making in adult education for the past 15 years.

She learned to bake bread as a young girl and her family still enjoys having all home-baked goods. "However, they think it's a treat to occasionally have store bread," Rita chuckled.

Wednesday is bread baking day for Rita. On Friday she often prepares sweet dough for coffee cakes, cinnamon rolls and buns.

She usually bakes white bread and a rye wheat variation. In the latter, she uses half white flour for a mild, sweet rye, lighter in texture and color than all-rye flour bread.

The measurements are exact to insure successful results. This recipe for Rye Wheat makes four large loaves or three regular and four miniature loaves.

Rita considers the small loaves ideal as after-school snacks for her children Tim, 14, John, 13, Kathy, 9, and Tom, 6. The bread is also perfect for sandwiches and toast, and Rita finds it excellent for turkey stuffing.

ONE OF HER favorite menus features an entree called Stay in Bed Stew. It's so easy to make, you could prepare it, spend the day in bed, and have a delicious dinner ready at mealtime. Far too active for such sedentary thoughts, Rita likes the recipe because she can be gone during the day and have dinner ready when she comes home.

The stew consists of boneless beef cubes, celery, carrots and onion baked in tomato sauce and brown sugar with tapioca as the thickening agent. The meat bakes at a low temperature for five to six hours and becomes very tender and flavorful.

As accompaniments Rita suggests a tossed green salad and garlic bread. When making this casserole for company with children, she often includes a gelatin mold, and for a heartier meal she adds an appealing potato casserole.

This is easily made with frozen hash browns which are combined with onion, cream of chicken soup, sour cream and Cheddar cheese. Baked with a topping of crushed corn flakes, it is rich and tasty with a flavor similar to au gratin potatoes.

In addition to the stew, the versatile potatoes go well with roast beef, ham, chicken, barbecues or almost any meal. Rita often entertains groups of 16 and finds the stew and potatoes ideal for a buffet. It is also excellent for pot luck suppers or taking to shut-ins.

For dessert this cook recommends a rich, yummy torte called Raspberry Delight. Although made in three layers with a raspberry and walnut filling, it is a thin torte given height by a topping of whipped cream and warm raspberry sauce. It is also elegant for bridge parties.

RYE WHEAT BREAD

1 2-ounce cake yeast or
2 envelopes active dry yeast
1/2 cup warm water
2 cups milk, scalded
4 tablespoons shortening
(lard preferred)
1/3 cup dark molasses
2 tablespoons salt
2 cups cold water
6 cups rye and wheat flour
6 cups white flour
Softened yeast in large bowl with warm water.

Add shortening, molasses and salt to scalded milk. Add cold water and cool to lukewarm. Add lukewarm milk mixture to softened yeast. Gradually add three cups rye wheat flour. Stir until smooth and satiny. Add remaining rye wheat flour and stir and beat until well-blended and no lumps remain.

Add three cups white flour and beat until stiff. Add and mix the last three cups white flour by hand, kneading it in the bowl or on a floured surface. Knead until smooth and satiny and stiff, about five minutes.

Grease the sides of the bowl that you used for mixing, turning dough to grease it on all sides. Cover and let rise in a warm place about one hour, until doubled in bulk. (The bowl of dough may be placed in a sink filled half-way up the sides of bowl with hot water.) Punch dough down. Cover and let rise again until double, about one hour. (For sink method, use fresh hot water.)

Divide dough into four parts. Shape into loaves and place into four well-greased 9 by 5 by 3-inch loaf pans. Cover and let rise until doubled, about 1 1/2 hours. Bake at 375 degrees for 40 minutes. Remove loaves from pans immediately and brush with butter.

STAY IN BED STEW

3 pounds boneless beef stew meat
4 carrots, cut up in chunks
2 onions, cut in rings
3 ribs celery, cut in chunks
1 8-ounce can tomato sauce

1 8-ounce can water
4 tablespoons tapioca
5 tablespoons brown sugar
Salt and pepper to taste

Place raw meat in 9 by 13-inch baking pan. Layer carrots, onion rings and celery over meat. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over meat. Cover tightly and bake at 250 degrees for 5 to 6 hours. Serves 6 to 8.

POT LUCK POTATOES

2 pounds frozen hash brown potatoes, thawed
1 can cream of chicken or mushroom soup
1 pint commercial sour cream
1/2 cup chopped onion
10 ounces (2 cups) grated Cheddar cheese
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 cup corn flakes, crushed

Place defrosted potatoes in a 3-quart casserole. Combine soup, sour cream, onion, cheese and seasonings and pour over potatoes. Top with crushed corn flakes. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Serves 16.

RASPBERRY DELIGHT

Crust:
1 1/4 cups flour
1/3 cup powdered sugar
1/2 cup butter or margarine
Combine flour and powdered sugar and cut in butter with a pastry blender as you would for pie dough. Press firmly into a 9 by 13-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes. Cool.

Filling:
1 10-ounce package frozen raspberries, thawed and juice saved
1/3 cup chopped walnuts
2 eggs
1 cup granulated sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon vanilla

Place drained raspberries and walnuts on top of cooled crust.

Beat eggs thoroughly. Gradually beat in sugar. Blend in salt, baking powder and vanilla and pour over berries. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes.

Serve topped with whipped cream and the following sauce:

Reserved raspberry liquid plus water to make 3/4 cup liquid
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
Combine sugar and cornstarch. Add to liquid and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Serve warm over whipped cream.

Garlic, a matter of taste

by JEANNE LESEM

A chicken with 60 cloves of garlic was the main course of a dinner party I attended recently.

It raised a few eyebrows but only after the first bite. The garlic flavor and aroma were hardly recognizable in the chicken and vegetables. They were mild, even when the buttery smooth cloves of garlic were spread on toast.

Asked for his recipe, our host, Ronald Cohen confessed he had combined two different ones that together should have used 80 cloves of garlic. Both were variations on poulet aux quarante gousses d'ail. It's a traditional French Provencal main dish in which a small whole chicken is baked in a tightly covered casserole on a bed of olive oil, garlic and herbs.

The French and many other southern Europeans have known for centuries that a single clove of raw garlic in a salad packs more pungency than a whole head of it in a slowly cooked sauce. Its use is widest in the garlic growing areas bordering the Mediterranean — southern France, Spain, Greece and Italy, among others.

Some Spanish sauces are given a subtle flavor from one clove of garlic heated in olive oil but discarded before the cooking begins. In others, several garlic cloves or a whole head unpeeled, are cooked in a sauce and either discarded before serving or pureed to thicken the sauce.

English author Ford Madox Ford once wrote of a model who loved garlic so much she was ready to give up her job so she could continue to eat it without offending anyone. Before quitting she went on a weeklong binge. It started with poulet Bernaise, chicken cooked with two pounds of the smelly bulb. To the model's surprise, no one complained of the smell but many people complimented her on her beautiful skin and hair.

Her story would not have ended so happily if she had lived it up with aioli instead, or other versions of garlic mayonnaise. The ingredients differ somewhat from country to country, but all have an authoritative garlic flavor, sometimes from as few as two cloves of the raw herb.

FRENCH AUTHOR Colette once wrote that she could not taste garlic in herve a la royale (stuffed hare) although it included 80 cloves, along with fougas, truffles and the animal's giblets.

Early Olympic athletes and the laborers who built Egypt's pyramids are said to have eaten garlic because they thought it gave them strength. In Greek mythology, Ulysses is said to have chewed garlic before exorcising Circe, a sorceress who turned her victims into beasts.

Various medical benefits also have been attributed to garlic. Galen, an early Greek physician, called it medicine for the poor, writes Robert Landry in "The Gentle Art of Flavoring." Landry also said a contemporary Finnish physician and some German dietitians consider it a natural antibiotic.

Ron Cohen's chicken with 60 cloves of Unit pricing can be found in many stores on the little tag on the shelf below the product. The tag has on it the brand name of the product, the full price of the product, a store code and the price of a unit of the product.

The unit may be one pound, one quart, one ounce, one dozen or one piece.

In a large skillet or flameproof casserole, brown chicken parts in olive oil, a few pieces at a time — using 4 small chicken breasts, halved, 12 thighs and 6 legs. Season with salt and pepper while browning. Set chicken aside. Cut 2 carrots, 2 celery stalks, 1 large onion, 3 pounds of eggplant and 4 green peppers in matchstick size strips. Brown the vegetables, one type at a time, in the same pan, adding more oil if necessary to prevent sticking. Season the cooked vegetables with salt and pepper. Peel 60 large cloves of garlic.

Place alternate layers of vegetables, garlic and chicken in two large oven-proof casseroles with tight-fitting lids, beginning and ending with a vegetable and garlic layer. Season each layer with dried leaf tarragon and oregano. Combine 1 cup of white wine with 1/2 cup of brandy and pour half of it into each casserole. Cover each one tightly with aluminum foil, then the lids and more foil, fastened with masking tape for added security. Bake 1 1/2 hours in a preheated 350-degree oven.

Remove the outer layer of foil in the kitchen but leave the lid and inner foil in place until you serve at the table. Serve each guest some garlic along with chicken and vegetables. The garlic can be eaten as a vegetable or, traditionally, spread on toast to eat with the chicken and vegetables.

Crunchy party snacks

Melt 1/2 cup margarine in large saucepan. Remove from heat; stir in 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce. Add 4 cups herb seasoned croutons, 1 cup each salted peanuts and pretzels while tossing gently until margarine is evenly distributed. Spread croutons mixture in shallow baking pan. Bake in 300 degree oven about 15 minutes or until crisp, stirring occasionally. Serve hot or cool. Store any leftovers in tightly-covered container. Yield about 5 1/2 cups.

Rodeo Joes: Brown 1 pound ground beef in 1 tablespoon hot oil. Add 1 bottle (14 oz.) catsup, 1/2 cup water, 2 tablespoons each instant minced onion and Worcestershire sauce, mix well. Simmer, stirring occasionally, 15 minutes. Serve on hamburger buns. Yield 6 sandwiches.

Continued price increases predicted by food official

What will happen to food prices when government controls are lifted next week?

According to George W. Koch, president of the Grocery Manufacturers of America, Inc., "The answer is simple, if unpleasant: Food prices will continue to go up, but not as much as they would have, had controls been continued."

"The food industry," said Koch in a recent speech, "is presently experiencing circumstances beyond our control which continue to drive food prices upward."

The circumstances cited by Koch are:

- Competing for food with the world;
- Acts of God and government;
- The energy shortage;
- Problems of getting food out of the ground.

Koch called for an end to the government's present "piece-meal approach to the food supply system. "The time has come for the institution of a coordinated program for managing our food resources while not stymieing the initiative or thwarting the basic forces of supply and demand."

Koch suggested the establishment of a "National Food Policy" — a coherent approach. "Like a seesaw, you cannot push one end of the food supply system without affecting the other."

OTHER FORCES such as God and government are playing havoc on commodity prices as well, said Koch. For several years now, odd and unpleasant

Franfare

by Fran Heckart

things have been happening to weather around the world. Furthermore, from August, 1971 to April, 1974, the food industry has been under strict government price controls. The net result of these economic controls, he said, has been to drive food prices higher than they otherwise would have gone because the control program itself created shortages which added to the food prices spiral.

According to Koch, "The energy crisis is another of the incredible circumstances which has upset the balance of our food economy and brought higher prices. Food from the farm to the table uses 12 per cent of all the energy consumed in the United States. And this food-related demand for energy is growing at an annual rate of 3.3 per cent."

"No commentary on the status of the American food economy," he said, "would be complete without reference to the problems of the farmer in getting out of the ground. Everything the farmer buys or uses is presently priced at near-record highs."

Eggs accounted for the only significant price increase this week for products surveyed. Grade A large eggs increased 18 cents according to a price survey on Monday. Whole broiler-fryers rose four cents. A nine-cent increase was also recorded for frozen ocean perch fillets.

Average cost of bacon and American processed cheese declined three and four cents, respectively.

All other prices remained generally stable from a week ago.

Recorded food prices are based on averages obtained from four area stores on Monday of each week.

Burgundy wine and beef in flavorful main dish

Combine the robust flavor of beef round with the character of red burgundy wine and seasonings of herbs and vegetables and you have a great dish. That's what is done in this Oven Beef Burgundy. You'll find it simple to make and rewarding to the palate.

At your meat counter select a thick cut (2-inch) piece of lean beef round weighing 1 1/2 to 2 pounds. Trim off excess fat and cut into cubes about 1 1/2 inches in size. Place the meat in a large casserole and pour over 1 tablespoon A-1 steak sauce and 1 tablespoon of soy sauce. Stir meat, coating on all sides.

Sprinkle over the meat 1/4 cup of cream of wheat, add 4 large scraped carrots, split, then cut into pieces, 2 cups thinly sliced onions (4 medium), 1 cup diced celery, a generous sprinkling of garlic powder, 2 tablespoons salt, 1/8 teaspoon pepper, 1/8 teaspoon marjoram, and 1/8 teaspoon powdered thyme.

Mix gently then pour over a cup of good burgundy wine. Now add 1 cup canned mushroom caps (or 1 pound fresh mushrooms sauteed in butter) and dot mixture with a tablespoon of butter. Cover and bake in a preheated 325 degree oven for 2 1/2 hours when meat should be tender. Longer cooking won't hurt, but stir every 30 minutes.

This is excellent with a baked potato or over rice, cooked egg noodles or chow mein noodles. Serves 6 to 8 and has even more flavor if reheated the second day.

THIS BEING the time of year when

Mostly for men

by Charles Flynn

asparagus is plentiful and good, try French-Frying it. Wash asparagus and break off any woody portions of stem.

Cook in a small amount of water for about 10 minutes, drain. Dip into beaten egg and coat lightly with fine bread crumbs. Fry, a few pieces at a time, in hot (350 degrees) deep fat. Drain on paper toweling before serving.

The old German method is to pre-cook as indicated, then tie stems of equal length in bundles of 5 or 6 with white twine. Dip bundle into the beaten egg, then in bread crumbs and fry in deep fat 5 to 7 minutes. Clip off strings when removing from the kettle. Each bundle makes a serving.

Catsup standards guide to quality

Catchup, catsup, Ketchup. No matter how you spell it, tomato ketchup is still a flavor favorite that adds extra zest to hamburgers, hot dogs, french fries, meat loaf, and many other foods.

Tomato ketchup is made from the pulp and juice of red ripe tomatoes, cooked in specially designed equipment. It is flavored with sugar, salt, vinegar, spices, and sometimes onion and garlic. The flavor and goodness of fine ketchup depends on the quality of the tomato pulp used, plus the selection and quantity of spices added. The thickness of bottled ketchup is also an important part of its character, for it should be neither too thick nor too thin. Thus, the control of the consistency is important, and requires care and experience.

Makers of tomato ketchup may use the USDA grade standards as guides to quality. The grade standards are based on color, defects, consistency, concentration, and freedom from defects. The best quality tomato ketchup — U.S. Grade A or Fancy — is made from clean, fresh, ripe tomatoes. Grade A tomato ketchup is thicker than lower qualities and passes slowly from the bottle when poured.

Grade B tomato ketchup differs slightly from Grade A in tomato content and thickness but has a good color and taste and is useful in cooking. Grade C tomato ketchup has less tomato content and thickness than the higher grades, but has fairly good color and taste and is a budget-stretcher for families that frequently use ketchup.

Oven meals conserve time, energy

The oven meal — three or four or five dishes cooked in the same oven at the same time — is one way to conserve energy.

In the cooking process the oven is generally on about one-third of the time and expends less energy than cooking for the same length of time on the range top.

It is important in choosing compatible foods for oven meals to consider the length of cooking time required and the suggested temperature settings.

Following is one idea for an energy-saving oven meal with four dishes which can be baked at once using heat-resistant glass cookware that allows the meal to go directly from the oven to the table for serving.

SWEET-AND-SOUR MEAT LOAF

1 can (15 oz.) tomato sauce
½ cup light brown sugar
¼ cup vinegar
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
2 pounds ground lean beef
½ pound ground pork
2 eggs slightly beaten

½ cup minced onions
½ cup fine, soft bread crumbs
1 tablespoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Mix together tomato sauce, sugar, vinegar and mustard. Mix together remaining ingredients and one cup of sauce mixture. Pack into 1½-quart oval casserole. Pour ¼ cup of sauce over the top. (Remaining sauce may be heated and used when serving meat loaf).

ITALIAN GREEN BEANS

Place two packages (9 oz. each) frozen Italian green beans and ¼ cup of water in 1½-quart covered heat-resistant glass casserole. Add one small onion, grated; salt, pepper and butter. Cover.

NUT BREAD

3 cups biscuit mix
½ cup sugar
1/3 cup sifted flour
1 egg
1 cup milk
1½ cups chopped nuts

Grease 9 by 5 by 3-inch clear loaf dish. Mix all ingredients except nuts, beating vigorously by hand for ½ minute. Stir in nuts. Pour into prepared pan.

APPLE PIE WITH CANDIED CRUST

1 can (20 oz.) pie-sliced apples
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup butter, softened

Spread apples evenly in the bottom of a nine-inch glass pie plate. Combine dry ingredients and work in softened butter. Sprinkle over apples. Serving suggestion: Top with ice cream or sour cream.

Baking directions: It is not necessary to preheat the oven. Place oven shelves on second and fourth oven shelf support. Place meat loaf and beans on lower oven shelf. Place bread and apple pie on oven shelf above. Set oven to 350 degrees. Bake for one hour.

Rice affords menu variety

Want to give a gourmet touch to your menus without straining the budget?

Try rice. There are something like 7,000 varieties of rice grown in the world. But you don't have to learn about all of them in order to add an exotic touch to your meals.

Only about a dozen varieties are grown in this country, according to the Agricultural Marketing Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. There are three basic types.

Short grain rice kernels are about twice as long as they are wide. They cook moist and tender, and the kernels cling together. Short grain rice is ideal for puddings, stuffings, rice runs and Oriental cooking.

Medium grain rice is similar to short grain rice — the kernels are about two and a half times longer than they are wide and it is almost as tender and moist as short grain rice. Medium grain goes well with meat dishes and in stuffings and puddings.

Long grain rice is the most popular size rice in the United States. Long grain kernels are about three times longer than they are wide. They cook firm and dry and do not stick together. Long grain rice is often served as side dishes, in soups, and with gravy.

And then there's wild rice. It is not a true rice, but the grain of a tall annual grass. It is dark brown and has a nutty flavor. It is truly a gourmet item and is rather expensive.

Rice is further identified on the package according to the way it is processed for use.

Brown rice is rice which has had the hull removed. It has a nutty flavor and a chewy texture and is ideal for making stuffing for poultry.

Milled or white rice is rice with the hull and all or most of the bran layers removed. White rice is used in puddings and as a complement for main meat and seafood dishes. It is also good for people on special diets.

Enriched rice is milled rice which has been enriched with thiamin, niacin and iron.

Parboiled rice is milled rice which has been partially cooked by a special process which causes some of the nutrients to move from the outer layers into the inner kernel. This process also increases the shelf life of the rice. Parboiled rice takes longer to cook than regular white rice but is just as versatile.

Instant rice is just that. It is milled rice which has been precooked and dehydrated to reduce cooking time.

Once you decide on the type of rice you want, buy wisely. If you buy rice in see-through packages, you can check the quality before you buy.

Household hints

Whole milk must contain not less than 3.25 per cent milkfat and not less than 8.25 per cent nonfat milk solids.

Yes, milk is rich in riboflavin, a B vitamin that helps keep skin healthy and your vision clear.

What makes milk coat the sides of the pan when it is heated? At high temperatures the protein in milk coagulates into a film on top and a coating on sides of the pan. Prolonged high temperatures also can cause off-flavors and/or scorching, according to USDA home economists.

Is New Zealand spinach related to common spinach? No, it isn't. It thrives in hot weather and is grown as a substitute in seasons when ordinary spinach cannot withstand the heat.

There are four general classes of pickle products: Brined pickles, fresh-pack pickles, fruit pickles and relishes.

Top quality rice has a bright, uniform color. Milled rice is white or creamy. Parboiled rice is not as white but is just as attractive after cooking. Wild rice is darker than brown rice.

Look for rice with a high percentage of whole kernels. Although rice with many broken kernels has the same flavor and nutrients as top quality rice, cooking will be uneven and the appearance not as attractive.

Also top quality rice should be free from defects such as seeds from other plants and damaged kernels.

Most rice in this country is graded by USDA-licensed inspectors at the time the rice is delivered to the mill or after milling. Although the grade is not usually shown on retail packages, most companies package high quality rice for retail sale. The lower qualities rarely reach the supermarket.

Energy-Saving Oven Meal

Simple to make entree perfect for luncheons

Broccoli-Topped Waffles a la Hollandaise is a spur of the moment luncheon dish that meets all a busy hostess' requirements, including readily available ingredients. Gracing waffle sections are green broccoli spears cooked to the just-tender stage. They're garnished with colorful slices of hard cooked egg, then topped with warm Hollandaise sauce.

Convenient frozen waffles get the cook off to a head start because they need only heating through in the toaster or oven. The broccoli is frozen, too, and the Hollandaise sauce may be made from a mix if you prefer. The result is a luncheon entree made in a trice, but delicious and fancy enough for the most elegant ladies' luncheon. Fresh tomato wedges garnished with chopped parsley make an attractive accompaniment, and for dessert you might sprinkle some fresh blueberries over scoops of lemon sherbet.

BROCCOLI-TOPPED WAFFLES A LA HOLLANDAISE

6 eggs
2 10-oz. packages frozen broccoli spears
1 10-oz. package frozen waffles
1½ cups Hollandaise sauce, heated

Place eggs in large saucepan; add enough cold water to cover them. Place over high heat and bring to boil. Cover and remove from heat; let stand 20 minutes. Drain and rinse with cold water; peel and slice. Meanwhile, prepare broccoli according to package directions.

Prepare waffles in toaster or oven according to package directions. For each serving, top 2 waffle sections with 2 or 3 broccoli spears, a sliced egg and warm Hollandaise sauce. Makes 6 servings.

Broccoli-Topped Waffles a la Hollandaise

Cabbage supply great for salad

The cole slaw season is upon us. It's spring and time to think of easy-to-fix, warm weather menus. According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, fresh cabbage is in larger-than-usual supply because of heavy yields in Florida, South Georgia, Louisiana, and South Texas.

With abundant cabbage available east of the Rocky Mountains in April, cole slaw is a "natural" for the homemaker.

Here's a recipe for cole slaw that enjoys a wide-spread reputation, and serves six.

COLE SLAW

3 cups coarsely shredded cabbage
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon dry mustard
White pepper, as desired
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon tarragon vinegar
¾ cup table cream

Energy conservation

Oven meals can save energy, home economists say, provided foods are chosen that cook in about the same length of time so they can be prepared together.

Nutrition experts say that cheese, which provides good quality protein, should be used as a meat substitute rather than as an addition to the meat portion of the meal.

Homemakers can help in the energy crisis by planning their cooking procedures to get the most efficient use of each appliance, such as preparing several dishes at once with a single heating of the oven.

Dundee Rd. work under way again; complete by fall?

by JOE FRANZ

Construction of Dundee Road was in full swing Wednesday and state officials said if the nice weather hangs on, construction should be completed by fall.

Albert Sifer, project engineer for the Illinois Division of Highways, said workers have finished tearing out the old westbound pavement and have begun final grading. After grading is completed, the sub-base will be installed, followed by paving.

The project consists of widening the road to four lanes between Elmhurst Road and Ill. Rte. 53 through Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights.

BEFORE CONSTRUCTION was shut down for the winter, workmen have paved two lanes between Elmhurst Road west about 200 feet past Buffalo Grove Road.

Sifer said the two lanes should be completed to Rte. 53 by June 15. At that time, traffic will shift completely from the two battered lanes that now exist to the new pavement. State officials have said the new pavement will make traveling on the road much safer.

Sifer also said the realignments of Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove roads will be connected to Dundee Road once that initial two-lane job is finished.

Both roads were realigned last summer to meet extensions north of Dundee Road. Officials said the realignments will eliminate congestion and may possibly reduce accidents around Dundee Road.

The realignments originally were not going to be hooked up until the entire project was finished, but Buffalo Grove officials requested the work be done when two lanes are finished.

IN ADDITION to the realignments, Sifer said the 900-foot portion of Arlington Heights Road north of Dundee will be repaired after June 15. The road has been in a state of disrepair for more than a year now, and residents have complained about the hazardous driving conditions and damage sustained by their cars.

Sifer said completion of all four lanes on Dundee Road is scheduled for Oct. 1. The project, he said, is the number one road priority in the northern region of Illinois.

State officials and Greco Contractors, the firm doing the work, have been severely criticized by residents, merchants and village officials because construction was not completed last year. Residents have complained that the road is dangerous and an inconvenience and merchants claim its condition has hurt business.

Under the state contract, Greco has about 100 working days to complete the project before a fine is assessed against them, Sifer said. Working days are defined as days when weather and other factors will permit construction.

"IF YOU COUNT their working days, they probably would have until clear through December to complete the project," Sifer said. "But we're going to push them as hard as we can so they finish way ahead of time."

Sifer said progress on the road will depend to a large extent on the weather and the availability of construction material. Last year, the state blamed rainy weather and a shortage of cement for the delays in construction.

At present, Sifer said, it looks like there will be enough cement, but he warned that the situation could become "tight" later in the year. "As far as the weather goes, if we get a lot of rain, like we did last fall, we could be in real trouble," he said.

As construction progresses, Sifer said, the state will be closing several streets where they intersect Dundee Road. The roads will be closed for several days to allow the pavement to dry, he said. Residents will be informed of the closings and be given suggested detours several days in advance, he said.

IT'S STILL TWO LANES but at least it's new for drivers on the unfinished portion of Dundee Road between Elmhurst and Buffalo Grove roads. State officials hope to have traffic riding on new pavement between the entire widening project, Elmhurst Road to Ill. Rte. 53, by June 15.

Arbor Day trees to be distributed

The Buffalo Grove Appearance Control Commission will be distributing trees Friday and Saturday to residents who ordered them in observance of Arbor Day.

The commission plans to sell more than 1,200 seedlings to residents in an attempt to "create an awareness" of Arbor Day.

Friday, which is Arbor Day, red oak seedlings will be passed out in all of Buffalo Grove's elementary schools. The seedlings will be six to 12 inches tall and cost 25 cents each. They will be passed out only to students who placed advance orders.

Those who did not place orders will be able to purchase seedlings at the village hall Saturday morning. The seedlings will be on sale in the parking lot at 50 Raupp Blvd., between 10 a.m. and noon.

AT THAT TIME, residents also will be able to purchase three- to four-foot red maple saplings. The saplings will be balled and burlapped and will cost $9 each.

Any of the young trees that are not sold by Saturday will be on sale in the village hall next week.

Comm. Ronald Helms said Wednesday there will be no planting ceremony this year. Last year the commission planted a grove of trees at the village hall in observance of Arbor Day. He said the practice of planting a tree at a place of community interest may be considered again next year.

Arbor Day began in 1872 at the suggestion of Julius Sterling Morton. Morton, then a member of the Nebraska Board of Agriculture, introduced a resolution calling for Arbor Day.

On April 10 of that year, the first Arbor Day was observed in Nebraska. More than one million trees were planted in Nebraska that day.

Since that time almost every state has begun observing the day.

Cool aides

'Assistant teachers' at Field School offer help, while upgrading the quality of classroom programs

by JILL BETTNER

Aid: a shorter word for help. Help for overcrowded classrooms, overworked teachers and students who need individualized instruction at Field School in Dist. 21.

In this case, relief for the problems accompanying an enrollment of more than 600 and still climbing at the Wheeling school appears to have been found in 14 aides and sizes of teacher aides.

The school on St. Armand Lane in Wheeling serves an area that includes two expanding developments, Cedar Run and Whippletree Village, both north of Old McHenry Road.

Principal Bill Kinzer predicts the enrollment at Field, already the second highest of the elementary schools in the district, will go even higher next year.

MOST ELEMENTARY schools in Dist. 21 average two to three aides. Kinzer said by hiring 14 aides at Field last September instead of a lesser number of regular classroom teachers, he has been able to reduce the pupil-teacher ratio at the school from 30 to 1 to about 15 to 1. This means more individual attention for each student, he said.

"The key to the whole program here at Field is the amount of individualization we're able to provide," Kinzer commented. "Look at one teacher with 30 kids who has to plan, grade papers, run off dittos and still teach — it's a real load. Our teachers don't have to do that kind of clerical work."

About half the aides at Field School are fully certified teachers. However, the regular classroom instructors direct all activities, with the aides working under their supervision.

FOR EXAMPLE, Kinzer said a teacher may begin a particular academic unit and then ask an aide to work with small groups of students on exercises or academic games. The aides also grade papers, put up bulletin boards and handle other similar routine duties.

Regular teachers are the only ones who give grades and conduct parent conferences.

"Simply, the aides free the teachers to work directly with kids all day long," Kinzer said. "That's the main reason we like this set-up."

During the past two summers, Field was remodeled to aid in individualizing instruction. Walls were knocked out to create larger classrooms, some of them with folding partitions, to allow for more small group work.

THE LEARNING center, which Kinzer describes as "one of the best-supplied in the district," is also utilized to a great extent in helping children with special academic problems.

A group of about 40 active parent volunteers also provide extra attention to students by working regularly in the motor facilitation program, the learning center and in the classrooms.

Although most schools in the district use team teaching to some degree, at Field School it is implemented in all grades one through six.

Teams consist of two or three teachers, two or three teacher aides and often an intern from Trinity College in Deerfield. Last semester, five interns or seniors in the teacher training program worked at Field and Kinzer is expecting 10 interns next year.

There are about 70 children assigned to each team, receiving instruction at different times, again usually in small groups.

"Whenever I talk about Field School, I always stress individualization because that's our goal," Kinzer said. "We're always looking for ways to individualize and better meet kids' needs."

Wheeling group fighting Ponderosa 'range rights'

by LYNN ASINOF

Residents living on Brian Lane, a small gravel road off Dundee Road, may lose their privacy or one of their entrances as a result if a proposed Ponderosa Steak House is built on Dundee Road.

Bernard Kron, developer of Harmony Village, is seeking rezoning of 2.32 acres between the Wildwood Apartments and the cemetery on Dundee Road. The property, however, includes the land occupied by the northern section of Brian Lane.

Mona and William Olson, 71 Brian Ln., at first objected to the rezoning, saying cars might use their street to exit from the proposed Ponderosa. "Our concern is at times they would exit out Brian Lane," Olson said.

When developers said they could merely block the gravel road, the Olsons objected to losing their access to Dundee Road. Brian Lane also connects with Wolf Road to the east.

"WE HAVE BEEN using this road for 20 years," Mrs. Olson said, noting that the residents have spent considerable money on its upkeep. She noted a state law that says any street used by the public for 15 years is a public highway.

The same statute was successfully used by residents of Haben Lane, located off McHenry Road, when Hollywood Builders tried to close their private road last year.

As in the Haben Lane case, developers

Judith Troehler wins Harper seat by just one vote

One vote made the difference as Judith Troehler defeated Stanley Carrier and was seated on the Harper College board of trustees.

In the final official vote tally from the April 13 board election Mrs. Troehler had 1,346 votes to 1,345 for Carrier. Carrier's final total differed by five votes from his previously announced unofficial total, apparently because of an error made by judges in a Prospect Heights precinct in recording the unofficial tally.

The official tally Tuesday night confirmed the election of incumbent William Kelly, Robert Rausch of Hoffman Estates and Shirley Munson of Palatine.

Kelly was then elected board president by a 6 to 1 vote.

Following announcements of the tally Carrier said he does not seek a recount and added that he does not believe Mrs. Troehler will serve her full three-year term. "There will be a vacancy before the year is over," he said. "I will run for her seat when she resigns."

Mrs. Troehler, however, said that she fully intends to serve a full term "unless there are unforeseeable circumstances." She added, "I don't think I would resign out of frustration."

MRS. TROEHLER'S election means that the Harper board has a majority of four women. She is a student at Harper and says she intends to graduate from the school in June, 1975.

Earlier in the day, Mrs. Troehler was notified that Harper's attorney Frank Hines feels she might be liable to a charge of conflict of interest if she continues as a student at the college after becoming a member of the board even though two other board members served while students at the college.

The advice came in a call from College Pres Robert Lahti. Mrs. Troehler said the information left her somewhat "shaken" at the time and added that "I wonder why they waited until today to tell me."

Hines said the law under which he has

Stanley Carrier

formed his opinion, Chapter 102, Section 3 of the Illinois Revised Statutes, is "admittedly vague and general." However, he said the law, combined with an opinion from the Michigan state attorney general on a similar statute and a new Illinois law providing for a non-voting student member of college boards, may be combined to indicate that a voting student member of the board would be involved in a conflict of interest.

THE LAW CITED by Hines states, in part, "No person holding any office, either by election or appointment under the laws and constitution of this state, may be in any manner interested, either directly or indirectly . . . in any contract or the performance of any work in the making or letting of which such officer may be called upon to act or vote."

Hines said he focuses on the phrase "in any manner interested" and the word "contract," and added "The relation between a college and a student is primarily contractual."

The law goes on to prohibit public officials from representing persons bidding for a contract before their organization and from accepting bribes in return for votes.

THE LEGAL opinion, Hines said, "doesn't mean the board could refuse to seat her." He said he has advised college officials of this law in the past. Two other board members have served while students at the college, Hines said, adding, "I presume that these past candidates were aware of this, but they simply disagreed with it."

However, board member Larry Moats, who was a student when he was elected to the board in 1969 said yesterday that, although at one point a college committee was formed to study the whole issue of conflict of interest, "I don't recollect that particular statute ever being brought to my attention."

Wheeling asks new look at McHenry Road speeds

Wheeling officials are asking the Illinois State Highway Department to reconsider its decision not to lower speed limits on McHenry Road.

In a letter to the highway department, Village Mgr. George Passolt took exception with the state's formula for reducing speed limits. The state bases its limits on the speed that 85 per cent of all drivers travel. In addition, it takes into account the number of driveways, pedestrian traffic and parking.

"Although I am not a traffic engineer, I would like to take exception to your assumption that the majority of drivers will drive at a speed which they judge to be safe and proper," Passolt wrote.

"It seems to me that the majority of the drivers tend to drive at approximately the posted speed limit or maybe two to three miles in excess of the posted speed limit, assuming that they will be allowed this much leeway by the police," he said.

THE MANAGER SAID he therefore did not think that the speed of 85 per cent of the drivers should be the sole criteria for determining speed limits. He said the state should also consider "marked changes in the character of the area" created by the new developments along McHenry Road.

In a recent traffic study, however, the state said the reduction in speed limit to 40 miles per hour was not warranted because most drivers traveled at or above the 50-and 55-mph limits.

Passolt said he was challenging the survey because "I think the time has come that we have to fight them a little and to use different criterion. We want the speed limit reduced, and the only way to reduce it is to reduce it," he said.

NOTING THE 61 per cent increase in traffic accidents along McHenry Road, Passolt said he does not think the state is taking into consideration the rapidly changing character of the street. He said people traveling from the north along McHenry Road are not always aware that they are approaching a densely populated area. He said the reduced speed limit would help solve this problem.

Memories of Schaumburg Centre

Fred Volkening, 71-year area resident, recalls days when Schaumburg and Roselle roads were hub of farm community

by STIRLING MORITA

Fred Volkening has lived in Schaumburg 71 years, and the mention of Schaumburg Centre brought back memories.

Schaumburg Centre, split by Roselle and Schaumburg roads, once was the social and business hub for the farming community of Schaumburg Township.

Volkening recalled the days of helping to build the first paved road in the township — Roselle Road — and cutting ice on a pond in 20-degree-below-zero weather. He came to the area in 1903 at the age of three.

Some of the buildings still stand, although many have been torn down. Volkening remembered the way they once were.

THE BUILDING housing the Schaumburg Inn on the southeast corner of the intersection was once a hardware store, a soft-drink place, a store with pool table and other machines and later a tavern.

Across the street on the northeast corner, a bank was constructed in the late 1920s. The building now houses the Hoffman Estates Realty Co.

When Schaumburg State Bank (no relation to its modern-day namesake) went out of business, Herman Hattendorf moved his grocery store from down the street to the corner site.

On the southwest corner was a combination general store, saloon and dance hall owned by John Fenze. "The store had everything — women's clothing, food, everything." The store also served as a post office. The area had been in various postal rural routes over the years — Elgin, Palatine and Roselle.

MRS. VOLKENING fondly recalled the box social dances held on the second floor of the store. Volkening said the second floor was used for almost everything, adding that he registered for the Army there in 1918. Once a week a dentist stopped at the store to pull teeth.

Fenze owned a warehouse on the northwest corner, where farm machinery for sale was stored.

The general store burned down, and Volkening was one of the men who attempted to extinguish the blaze. The warehouse was leveled later, and both lots remained empty.

Fred Volkening

Then an Ace Hardware store sprouted where the general store had been.

Next to the general store, Fred and Herman Nerge ran a blacksmith and wagon shop.

In back of the Schaumburg Inn building was an ice-storage shed, where pond ice was stacked and stored in sawdust and hay for summer use. There once was a pond by what is now the Bethel Baptist Church, north of the intersection. Residents went out in freezing weather to cut large chunks of ice and load them onto sleighs.

Between the barn and another building was the firehouse where the hand pumper was stored. The building housed a tavern, which was later to become Leng's.

THERE WAS a special hall in the tavern where all the township meetings were conducted.

Automobiles did not make their way into the area until about 1910. Volkening's family was one of the first three in the area to have a horseless carriage. Use of the horse did not start to die until the 1930s.

Schaumburg Centre had a small railroad line to Roselle, where the main lines were. Materials to pave Roselle Road were transported on the tiny rail line.

Volkening worked on the construction, supplying a team of horses to grade the roadway for about $5 a day. The pavement, when completed, extended from just north of the village of Roselle to Higgins Road.

VOLKENING SAID cars could not be used in winter because of road conditions. The horse remained the surest way of transportation for a while.

A person could tell who was driving down the street by the certain sound made by their team of horses and wagon.

The 74-year-old Volkening, a member of the village police and fire commission, shrugged his shoulders in reaction to the massive growth of the area.

"I've seen it all," he said.

THE STATE AND MADISON of Schaumburg. In the 1920s Schaumburg Centre was the hub of township activity at Roselle and Schaumburg roads, which were gravel and dirt. The view looks south on Roselle.

College-aid advice to be given parents

An open meeting for parents who want to learn more about financial aid for college-bound students will be conducted at 3:30 p.m., Thursday, May 2, in the guidance department at Stevenson High School in Prairie View.

Russ Corey of the University of Chicago admissions staff and a financial aid expert will discuss how to apply for loans, grants, scholarships and other funds to be used to defray college expenses. The information will apply to any college or university.

Corey also will conduct two other group information sessions at 1 and 2:15 p.m. for students. Parents may also attend these sessions.

Opposition to apartment complex grows

Cumberland Terrace area residents near showdown

by STEVE BROWN

Opposition to a proposed apartment development in Des Plaines appears to be growing as homeowners from the Cumberland Terrace area head for a showdown next week with the project's developers.

More than 70 residents voiced complaints about an 80-unit apartment complex proposed for a parcel of land just northwest of the Weiboldt's Distribution Center in Des Plaines.

The residents complained the development would cause increasing problems for their neighborhoods which is already burdened by noise from adjacent railroad operations and flooding from Weller Creek.

Current plans, which have been filed with the city by Rauschenburg and Biassello Developers of Morton Grove, call for seven apartment buildings to be constructed on the 4½-acre tract.

The developers also have petitioned the city to rezone the property from its current M-2, manufacturing status to R-4, multiple family.

BESIDES PLANNING to meet with the developers at a special meeting next Wednesday at the Des Plaines City Hall, the residents also hope to appear before the city's zoning board of appeals to object to the development on May 21.

Both Ald. Robert Hinde (4th) and Daniel Kissinger (4th) advised the residents to appear before the zoning board to make their objections known.

Many of the complaints raised during Tuesday's meeting revolved around possible congestion that cars from the apartment complex might cause and fears the development might trigger additional flooding problems in the area.

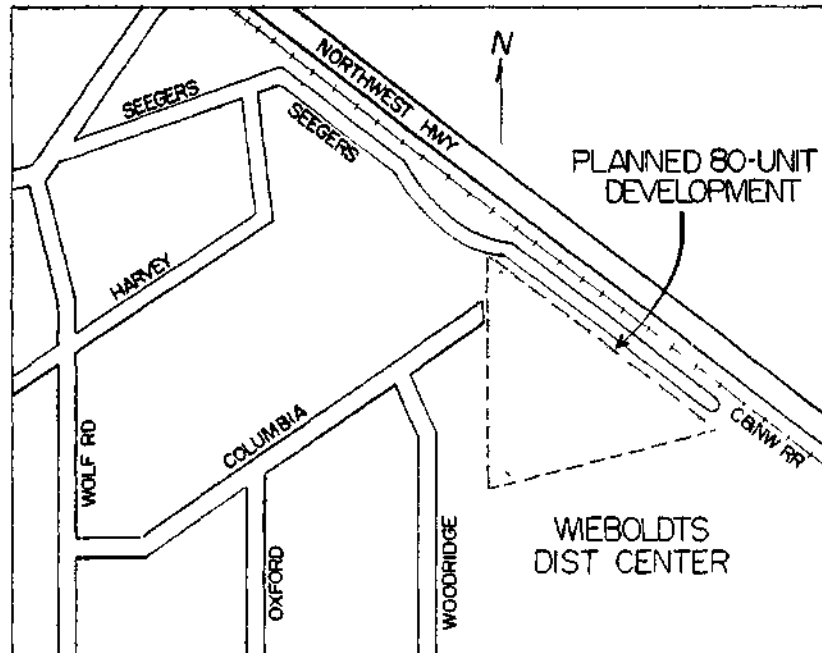

While the property involved in the controversy is located in the fourth ward, a portion of the Cumberland Terrace area is also in the seventh ward. Ald. Gerald Meyer (7th) attended the homeowners to hear their comments on the project.

THE BUILDERS have told city officials if zoning is not changed to allow the apartments on the land, they would plan to construct a facility which would be allowed under the manufacturing zoning.

Residents also questioned traffic patterns around the development and asked if several local streets, which now dead-end near the development, could be opened for traffic from the apartments.

Hinde told the group that he has talked with other city officials who have told him that the streets could not be extended to serve the apartments.

Elk Grove blasts Municipal League's sewage plant stand

by JERRY THOMAS

Elk Grove Village officials have adopted a resolution blasting the Illinois Municipal League for throwing its support to Des Plaines in that city's effort to block the Metropolitan Sanitary District from building a sewage treatment plant.

Trustee Edward Kenna proposed what he termed "the squelching resolution." "I want this board's support to ask the league to take its nose out of this affair," said Kenna. "As members of the league, Elk Grove Village should have been checked with before the league announced its alliance with Des Plaines," said Kenna.

Kenna said the league never discussed its action with the 92-member municipalities and contends its plan to file a "friend of the court" petition supporting Des Plaines' contention that municipal home rule supercedes MSD jurisdiction "is just a cover up."

"It's fishy that the league threw its support to Des Plaines; maybe it's because Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel is the League's former president," said Kenna.

"The resolution strongly tells the league to stay out of this issue and just as strongly stresses we are in agreement with the league's efforts to work for home rule powers," he added.

KENNA MAINTAINED the real purpose of the league's court support of Des Plaines is to prevent construction of the proposed O'Hare sewage treatment plant at the southeast corner of Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road.

"We consider immediate construction of that plant to be vital in resolving sewage pollution and flooding in Elk Grove Village and neighboring communities," said Kenna.

"Construction of that plant is of overriding importance, let the league find some other test for home rule," he said.

"I'm calling for the league to immediately cease its support of the City of Des Plaines in that city's dispute with the MSD," said Kenna. "Years of argument have passed because a few people in Des Plaines, like Ald. Richard Ward (8th), are playing politics and delaying a much-needed facility," said Kenna. "It's time for this nonsense to stop," he said.

DES PLAINES Mayor Herbert Behrel said Wednesday, "There is no playing of politics on my part — I'm not even running for reelection. I agree it is a much-needed plant but I don't agree with his statement about the politics."

The trustee was supported in his arguments by board members Michael Tosto and Nanci Vanderweel.

Kenna said he will look to Mount Prospect for help to discourage the League from supporting Des Plaines in this issue of treatment plant location.

"That community also needs the plant. Our village, especially the Northeast corner, is severely affected by sewage back-up because present interceptor lines cannot handle the sewage," he said.

Mount Prospect officials were not available for comment Wednesday.

Kenna added that Elk Grove Village recently gave the MSD easement rights to construct a deep 60-inch diameter interceptor line along Oakton Street. "The line would feed into the proposed plant and solve our problems and other communities along the line and now this new hangup from the league hits us," said Kenna.

TRUSTEE GEORGE Spees attempted to delay action on the resolution. "I want time to look deeper into the issue, after all we just read about it in the paper and it's not like the league to do things like this. I want to talk to them about it," said Spees.

"If you want to look deeper wait until it rains and look in people's living rooms in the northern edge of town where the sewage backs up," said Trustee Vanderweel.

"This resolution slaps the league in the face. I want no part of hasty action like this," said Spees. His was the only dissenting voice. He abstained from voting.

According to Steve Sergeant, executive director of the league, the Des Plaines case could be a landmark in defining home rule powers. The decision to join Des Plaines was a unanimous vote by the executive committee of the league.

The city's battle with MSD over the site for the plant, which is partly in Des Plaines' 8th Ward, has been going on for more than nine years. Des Plaines officials, led by Ald. Ward, say the plant would be a nuisance to nearby residential areas on Des Plaines' west side. They contend alternative sites are available in the area.

WARD RECENTLY spoke before the Elk Grove Village Board of Health, calling for its support to defeat MSD's plans to build a plant he said would lead to aerosol bacterial contamination.

MSD attorneys contend the city's attempt to exercise home rule to shut the plant out constitutes an abusive use of power. They say that if all local communities were allowed to block construction of MSD plants, the district would not be able to build anywhere.

"We can't treat our sewage in Champaign, Wyo., we've got to do it here and right now," said Kenna.

Copies of the resolution will go to the league's executive board, to the MSD and Mount Prospect and Des Plaines officials.

Remedial math, reading plan widened

Dist. 63 has expanded its summer school program to include remedial classes in reading and mathematics.

The East Maine Elementary School Board of Education approved the new classes at its regular board meeting Tuesday night. Previous summer school programs included only classes in physical education, typing and speech.

The board also agreed to underwrite any difference between the total costs of the program and the tuition received from parents. Tuition will be $35 per class for the five-week period.

Summer school begins June 24 and will continue five days a week through July 26. Classes will be from 8:30 a.m. to noon.

Classes will be limited to 10 to 15 students. All classes will meet at Ballard School unless enrollment warrants moving to another location.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board elected Mrs. Arlene Nidetz as president for a one-year term. Mrs. Nidetz, head of the board's negotiations team, defeated board member Larry Reiss 4-3 for the position. She succeeds Mrs. Irene Luck.

The board also set the first and third Tuesdays of every month for regular board meetings in May, September, October, November, December, February, March and April. All meetings will be at Ballard School.

Summer meetings will be June 4 and 25, July 16 and Aug. 20. The July and August meetings will be at Apollo School.

Supt. G. Allan Gogo announced that copies of the district-wide instructional policies are available at all district schools and the central office. The policies will be discussed at the May meetings of the board.

Algonquin pupils survey residents on community

Eighth graders at Algonquin Junior High wanted to know what people in Des Plaines thought about their community. So about 140 of the students drew up a questionnaire, interviewed more than 400 families and compiled their results.

They found that most of the people they talked with are satisfied with the city, the schools, the police department and municipal government.

The project was coordinated by Algonquin teachers Betty Walsdorf and Pat Tuttle, who devoted several weeks to teaching their students about Des Plaines.

Although the overwhelming majority of those interviewed thought the school system in town was satisfactory, many had suggestions for the school board to consider, including fewer holidays, smaller classrooms and a dress code for students.

IN RESPONSE to questions about the Des Plaines police protection, a majority of people said they are afraid to walk through the city at night. Most people, however, said they were satisfied with police protection.

Suggestions for the police included prompter service, more policemen, more night patrols, better enforcement of speeding laws and patrolling of all streets at least once a night.

Most of the people polled said the municipal government is doing a good job and that they are satisfied with the state government. Most people also approved

Judith Troehler wins Harper seat by just one vote

One vote made the difference as Judith Troehler defeated Stanley Carrier and was seated on the Harper College board of trustees.

In the final official vote tally from the April 13 board election Mrs. Troehler had 1,346 votes to 1,345 for Carrier. Carrier's final total differed by five votes from his previously announced unofficial total, apparently because of an error made by judges in a Prospect Heights precinct in recording the unofficial tally.

The official tally Tuesday night confirmed the election of incumbent William Kelly, Robert Rausch of Hoffman Estates and Shirley Munson of Palatine.

Kelly was then elected board president by a 6 to 1 vote.

Following announcements of the tally Carrier said he would not seek a recount and added that he does not believe Mrs. Troehler will serve her full three-year term. "There will be a vacancy before the year is over," he said. "I will run for her seat when she resigns."

Mrs. Troehler, however, said that she fully intends to serve a full term "unless there are unforeseeable circumstances." She added, "I don't think I would resign out of frustration."

MRS. TROEHLER'S election means that the Harper board has a majority of four women. She is a student at Harper and says she intends to graduate from the school in June, 1975.

Earlier in the day, Mrs. Troehler was notified that Harper's attorney Frank Hines feels she might be liable to a charge of conflict of interest if she continues as a student at the college after becoming a member of the board even though two other board members served while students at the college.

The advice came in a call from College Pres Robert Lahti. Mrs. Troehler said the information left her somewhat "shaken" at the time and added that "I wonder why they waited until today to tell me."

Hines said the law under which he has formed his opinion, Chapter 102, Section 1 of the Illinois Revised Statutes, is "admittedly vague and general." However, he said the law, combined with an opinion from the Michigan state attorney general on a similar statute and a new Illinois law providing for a non-voting student member of college boards, may be combined to indicate that a voting student member of the board would be involved in a conflict of interest.

THE LAW CITED by Hines states, in part: "No person holding any office, either by election or appointment under the laws and constitution of this state,

Stanley Carrier

Judith Troehler

may be in any manner interested, either directly or indirectly . . . in any contract or the performance of any work in the making or letting of which such officer may be called upon to act or vote."

Hines said he focuses on the phrase "in any manner interested" and the word "contract," and added "The relation between a college and a student is primarily contractual."

The law goes on to prohibit public officials from representing persons bidding for a contract before their organization and from accepting bribes in return for votes.

THE LEGAL opinion, Hines said, "doesn't mean the board could refuse to seat her." He said he has advised college officials of this law in the past. Two other board members have served while students at the college, Hines said, adding, "I presume that these past candidates were aware of this, but they simply disagreed with it."

However, board member Larry Moats, who was a student when he was elected to the board in 1969 said yesterday that, although at one point a college committee was formed to study the whole issue of conflict of interest, "I don't recollect that particular statute ever being brought to my attention."

BUMMIN' AROUND is what spring is all about to students. In the eyes of parents, spring leisure time is a preview of summer.

Oakton panel jobs told

Several committee assignments on the Oakton Community College Board of Trustees were made Tuesday by board chairman Raymond Harlstein.

Trustee Harriet Ritter and Stephen Loska were appointed to the educational programs and student affairs committee, LeRoy Wauck and Vivian Medak were appointed to the personnel committee, Thomas Flynn and Wauck to the community relations committee, Loska and Mrs. Ritter to the board policies committee, Mrs. Medak and Paul Gilson to the business operations and budget committee, and Gilson and Flynn to the facilities and long-range planning committee.

Harlstein instructed committee chairmen to select additional committee members from the public, from the Oakton faculty, student body, classified staff and administration and from the board of trustees.

In stating goals for the coming year, Harlstein said he would like to see the college create a master plan for buildings and programs, add more vocational programs to the college curriculum, organize a referendum to raise funds for a permanent campus and establish an Oakton Community College Foundation to raise funds for the college through individual contributions and through contributions from the business and industrial community.

Mikva urges government action to fight pollution

Rivers and streams in Illinois and throughout the nation may remain polluted with raw sewage unless federal authorities step up their efforts, according to a government report.

The details of the report, which was prepared by the General Accounting Office, was contained in a speech delivered Wednesday night by Abner Mikva in remarks to the Izaak Walton League.

Mikva, a candidate for the 10th District congressional seat currently held by U. S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10th, sharply criticized the Nixon administration for continued impoundment of sewage treatment funds appropriated by Congress.

He said the federal water pollution control regulations called for a clean-up of streams and rivers by 1985, but according to the GAO report that standard would not be reached for 46 years.

"I DON'T WANT to wait that long, I don't think your children want to wait that long and more important I don't think Lake Michigan can afford to wait that long," Mikva told the group.

Mikva also urged careful planning and research regarding dangers posed by nuclear power plants along Lake Michigan.

He said that serious research on safety and technology are needed before "all the cost" of nuclear power plants can be evaluated. He noted that Lake Michigan has been and continues to be the main setting for debate on the nuclear power plant issue.

Mikva said the nation has spent billions of dollars on highways only to learn the automobile dirties the air and drains the country oil resources.

"In 1974 we're finding out that those previously ignored costs are extremely high. With nuclear power plants we can avoid that mistake," he said.

In repeating his call for speedy action to clean up the rivers and streams, Mikva said President Nixon has held up funds for these projects.

of the work of their senators in Washington.

Questions on the energy crisis revealed that most people thought the crisis was "contrived." Most common complaints about the gas shortage centered on long gas lines and increased prices. One person summed up his feeling about the crisis in one word — "aggravation."

THE PARK DISTRICT also received good grades from people polled, with the majority labeling recreational facilities "adequate." And most people said they wanted to see bicycle paths and lanes established in Des Plaines.

In suggestions for the Dist. 62 school board, the people surveyed called for more discipline in the classrooms, new concepts in teaching and different teaching methods, the reinstatement of religion in the schools and a change in the length of the school year.

Several people also suggested better communication between the school board and public with one person commenting that the board should have "less double-talk and more constructive honest communication with parents." Another person offered no suggestions, noting that board members "do a pretty good job."

WHEN ASKED their visions of Des Plaines in the next ten years, many residents foresaw more people, more development and more traffic congestion. "It will be a second Chicago — over-industrialized, too commercialized and too polluted," one person commented.

Another person thought the city will be more "integrated, more like a city and less like a suburb." One resident surveyed said Des Plaines will become "polluted (awfully)."

Police wrapup

Youths nabbed smoking grass, drinking beer

Three Des Plaines youths were taken into custody after two were smoking marijuana and one was caught with a can of beer, police said.

Two of the youths were 15 while the third was 14 and could not be identified by police.

Police became suspicious of the youngsters after discovering them near the Good Shepherd Church, Howard and Lee streets, late Tuesday.

One youth was found holding a cigarette rolled with what later tested to be marijuana while two other cigarettes were found on the ground around them.

Juvenile authorities placed one of the youngsters on six months' station supervision and released the three.

Fire in motel room

A small fire started when some clothing hanging over a space heater ignited in a guest room of the Drury Motel, 374 Lee St., according to Des Plaines Fire Department reports.

No injuries were reported and damage was estimated at $200.

The occupant of the room, Thomas Sharbaugh, told firemen he was able to extinguish the flames before they arrived.

Auto stolen at plant

An auto, owned by Harry Stanley, 1532 Marquette in Chicago was reported stolen from outside a Des Plaines factory, according to reports.

Stanley told police he left work at Berg Manufacturing, 333 Touhy Ave., early Tuesday and discovered his 1961 Ford stolen from a parking lot.

Boat equipment stolen

Thieves made their way into a storage yard outside the Cor-Pipe Corp., 555 Jarvis Ave., and stole boating equipment valued at $636, according to police reports.

Police said the thieves, who struck late Monday or early Tuesday broke into the yard by cutting through a barbed wire fence.

Crossroads issue revived

Nursing home supported

I am impelled to speak out after reading the report March 27 on the public hearing for a proposed nursing home in Rolling Meadows. The city council seems to have spent the majority of their time making sure no services would be available for teenagers instead of investigating the planned services for older people.

The continued opposition to a nursing home in our area seems to stem not from economic or zoning objections but from a superstitious fear of having contact with anyone over 60. Surely there are families in town who would be pleased to have their elderly relatives getting good care in a modern facility and at the same time close enough to visit and see often. The answer? "If Mom (or Grandma) was right in town she would be so demanding!" Demanding of what? The same amount of love and attention that she gave to her grandchildren or children when they were young and helpless without her?

The older people and especially the infirm are treated like freaks of nature, misshapen and horrifying monsters, contaminating to children and an awful reminder of what may someday happen to us all.

The pitying of Dr. Finlayson because he was running the Crossroads Clinic I find inexcusable. There may be parents who tell their children honestly all the facts about sex and who are willing to accept, however reluctantly, their children's decisions about their own bodies. Such parents may provide their children with birth control information and venereal disease checkups. Such parents are very, very rare. It's time the city governments realized that the state law protecting the privacy of the doctor-patient relationship includes privacy from moral judgments by people not directly concerned, be they parents or not. Birth control information is not a privilege of marriage. Venereal disease is not a punishment for premarital sex. And a doctor who provides, within the framework of state law, counseling and help to youths who are already having a sexual relationship is not a perverter, an inciter to promiscuity or a destroyer of the family.

Fence post letters to the editor

New 'unwanted' plan

I have read, with great interest, the letters on abortion. Since, we all want sex without responsibility, here are some solutions to attain our goal:

- Why murder unwanted children? We should murder the unwanted parents; they are producing unwanted children. Murder the fathers or the mothers, go to the source of the problem.

- Four million fetuses have died in vain. They may have solved our food shortage problem. I quote, Swift's pamphlet "A Modest Proposal":

"I have been assured by a very knowing American of my acquaintance in London, that a young healthy child well nursed is at a year old a most delicious, nourishing, and wholesome food, whether stewed, roasted, baked, or broiled, and I make no doubt that it will equally serve in a fricassee or ragout."

To those who are in favor of abortion on demand — too mad you were not aborted before you were born. Do you believe you were wanted?

Gregory S. Woz
Wheeling

Dr. Finlayson provided a needed service, attested to by the number of people who were seen at the clinic. He had the moral strength to resist attempts by possessive parents and religious dictators of morals, and was finally stopped by the unexpected nonrenewal of his lease. Now he is trying to start a new service, one irreproachable in respectability and is discovering that Crossroads Clinic will be an albatross for even that.

I truly sympathize with protective parents who wish to cocoon their children safely away from the hard facts of life, and make their decisions and judgments for them, but wish they would remember that if their teens aren't telling them now for fear of a negative reaction, they won't tell them until something forces them to, and an unplanned pregnancy or permanent sterility from an undetected case of gonorrhea are much harder facts to live with for everyone.

The Rolling Meadows council members, by making a witch-hunt out of what should have been conducted as a business meeting, have shown once again that no legislator can make an objective decision when he has an emotional stake in the proceeding. By basing, or seeming to be swayed, by the reputation that Dr. Finlayson has as a troublemaker in the home, they have disgraced themselves and the constituency they represent.

Police, fire tax urged

Dear State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights:

Now that the Petree controversy has died down, I think it is time to come up with a solution to the problem of unincorporated areas throughout the state. There has been a proposal in Elk Grove Village that persons living in the unincorporated areas be required to pay a large fee if fire or ambulance service is requested. It has been estimated that the cost would be $50 for ambulance assistance and $100 for each piece of fire equipment dispatched to the scene. This is an unrealistic solution to the problem for two important reasons.

First, if a fire should start in a house not covered by village protection, the owner's initial reaction would be to try to arrest the fire without the fire department's assistance. This is a normal reaction when one is faced with the possibility of a bill running into the hundreds of dollars. The outcome, however, could mean complete loss of property or life. The same is applicable in regard to ambulance service. If an accident or sickness should occur in an unincorporated area not covered by ambulance protection, a decision might be made to take the victim to the hospital in a car in order to avoid the bill for the ambulance service. Needless to say, this too could result in injury or death.

The second problem with the proposed solution is that a fire department is incapable of functioning properly when run on a "pay when you need us" basis. A fire or police department is only able to exist through steady yearly taxes. Trying to finance these departments on a pay later basis is just not feasible.

I propose that the state government enact a law requiring all residents of a town or village to be taxed for fire and police protection. Regardless of whether a person lives in an unincorporated area, as long as he is within village boundaries he should be taxed. This insures everyone of prompt, efficient service at times when these factors can be crucial in saving lives and property.

It is the opinion of the supreme Court that a state has the authority to pass a law in order to foster and protect the health, safety, morals and welfare of its citizens. The Petree incident has brought to light the fact that sometimes people do not have the good sense to protect themselves, therefore, it is the duty of the State Government to make sure they are protected.

She reviews obscenity law

I've seen Ms. Oliver's opinion (Wednesday, Feb. 27) in the Elk Grove Herald regarding the anti-obscenity ordinance here in Elk Grove. I am a free citizen of that village and have already phoned in my "feedback" to the "protectors," and hope that others have, or will, too. For what it's worth, here is my reasoning:

Number 1, I believe in God. (Right away I'm chalked off as a fanatic.) Number 2, I believe people are responsible for their actions; to themselves, to others, and to God. (Which may be deemed by those who have perfected the skill of rationalizing all they do.) Number 3, I believe the anti-obscenity ordinance is a step in the right direction, not a means to dictate to the people. (Is it such a shock that village officials actually might be "acting in the best interest of the people" by formerly requesting the theater not show this X movie? What ulterior motives do they have now for this ordinance, do you think? Communist subversion?) Those who fight so hard against this type of ordinance obviously have become callous to the whole rotten impact exploited sex trash has had and is having on the values of our country, our own children and young adults, and their parents. Without courage of conviction, people are not strong in the face of corruption. If some are afraid of so-called faddish and impulsive censorship, let them see that type does not survive, but certain values do remain and it is these films, completely devoid of any value, against which the ordinance is aimed. And, yes, by the way, I wish the ordinance could also remove the "girlie" magazines you mentioned from the counters of our stores too.

Is Elk Grove going to be unique? What's wrong with crossing the border to find a place pleasantly "removed from the rest of the world?" Why can't it be Elk Grove (or Arlington Heights or Des Plaines or any of our towns, for that matter?) If this is what we residents think is good for our village, let's let the skeptics hear from us. The news reporters are polling those who are against the ordinance at the theaters. Is anyone polling those who are for it? You said, Ms. Oliver, "God save us from those out to protect us." From this kind of "protection" God save us, while we allow under our very noses the spread of a deep wrong which we could be instrumental in correcting? To me, a no-support attitude on the part of those who agree with the ordinance smacks more of apathy, the don't-get-involved syndrome, don't make waves, don't stand up for your own rights, don't make a commitment, than a concern for the movie viewer's freedom. Granted, there are some G-rated shows that are stupid and dull, but at least they aren't aiding the spread of distorted views, or the growth of vice and corruption. Let's face it. The sex act of all humans, made in the image and likeness of God, and all the activity and anatomy that goes along with it, was not created to be exposed and flaunted in theaters in such a cheapening, dehumanizing manner. Admit it. People go to X movies to get "kicks," and from a steady diet of it

Saturday vote backed

Mr. James Vance of Hanover Park wrote to the Fence Post complaining about School Dist. 54's referendums being held on a Saturday or not on a regular election day. This is just plain ordinary dumb. The reason that they are held on Saturdays is to give everybody a chance to vote because usually everybody works during the week.

I am not a township employee, only a resident of 13 years, and I vote in all the bond referendums. The reason why I vote is that it's a right that I have and I use that right. A lot of people don't vote because they really don't care which way the vote goes. So the next time you don't want a referendum passed, call your neighbors and talk to them about their voting rights. Maybe out of 50,000 people in our township you'll get 10 per cent, but don't hold your breath. And do you really think that they would vote your way if this referendum had been held any other day?

Some people are so darned apathetic they don't care what happens even if it does touch their wallet and some are patriotic enough to know what their rights are and vote in every election. So if you want to complain, do it to your apathetic neighbors, not the Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 who has enough problems without you sticking them with this one.

'Rock bottom' sales?

Times sure do change! For several years automobile agencies have deemed it necessary to use pretty, sexy-voiced, scantily-clad females in their advertising. But according to an ad in the March 29 Herald, in order to be the first with the latest, one agency portrays a male stalker, clad only in bobby socks, inviting one and all to "streak over to their place of business."

Will such an attraction sell more cars and will it decree that the scanty 'cladding' of females has to go? One must wonder if the family member who used to buy detergents and floor waxes is now buying the family cars. You know what I mean. Seems to me that it is the advertising that has struck rock bottom, er —, what bottom was that, again?

'Polling place poorly marked'

I have a complaint about the polling place for Dist. 108, Wheeling Township. Both my husband and I were very anxious to vote on March 19. Then it dawned on us we were not sure where our polling place was, as it had changed the past two elections.

I had picked up the Herald on Monday and they listed districts and locations. This was the beginning of our problems. They listed the address of our polling place as 525 McHenry Road, Buffalo Grove. They also had a map that was impossible to read.

We started looking for our polling place at 9 a.m. and finally found it at 9:45 a.m. After traveling up and down McHenry Road in Buffalo Grove and then backtracking, assuming it to be a misprint, we still couldn't find the address. We continued on to the village hall seeking assistance.

There we were informed by a very nice lady that our polling place was the club house in Whippetree, about a quarter of a mile from the main entrance. I remarked to this lady that there was no indication at the entrance, not even a flag to designate it was a polling place. She suggested I mention this problem to the workers there.

Upon entering the polls, we brought this matter to the workers' attention. One of the women there said, "Oh, something should be done, shouldn't it?" And that was the height of the conversation.

At noon there were still no markings at the entrance, not even a sign indicating the address. At 4:30 p.m. there was a small sign tacked to the Whippetree entrance sign. This turned out to be a poster for a candidate only.

We put forth the effort to vote, but when you have to go on a treasure hunt to find your own polling place, I feel this is a pretty sad state of affairs.

We wonder just how many people in Dist. 108, Wheeling Township, had our problem and did not vote due to not having the time to follow through on trying to find this location.

We surely hope something will be done to rectify this situation before the November elections.

'No baby-sitters'

I direct this note to Judy Macsmasas and concerned teachers of Thomas Junior High.

I do not send my child to school to be baby-sat by her teachers. She's sent to school to learn. I will say no more, because I'm sure there are a few dedicated teachers who feel they are not baby sitters.

By the way, I kept my daughter home before it was announced that schools would be closed and we live only one short block from school.

'This won't be one of your ordinary nose jobs'

'Land purchases would hike taxes'

The taxpayers of Mount Prospect should not be expected to assume the burden of the Rob Roy purchase. Mayor Teichert has quoted the figures of $30 a year for 20 years as the homeowners share. Thirty dollars a year represents approximately a 30 per cent increase in our local taxes.

The village officials are also contemplating the purchase of the bank building and the Central School site. If the village, the library board and the park district, or any combination of the above, are successful in purchasing these three parcels of real estate, the local taxes will then increase by 40 to 50 per cent over the 1973 taxes. This would be a $40 to $50 a year increase in local taxes alone. Of course the tentacles of all the other taxing bodies will be reaching into our pockets at the same time, for additional increases.

In my opinion, we cannot accept the proposition of the Rob Roy purchase. This is an extravagance which should immediately be exercised from the minds of the village officials.

What, then, should have priority? The purchase of the bank building by the village, the Central School site by the library board, or the purchase of Rob Roy by the village or the park district?

If it is absolutely imperative that Rob Roy remain open space, have our village fathers considered offering this proposition to the forest preserve district? In Cook County the forest preserve district presently has approximately 63,000 acres of open space, with seven golf courses therein. If the forest preserve district could be convinced of the advisability of the Rob Roy purchase, and by the village board going that route, our taxes would probably go up about $1 a year, not $30.

If by some chance the residents of Mount Prospect are panicked into the Rob Roy purchase, let us hope it is not retained as a golf course, which is usually surrounded by an eight foot steel fence, topped with barbed wire, and which shuts out 80 to 90 per cent of the people from using the land.

Open spaces paid for by the people should be accessible to all the people every day of the year and not catered to a small segment of society for their exclusive use a few months of the year. We do not need and cannot afford another golf course. I would like to remind the village and the park district officials of Webster's definition of a "park."

"A tract of land set aside to be preserved as near its natural state as possible, or beautified by landscape gardening, to which the public have access or enjoyment."

If, and I repeat if, more open space is needed in this area, Rob Roy should be converted into a park and not retained as a golf course.

Village criticizes Municipal League on sewage plant

by JERRY THOMAS

Elk Grove Village officials have adopted a resolution blasting the Illinois Municipal League for throwing its support to Des Plaines in that city's effort to block the Metropolitan Sanitary District from building a sewage treatment plant.

Trustee Edward Kenna proposed what he termed "the squelching resolution." "I want this board's support to ask the league to take its nose out of this affair," said Kenna. "As members of the league, Elk Grove Village should have been checked with before the league announced its alliance with Des Plaines," said Kenna.

Kenna said the league never discussed its action with the 932-member municipalities and contends its plan to file a "friend of the court" petition supporting Des Plaines' contention that municipal home rule supercedes MSD jurisdiction "is just a cover up."

"It's fishy that the league threw its support to Des Plaines, maybe it's because Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel is the League's former president," said Kenna.

"The resolution strongly tells the league to stay out of this issue and just as strongly stresses we are in agreement with the league's efforts to work for home rule powers," he added.

KENNA MAINTAINED the real purpose of the league's court support of Des Plaines is to prevent construction of the proposed O'Hare sewage treatment plant at the southeast corner of Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road.

"We consider immediate construction of that plant to be vital in resolving sewage pollution and flooding in Elk Grove Village and neighboring communities," said Kenna.

"Construction of that plant is of overriding importance, let the league find some other test for home rule," he said.

"I'm calling for the league to immediately cease its support of the City of Des Plaines in that city's dispute with the MSD," said Kenna. "Years of argument have passed because a few people in Des Plaines, like Ald. Richard Ward (8th), are playing politics and delaying a much-needed facility," said Kenna. "It's time for this nonsense to stop," he said.

DES PLAINES Mayor Herbert Behrel said Wednesday. "There is no playing of politics on my part — I'm not even running for reelection. I agree it is a much-needed plant but I don't agree with his statement about the politics."

The trustee was supported in his arguments by board members Michael Tosto and Nancy Vanderweel.

Kenna said he will look to Mount Prospect for help to discourage the League from supporting Des Plaines in this issue of treatment plant location.

"That community also needs the plant. Our village, especially the Northeast corner, is severely affected by sewage back-up because present interceptor lines cannot handle the sewage," he said.

Mount Prospect officials were not available for comment Wednesday.

Kenna added that Elk Grove Village recently gave the MSD easement rights to construct a deep 80-inch diameter interceptor line along Oakton Street. "The line would feed into the proposed plant and solve our problems and other communities along the line and now this new hangup from the league hits us," said Kenna.

TRUSTEE GEORGE Spees attempted to delay action on the resolution. "I want time to look deeper into the issue, after all we just read about it in the paper and it's not like the league to do things like this. I want to talk to them about it," said Spees.

"If you want to look deeper wait until it rains and look in people's living rooms in the northern edge of town where the sewage backs up," said Trustee Vanderweel.

"This resolution slaps the league in the face. I want no part of hasty action like this," said Spees. His was the only dissenting voice. He abstained from voting.

According to Steve Sargent, executive director of the league, the Des Plaines case could be a landmark in defining home rule powers. The decision to join Des Plaines was a unanimous vote by the executive committee of the league.

The city's battle with MSD over the site for the plant, which is partly in Des Plaines' 8th Ward, has been going on for more than nine years. Des Plaines officials, led by Ald. Ward, say the plant would be a nuisance to nearby residential areas on Des Plaines' west side. They contend alternative sites are available in the area.

WARD RECENTLY spoke before the Elk Grove Village Board of Health, calling for its support to defeat MSD's plans to build a plant he said would lead to aerosol bacterial contamination.

MSD attorneys contend the city's attempt to exercise home rule to shut the plant out constitutes an abusive use of power. They say that if all local communities were allowed to block construction of MSD plants, the district would not be able to build anywhere.

"We can't treat our sewage in Chocoma, Wyo., we've got to do it here and right now," said Kenna.

Copies of the resolution will go to the league's executive board, to the MSD and Mount Prospect and Des Plaines officials.

Suburb cop seized in theft

Elk Grove Village police arrested a Hometown, Ill., policeman for a Jan. 23 theft of $98,058 worth of television equipment.

Ernest C. Weyhe, 37, of 4634 W. 88th St., Hometown, is in custody at the Cook County Jail, charged with the theft from the GTE Sylvania Plant in Elk Grove Village.

Hometown Police Chief Donald Buckley said Weyhe is a part-time policeman with the Hometown department but has been relieved of his duties.

Weyhe allegedly drove away with a loaded trailer full of television and stereo

$90,000 for flood problems

Township board offers to aid 'Manor'

by BOB GALLAS

Elk Grove Township has offered to pay half of the estimated $180,000 cost to correct flooding problems in the Arlington Manor Subdivision, but close observers agree that it will be a long time, if ever, before the township actually spends that money.

Owners of the 224 lots in that subdivision are supposed to come up with the other $90,000, a job that will probably be easier said than done.

Only about 15 to 20 lots in the area are actually affected by flooding after heavy rains, although the problem is expected to get worse as additional construction goes up near the subdivision.

While those 15 or 20 homeowners are ready to do anything to correct the problem which fills their basements and recreation rooms with water, their neighbors, who haven't been affected yet, aren't as eager to cough up the estimated $400 per lot to solve the problem.

THE TOWNSHIP HAS no powers to assess and therefore force residents to come up with the rest of the money, so many of those who attended a township meeting Tuesday to discuss the problem decided to form a homeowners' association, which will be responsible for raising the money, and then contract with the township to have necessary sewers and a water retention basin installed.

The first problem facing those in the group will be convincing their neighbors to join and eventually find a way to finance their end of the flood relief project.

"Only about 19 per cent of the water we get is our own," said Marilyn Sandner, who has been active in the battle to get flood relief. "That's why many of the people feel badly that we have to foot a large part of the bill."

Mrs. Sandner said it's hoped a meeting for the homeowners will be called sometime next week to talk about flooding. Until then, many residents plan to look into planned construction for the area, which could be handled by the proposed sewer system for the subdivision, but would only worsen flooding if the sewers are not built.

Mrs. Sandner said she and others plan to attend an Arlington Heights zoning board meeting next week which will be discussing new buildings along Central Road at Belmont.

A SIMILAR program for flood relief was proposed back in 1965, but citizens against it won a court battle which killed the project. "The courts declared there was not need for it," said Richard Hall, township supervisor.

The township paid for the engineering study to solve the flooding problem and has offered the homeowners free legal counsel, in addition to paying one-half of the project cost. The rest, according to Hall, is squarely up to the homeowners.

"We've felt like we've bent over backwards trying to help. Now it's up to them," said Hall. "I just hope they get going before the next big rain," said Hall.

Hall added that many in the subdivision aren't affected by flooding directly yet, each homeowner would benefit from the sewers going in, since property values would most likely go up.

Busing of Chicagoans to Centex rapped

"I'll see no outsiders from Chicago on Elk Grove buses," said Elk Grove Village Trustee Ronald Chernick.

Chernick offered instant objections Tuesday to what he called mass busing from Chicago to the village's industrial park. Trustee Edward Kenna had proposed studying a joint bus system between the village and industries.

Kenna told Chernick and the board he had talked to the Elk Grove Assn of Industry and Commerce, which is conducting an independent transportation study. "I perceive that the village could save money and provide a more complete service if we got together and operated a joint system. However this is just talk," said Kenna.

"Right now, the village sends a commuter bus to the train station and rides back empty. If we could carry back paying customers to the industrial park it would be great," Kenna said.

AT PRESENT the village operates a daily and Saturday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in town dial-a-ride bus service and a commuter bus to the Arlington Heights train station.

The village does not provide transportation to the industrial park and had been considering a bus to the park for the convenience of residents who work there.

Chernick maintained he had nothing against busing Elk Grove Village residents to the industrial park. "Are you thinking of sending a bus to Jackson Park on the south side of Chicago?" he asked Kenna.

Trustee Nancy Vanderweel said the village transportation committee's first objective is to provide transportation to residents. "Let the industrial association complete its study before we decide if we want to or need to, provide transportation of the employment base from Chicago out here," she said.

She said it would be sensible to continue a joint study with the association. Chernick continued to object at the thought of spending village funds to transport "outsiders."

KENNA SAID THE village had no plans to provide a free service. "But if subsequent discussions show expansion and sharing of costs can provide better service for residents and satisfy the commission I'll bring this discussion up again," Kenna said. He stresses that he only brought the issue up as a point of information not a request for action.

In related action, Stanley Klyber, executive vice president of the association, objected to the village transportation committee's consideration of a once-weekly bus to Woodfield Shopping Center.

"When you do take this matter up for discussion include us in that meeting," he requested.

Klyber called for support from the village officials. "Don't approve any program that would take customers out of village businesses," he asked.

Dist. 211 wrapup

September vote looms for schools

by KATHERINE BOYCE

High School Dist. 211 may go to the voters in September to ask for money to build a new high school, remodel Palatine High School and put additions on the other four schools in the district.

Dist. 211 Associate Supt. Bruce Altergott said a referendum would be used to build the district's sixth high school in the Winston Park subdivision of Palatine. The school is scheduled to open in 1976 and ground breaking is planned this spring.

A referendum is necessary because the Illinois Capital Development Board did not approve the district's request for state funds to build the school, said Altergott. The administration was notified of the state's action unofficially on Tuesday, he said, and asked the board of education for the referendum Tuesday night. The board and the administration will study the matter and will probably make a decision sometime next month, said Altergott.

Dist. 211's last referendum for $17 million in bonds passed in 1970 and was used to build Hoffman Estates High School and an addition to the district administration center. $8.65 million left from that referendum will be used for the sixth high school but due to inflation the district does not have enough money left to cover the entire cost. The building is budgeted at $9.5 million.

The Dist. 211 board had hoped to complete the sixth school with state funds through the Illinois Capital Development Board which was created by the state legislature last year to allocate state funds for new school buildings in Illinois. The state board distributes the money on the basis of financial need. According to Altergott, the state said Dist. 211 would not qualify for funds.

The administration has not set a specific dollar amount to be sought in the referendum but has suggested the money also be used to remodel Palatine High School, expand Schaumburg, Fremd and Conant High schools and build swimming pools at all five high schools.

Palatine High School is Dist. 211's oldest school. The oldest part of the school, built in 1929, is in need of major repairs and remodeling.

Schaumburg High School was built in 1970 and planned for 2,500 students. School officials now estimate the actual capacity of the building at about 2,100. Schaumburg was designed and built by the state because Dist. 211 did not have enough bonding power at the time to finance construction. While the school was being built the state made some changes in the building which lowered the capacity.

Dist. 211 officials would like to enlarge the cafeteria, storage and receiving areas and vocational facilities at Schaumburg. They would also like to add an auditorium to Schaumburg, Fremd and Conant High schools.

If a referendum passes it probably would not raise taxes in the district, said Altergott. School officials would probably issue new bonds from the referendum as old bonds approved in 1970 are retired.

Administrators get 6% hike

The High School Dist. 211 board of education Tuesday approved a six per cent increase in the salary schedule for district administrators.

The increase raises the minimum administrative salary from $15,600 to $16,500 and the maximum salary from $40,900 to $43,350. Administrators are evaluated individually by the board of education and given merit increases in salary. Eight groups of administrators are placed within the salary schedule ranging from the dean of students to the superintendent.

Creek reelected president

Robert Creek was reelected president of the High School Dist. 211 board of education by a unanimous vote of board members.

Creek has served as president of the board since 1970. Dist. 211 Business Mgr. James Slater was elected secretary to the board. The board has scheduled its regular meetings for the second and fourth Thursdays of every month at 8 p.m. in the district administration center, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine.

Village board wrapup

Three special weeks decreed in village

Sanitariums, industrialists and God were supported in village resolutions decreed by Elk Grove Village Pres. Charles Zetek Tuesday.

Zetek recognized Sanitariums Week in Elk Grove Village lauding Sanitarian Barbara Watson's efforts.

"Her work, as is other sanitariums", is little recognized but very important to environmental health of this community and the world," said Zetek.

Zetek also proclaimed the days of June 15-16 as Trade Career Fair days in Elk Grove Village. He commended the Elk Grove Village Chamber of Industry and Commerce for sponsoring the trade fair.

Over 1,200 firms who have offices in Elk Grove Village will be represented in the fair, Zetek said.

The show will be held at Elk Grove Village High School on Elk Grove Boulevard and Arlington Heights Road.

"I commend this group for providing career information to both students and older residents and encourage residents to attend," said Zetek.

Another resolution declares April 30 as a National Day of Humiliation Fasting and Prayer.

Zetek said he wanted village officials and residents to support a recent congressional resolution declaring the day "a time to humble ourselves before our Creator."

Bicycle race slated June 9

The Windy City Wheelmen will roll into Elk Grove Village June 9 for a bicycle race in the industrial park.

Village officials Tuesday gave the club permission to hold its third annual race on a route between Rte. 83 and Tonne Roads in the industrial park.

The streets will be closed to traffic from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Streets affected are Touhy Avenue, Lively Boulevard, Chase and Estes avenues.

Budget to be revealed May 14

Elk Grove Village residents and village officials will see a final draft of a proposed $6.8 million dollar budget May 14. Village officials are meeting with department heads this week in a series of budget meetings.

The committee has met with the village manager, clerk and police departments and has meetings scheduled with fire and other departments.

The fire department will present its budget proposal that includes new programs in fire prevention at tonight's 7:30 p.m. budget committee meeting.

A May 1 budget meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. to discuss building, public works and other departments.

On May 6, the committee chaired by George Spees and other trustees, plans to meet in executive session to discuss personnel, wages, and policy.

The $6.8 million dollar figure represents expected tax revenue and approximately $1.5 million of federal revenue sharing funds.

Chairman Spees said if meetings go well, May 14 is the target date for a budget vote.

Meet on business license rules

The Elk Grove Village Assn. of Industry and Commerce and members of the Elk Grove Village Judicial Planning and Zoning Committee, will meet at 9 a.m. Saturday to talk about possible revisions in the business license ordinance.

Trustee Edward Kenna, chairman of the committee, said this is probably the last of a series of meetings and said the proposed amendments to the ordinance should be ready for board review shortly.

20-mile bike trail waiting for residents to give it a try

Both the serious and not-so-serious bicycle riders will be accommodated this weekend as the Elk Grove Park District's Bicycle Club kicks off the riding season with two rides.

The first, for the more enthusiastic rider, will start at 9 a.m. Sunday, departing from the Elk Grove High School parking lot on a 50-mile trip on the village bike course, plus an additional 30 miles of riding south and west of Elk Grove Village.

A $2 registration fee will be charged for the 50-mile ride to cover the cost of a backup wagon to take care of riders who find out they're not as enthusiastic as they thought. Forms may be obtained by calling 437-5087.

A second, 20-mile ride along the village trail will start at 1 p.m., starting at the Lyons Park Community Center, 180 Kennedy Blvd.

While most of the bike route is marked by special identifying signs, there will be no markings along Biesterfeld Road.

Cook County officials recently turned down the village's request to post signs along the road.

"This (posting signs) would imply some measure of safety and instill a false sense of security," said county officials. "Until bike paths can be built by local people, the county is unable to give its permission to post signs."

Bike route marked by signs

The 20-mile official bike trail through the village is marked by special signs, except along Biesterfeld Road where Cook County officials have refused to grant permission to post the signs.

The course starts at Elk Grove High School on Elk Grove Boulevard at Charingcross Road, and runs as follows:

East on Elk Grove Boulevard to Kennedy, west on Kennedy to Brantwood, north on Brantwood to Chelmsford, north on Chelmsford to Cosman, west on Cosman to Leicester, south on Leicester to Gloucester.

The course continues west on Gloucester to Bisner, south on Bisner to Biesterfeld, west on Biesterfeld to Rohlwing (old Ill. Rte. 53), north on Rohlwing to White, west on White to Glenn, east on Glenn to Grissom, north on Grissom back to White.

The bike trail then continues east on White back to Rohlwing, south on Rohlwing to Biesterfeld, east on Biesterfeld to Bisner, south on Bisner to Cheltenham.

THE TRAIL THEN follows on Cheltenham to Wellington, east on Wellington to Berkenshire, south on Berkenshire to Trowbridge, east on Trowbridge to Somerset, north on Somerset to Parkchester, east on Parkchester to Clearmont, east on Clearmont to Kenilworth, south on Kenilworth to Carlisle, north on Carlisle to Kennedy, east on Kennedy to Cypress, south on Cypress to Walnut, east on Walnut to Maple, north on Maple to Love, north on Love to Elk Grove Blvd.

The trail then heads into the industrial park, heading east on Elk Grove Boulevard, to Touhy, continuing east to Estes, still heading east to Lively. Head south on Lively to Greenleaf, east on Greenleaf to Nicholas, south on Nicholas to Pratt, west on Pratt to Lively, north on Lively to Estes, west on Estes to Tonne.

The trail then leaves the industrial park area heading north on Tonne to Landmeier, west on Landmeier to Wildwood, north on Wildwood to Higgins, west on Higgins to Forest, south on Forest to Ridgewood, south on Ridgewood to Holly, to Charingcross, south on Charingcross back to the high school to end the 20-mile round trip.

Ole!

Mexican fast-food chain hopes to blend right in with Old Town

Statues of sleeping Mexicans, sombreroes tilted to protect siesta privacy, may be more at home in Schaumburg's Old Town district than cigar store Indians.

Village officials have been working more than a year to prepare an Old Town ordinance, which would limit architecture in the Schaumburg-Roselle roads area to Midwest, turn-of-the-century style.

But this week they learned Taco Bell, a Mexican menu restaurant chain, hopes to be one of their first new businesses, complete with adobe walls, red tile roof, arched entries and decor variously described as Southern California, Mexican and even Spanish.

MAYOR ROBERT O. Atcher and village trustees convinced Gabriel Caliendo, Taco Bell representative, to commission a commercial artist to illustrate what Caliendo described as "cosmetic changes" which could make the restaurant more palatable.

While the trustees said they welcome Taco Bell to the village and are pleased to see a plan for food service in that area, they asked for changes in the shape of doorways and a toning down of "garish" special effects that are part of the chain's identification.

Atcher noted the chain's standard sign has "a little bit more of a carnival nature than we intended," and suggested with removal of the sign and "zig-zag blocks" the restaurant "would not look nearly so out of place."

Adobe architecture is among the oldest forms in America, said Atcher, pointing to St. Augustine, Fla., the oldest U.S. city founded in 1593. Taco Bell's architecture is typical of that city, suggested Atcher.

But it isn't Old Town, Schaumburg, style, the mayor asserted.

Correction

The Herald Wednesday correctly reported that just one vote separated Judith Troehler and Stanley Carrier in the official vote tally Tuesday night.

However, the numbers in the vote total were listed incorrectly. The correct official vote totals are 1,346 for Mrs. Troehler and 1,345 for Carrier.

Mrs. Troehler was declared the winner of a three-year term on the board. Carrier has said he will not ask for a recount.

Memories of Schaumburg Centre

Fred Volkening, 71-year area resident, recalls days when Schaumburg and Roselle roads were hub of farm community

by STIRLING MORITA

Fred Volkening has lived in Schaumburg 71 years, and the mention of Schaumburg Centre brought back memories.

Schaumburg Centre, split by Roselle and Schaumburg roads, once was the social and business hub for the farming community of Schaumburg Township.

Volkening recalled the days of helping to build the first paved road in the township — Roselle Road — and cutting ice on a pond in 20-degree-below-zero weather. He came to the area in 1903 at the age of three.

Some of the buildings still stand, although many have been torn down. Volkening remembered the way they once were.

THE BUILDING housing the Schaumrose Inn on the southeast corner of the intersection was once a hardware store, a soft-drink place, a store with pool table and other machines and later a tavern.

Across the street on the northeast corner, a bank was constructed in the late 1920s. The building now houses the Hoffman Estates Realty Co.

When Schaumburg State Bank (no relation to its modern-day namesake) went out of business, Herman Hattendorf moved his grocery store from down the street to the corner site.

On the southwest corner was a combination general store, saloon and dance hall owned by John Fenze. "The store had everything — women's clothing, food, everything." The store also served as a post office. The area had been in various postal rural routes over the years — Elgin, Palatine and Roselle.

MRS. VOLKENING fondly recalled the box social dances held on the second floor of the store. Volkening said the second floor was used for almost everything, adding that he registered for the Army there in 1918. Once a week a dentist stopped at the store to pull teeth.

Fenze owned a warehouse on the northwest corner, where farm machinery for sale was stored.

The general store burned down, and Volkening was one of the men who attempted to extinguish the blaze. The warehouse was leveled later, and both lots remained empty.

Fred Volkening

Then an Ace Hardware store sprouted where the general store had been.

Next to the general store, Fred and Herman Nerge ran a blacksmith and wagon shop.

In back of the Schaumrose Inn building was an ice-storage shed, where pond ice was stacked and stored in sawdust and hay for summer use. There once was a pond by what is now the Bethel Baptist Church, north of the intersection. Residents went out in freezing weather to cut large chunks of ice and load them onto sleighs.

Between the barn and another building was the firehouse where the hand pumper was stored. The building housed a tavern, which was later to become Lengi's.

THERE WAS a special hall in the tavern where all the township meetings were conducted.

Automobiles did not make their way into the area until about 1910. Volkening's family was one of the first three in the area to have a horseless carriage. Use of the horse did not start to die until the 1930s.

Schaumburg Centre had a small railroad line to Roselle, where the main lines were. Materials to pave Roselle Road were transported on the tiny rail line.

Volkening worked on the construction, supplying a team of horses to grade the roadway for about $5 a day. The pavement, when completed, extended from just north of the village of Roselle to Higgins Road.

VOLKENING SAID cars could not be used in winter because of road conditions. The horse remained the surest way of transportation for a while.

A person could tell who was driving down the street by the certain sound made by their team of horses and wagon.

The 74-year-old Volkening, a member of the village police and fire commission, shrugged his shoulders in reaction to the massive growth of the area.

"I've seen it all," he said.

THE STATE AND MADISON of Schaumburg. In the 1920s Schaumburg Centre was the hub of township activity at Roselle and Schaumburg roads, which were gravel and dirt. The view looks south on Roselle.

A lot of Americans are suffering from withdrawal symptoms.

What's wrong?

You're making more money than you ever have.

But every time you plan on putting money into your savings, you end up withdrawing some.

Maybe you're buying too many little things you don't really need. Little here, little there. After awhile it adds up.

You know, that's just the theory behind the Payroll Savings Plan. You sign up where you work, and they set a little aside from each paycheck and use it to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. You don't really miss the money that way . . . and before you know it, you've got a nest egg that's really worth something.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970 . . . with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

The Payroll Savings Plan. A great way to save a little here, a little there and end up with a bankroll.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

For lots bordering bicycle trail

Leases extending residents' property issued by parks

The first leases for homeowners whose property backs on the Commonwealth Edison right-of-way bike trail in Palatine were issued this week by the Palatine Park District.

The leases involve a 50-foot extension of each resident's yard along the right-of-way, under regulations set by the park district for the land bordering the Palatine Trail. The actual trail is located along the central 85 feet of the 185-foot-wide right-of-way.

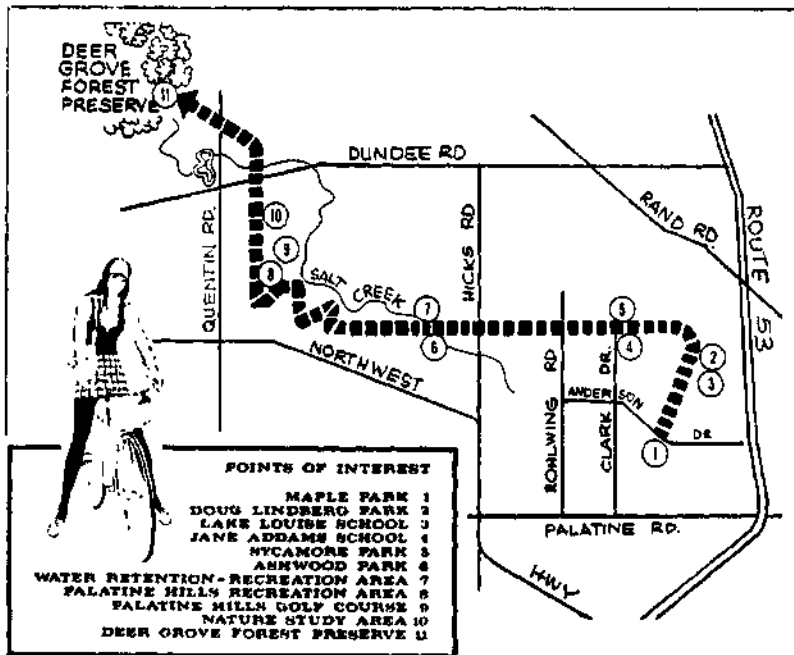

Property involved in the leasing arrangement borders on a two-mile stretch of the right-of-way, from Lake Louise to Smith Street.

Insurance prerequisites for the leases are being met by a group policy which will cost each participating homeowner $15 per year. The insurance covers possible injury to a guest or homeowners on the leased right-of-way. Regular park district insurance covers injuries suffered during park district-related activities.

HOMEOWNERS WHO take out the leases and insurance may landscape the property and use it as an extension of their backyard, although they may not fence off the property or put up black-ades.

Another 30 residents of the 120 bordering the right-of-way are expected to take out leases soon. Although the leasing arrangement has been available for more than a year, homeowners were reluctant to participate until recently. The trail along the two-mile right-of-way was constructed last summer. The 4.7-mile trail will be completed this summer.

Park and village officials signed an agreement this week for a sidewalk and trail underpass at Hicks Road, when the state begins construction of its planned widening of Hicks this summer.

THE HICKS ROAD underpass met with opposition from some residents recently who argued it would be more dangerous than an overpass. Park district and Illinois Highway Dept. officials have worked out several safety precautions for the 115-ft. underpass. These include lights which will remain on constantly when the underpass is in use and gates at both ends to prevent persons from using the underpass during certain hours.

A culvert already exists where the underpass will go, making the project much cheaper than constructing an overpass, according to Ron Kennedy of the state highway department. The floor of the culvert is being raised to help prevent flooding of the bike trail.

The trail, being constructed for $121,685, begins at Maple Park in Winston Park subdivision, runs west through the village to the Palatine Hills Golf Course, and will eventually lead to the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

An overpass for the trail is planned at Dundee Road when improvements are made on that route.

Voters approved construction of the trail in October, 1972, as part of a $1.4 million referendum.

A SURE STRIKE is on the way for one young bowler in Bowling Lanes. Youngsters age 9 to 13 try their skill the Palatine Park District lessons at Rolling Meadows each Tuesday from 3:30 to 5 p.m.

Salt Creek hits snag in work on two parks

Salt Creek Park District's improvement work on its two parks in Palatine has encountered a temporary delay.

A request from the park district for a village variance to park on public property at Rose Park and Winston Park has been referred to the village board's streets and traffic committee for review. The board has also asked Palatine Police Chief Jerry Bratcher to make a recommendation on the variance request.

The park district is asking for permission to have five parking spaces at Winston Park off Joyce Street and parking space for 17 cars in front of the recreation building at Rose Park.

James DeVos, park district director, said the variance was needed because both parks are very small and to move the parking area off the public right of way would result in a loss of green space. At Rose Park parking is being eliminated in the rear of the recreation building for safety reasons.

State legislators to meet with officials

The Palatine Village Board will meet with state legislators from the 2nd and 3rd Districts to discuss legislation which affects Palatine at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Slade Street Fire Station, 117 W. Slade St.

Areas of discussion are expected to include flooding, home rule powers and recent attempts to reduce the amount of state revenue sharing distributed to municipalities. The meeting is open to the public.

Parks hike budget for conferences

Conference and meeting expenditures for Palatine Park District board members and employees are being increased by $1,140 over last year's budget.

The major jump of $1,000 will be spent for board members' conferences and an Indiana University executive development school. The board also agreed to subsidize local Rotary fees for Park Director Fred P. Hall, excluding the cost of social events.

Nominations for top Mom being taken at stores

Nominations for Palatine's mother of the year are being accepted in many of the downtown Palatine stores beginning today through May 9.

The new contest, started this year by the 27 members of the Downtown Palatine Merchants Association, is open to all mothers who live or work in Palatine or Palatine Township.

Official entry blanks and rules are available through any of the 27 members of the association. The entry blanks consist of a sentence — "My mother should be Palatine's mother of the year because" — which has to be completed in 50 words or less and deposited at participating stores.

Entries will be judged on originality, neatness, grammar and sincerity. The winning mother will receive $100 worth of gift certificates. Second place earns $50 worth of certificates and third place wins $25 in certificates.

A panel of three prominent Palatine citizens will serve as judges.

"Our merchants want to encourage everyone, especially youngsters, to remember their mothers on Mothers' Day with more than just token recognition," said Mrs. Marilyn Mazzenga of the Mothers' Day Contest committee.

School discipline unit to review policies

High School Dist. 211's discipline committee will meet Friday to review the district's policy on student discipline in its five high schools.

The meeting will be at 3:30 p.m. in the district administration center, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine. Parents, students, teachers and members of the board of education may attend. One administrator from each school is a member of the committee.

The discipline policy has been criticized by some students, parents, and board members in recent months because it allows for the expulsion of students for poor school attendance. About 30 persons attended the committee's first meeting April 5. On Friday the committee is expected to discuss discipline procedures, suspension or expulsion of students for gross disobedience and misconduct, student smoking and use or possession of drugs.

Village may share fire funds snubbed by Rolling Meadows

Some $1,500 declined by Rolling Meadows from Palatine Township for the city fire department will likely be divided between the Palatine and Barrington fire districts.

Township Supervisor Howard Olsen said Wednesday distribution of the funds will have to be considered by the township board but the $1,538 total which had been offered to the city probably will be divided between the two other fire departments which have requested the funds.

The funds had been offered to the city as part of a program to distribute $5,000 of the township's revenue sharing funds to fire departments for use in their paramedic programs. The city council Tuesday voted 6-5 to decline the funds, with Mayor Roland J. Meyer casting the deciding vote against the grant.

OLSEN SAID the funds have already been accepted by the Palatine and Barrington fire departments. Distribution of the funds is based on population, with most of the funds therefore offered to Palatine and Rolling Meadows.

The council vote Tuesday came after aldermen and Meyer questioned whether equipment purchased with the funds could be used to service persons living in Rolling Meadows but not within the township limits.

Ald. Thomas Scanlan (1st) read a memorandum from city Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty which said Olsen explained the funds could be used for the paramedic program to serve city residents in Palatine Township. He questioned whether city residents living south of Central Road in Elk Grove Township or in the Meadow Trace complex in Schaumburg Township could then be served by the equipment.

TWO TOWNSHIP auditors, Liston Pennington and Donald Bellm, Tuesday could not contradict the statement, although Olsen denied Wednesday that use of the funds would be restricted. He said equipment purchased with the funds could be used outside the township because of mutual aid pacts which exist between fire departments.

"I think the thing that everybody should have understood is that we did this to establish the principle that these funds would be used outside the township limits," Olsen said. He said a situation similar to the Rolling Meadows case of overlapping township boundaries also exists in Barrington where the funds have been accepted.

Only a small portion of Palatine Township is served by the Barrington fire district, but equipment purchased with the funds will likely be used in Barrington Township service as well.

"Basically what we are doing is making sure that the equipment will be available to residents of Palatine Township," he said.

THE CITY COUNCIL, in declining the funds, had asked that the funds be used to lower tax rates for city residents, but township officials have said that will not be done because reduced tax rates would mean less revenue sharing allotments to the township.

Ald. Thomas Scanlan (2nd) also said Tuesday that accepting the funds would be "inconsistent" because the council has gone on record as officially opposing township government.

The legal authority of the township's right to distribute the funds has been challenged by Meyer based on an opinion issued by Ill. Atty. Gen. William Scott.

Scott ruled that townships in Illinois are not empowered to spend the revenues on uses for which it cannot spend its own funds.

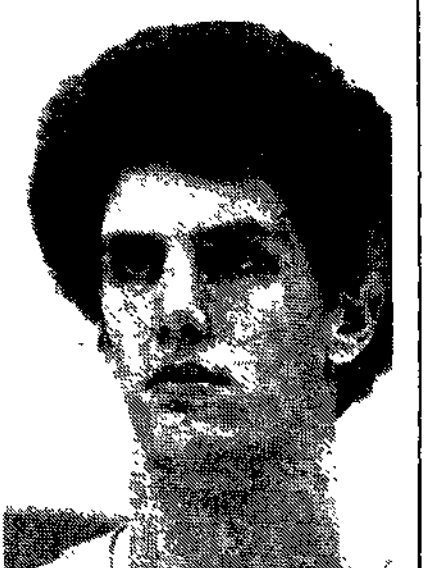

Township government in Illinois is restricted by statute in its spending scope. Bellm said Tuesday, however, that former U.S. Treasury Sec. George Schultz has issued an opinion supporting the expenditures.

Dist. 211 wrapup

September vote looms for schools

by KATHERINE BOYCE

High School Dist. 211 may go to the voters in September to ask for money to build a new high school, remodel Palatine High School and put additions on the other four schools in the district.

Dist. 211 Associate Supt. Bruce Altergott said a referendum would be used to build the district's sixth high school in the Winston Park subdivision of Palatine. The school is scheduled to open in 1976 and ground breaking is planned this spring.

A referendum is necessary because the Illinois Capital Development Board did not approve the district's request for state funds to build the school, said Altergott. The administration was notified of the state's action unofficially on Tuesday, he said, and asked the board of education for the referendum Tuesday night. The board and the administration will study the matter and will probably make a decision sometime next month, said Altergott.

Dist. 211's last referendum for $17 million in bonds passed in 1970 and was used to build Hoffman Estates High School and an addition to the district administration center. $8.65 million left from that referendum will be used for the sixth high school but due to inflation the district does not have enough money left to cover the entire cost. The building is budgeted at $9.5 million.

The Dist. 211 board had hoped to complete the sixth school with state funds through the Illinois Capital Development Board which was created by the state legislature last year to allocate state funds for new school buildings in Illinois. The state board distributes the money on the basis of financial need. According to Altergott, the state said Dist. 211 would not qualify for funds.

The administration has not set a specific dollar amount to be sought in the referendum but has suggested the money also be used to remodel Palatine High School, expand Schaumburg, Fremd and Conant High schools and build swimming pools at all five high schools.

Palatine High School is Dist. 211's oldest school. The oldest part of the school, built in 1929, is in need of major repairs and remodeling.

Schaumburg High School was built in 1970 and planned for 2,500 students. School officials now estimate the actual capacity of the building at about 2,100. Schaumburg was designed and built by the state because Dist. 211 did not have enough bonding power at the time to finance construction. While the school was being built the state made some changes in the building which lowered the capacity.

Dist. 211 officials would like to enlarge the cafeteria, storage and receiving areas and vocational facilities at Schaumburg. They would also like to add an auditorium to Schaumburg, Fremd and Conant High schools.

If a referendum passes it probably would not raise taxes in the district, said Altergott. School officials would probably issue new bonds from the referendum as old bonds approved in 1970 are retired.

Administrators get 6% hike

The High School Dist. 211 board of education Tuesday approved a six per cent increase in the salary schedule for district administrators.

The increase raises the minimum administrative salary from $15,600 to $16,500 and the maximum salary from $40,900 to $43,350. Administrators are evaluated individually by the board of education and given merit increases in salary. Eight groups of administrators are placed within the salary schedule ranging from the dean of students to the superintendent.

Creek reelected president

Robert Creek was reelected president of the High School Dist. 211 board of education by a unanimous vote of board members.

Creek has served as president of the board since 1970. Dist. 211 Business Mgr. James Slater was elected secretary to the board. The board has scheduled its regular meetings for the second and fourth Thursdays of every month at 8 p.m. in the district administration center, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine.

Traffic study to be reviewed

The preliminary traffic engineering study of Palatine's central business district will be reviewed by the streets and traffic committee of the Palatine Village Board Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Slade Street Fire Station, 117 W. Slade St.

The traffic study is being prepared by Rolfe T. Gustus in conjunction with redevelopment plans for the downtown area prepared by Wilton Battles, Planning Horizons Inc. The village is paying for the traffic study and the redevelopment plans are being financed by the New Palatine Committee, a group of businessmen working on the plans.

Montessori open house

Dawn Gate Montessori School, 728 S. Wilke Rd., Palatine, is sponsoring an open house Sunday from 2-5 p.m. as part of the Illinois observance of Montessori Day. Eveline Stenzel will be hostess of the event, to show the Montessori environment to the public.

PTA notes

Paul Jung, director of personnel and informational services in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, will speak at a Hunting Ridge School PTA coffee starting at 1:15 p.m. today at 202 Lexington, Hoffman Estates.

Jung is scheduled to discuss employment procedures in the district and the use of teacher aides and clerical aides in the school. A teacher aide from Hunting Ridge is also scheduled to explain her role in working with students and teachers.

Reservations are not necessary, but are being requested. Anyone interested in attending is asked to call 359-4374.

Fourth of July parade marchers

Marchers in the Palatine Fourth of July parade are being lined up now by Palatine Jaycees. Individuals or groups interested in marching in the 1.2-mile parade on the holiday should contact Bill Metcalf, chairman of the celebration.

Information about the parade is available from Metcalf by phoning 359-3312 or writing him at 950 Countryside Dr., Apt. 103, Palatine, 60067.

OPEN SEVEN DAYS A WEEK

IT'S STILL TWO LANES but at least it's new for drivers on the unfinished portion of Dundee Road between Elmhurst and Buffalo Grove roads. State officials hope to have traffic riding on new pavement between the entire widening project, Elmhurst Road to Ill. Rte. 53, by June 15.

Completion expected by fall

Dundee Rd. work under way again

by JOE FRANZ
Construction of Dundee Road was in full swing Wednesday and state officials said if the nice weather hangs on, construction should be completed by fall.

Albert Sifrer, project engineer for the Illinois Division of Highways, said workers have finished tearing out the old westbound pavement and have begun final grading. After grading is completed, the sub-base will be installed, followed by paving.

The project consists of widening the road to four lanes between Elmhurst Road and Ill. Rte. 53 through Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights.

BEFORE CONSTRUCTION was shut down for the winter, workmen have paved two lanes between Elmhurst Road west about 300 feet past Buffalo Grove Road.

Sifrer said the two lanes should be completed to Rte. 53 by June 15. At that time, traffic will shift completely from the two battered lanes that now exist to the new pavement. State officials have said the new pavement will make traveling on the road much safer.

Sifrer also said the realignments of Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove roads will be connected to Dundee Road once that initial two-lane job is finished.

Both roads were realigned last summer to meet extensions north of Dundee Road. Officials said the realignments will eliminate congestion and may possibly reduce accidents around Dundee Road.

The realignments originally were not going to be hooked up until the entire project was finished, but Buffalo Grove officials requested the work be done when two lanes are finished.

IN ADDITION to the realignments, Sifrer said the 900-foot portion of Arlington Heights Road north of Dundee will be repaired after June 15. The road has been in a state of disrepair for more than a year now, and residents have complained about the hazardous driving conditions and damage sustained by their cars.

Sifrer said completion of all four lanes on Dundee Road is scheduled for Oct. 1.

The project, he said, is the number one road priority in the northern region of Illinois.

State officials and Greco Contractors, the firm doing the work, have been severely criticized by residents, merchants and village officials because construction was not completed last year. Residents have complained that the road is dangerous and an inconvenience and merchants claim its condition has hurt business.

Under the state contract, Greco has about 100 working days to complete the project before a fine is assessed against them, Sifrer said. Working days are defined as days when weather and other factors will permit construction.

"IF YOU COUNT their working days, they probably would have until clear through December to complete the project," Sifrer said. "But we're going to push them as hard as we can so they finish way ahead of time."

Sifrer said progress on the road will depend to a large extent on the weather and the availability of construction materials.

Last year, the state blamed rainy weather and a shortage of cement for the delays in construction.

At present, Sifrer said, it looks like there will be enough cement, but he warned that the situation could become "tight" later in the year. "As far as the weather goes, if we get a lot of rain, like we did last fall, we could be in real trouble," he said.

As construction progresses, Sifrer said, the state will be closing several streets where they intersect Dundee Road. The roads will be closed for several days to allow the pavement to dry, he said. Residents will be informed of the closings and be given suggested detours several days in advance, he said.

Mount Prospect rail-office complex set?

by MARCIA KRAMER
A representative of a major Chicago development firm said this week "there's a great possibility" plans for a 10-story office building and train station over the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks in downtown Mount Prospect will materialize.

Herbert Jacobson, of Draper and Kramer Inc., was considerably more optimistic than in his assessment April 8, when he characterized plans for the prototype project as "very preliminary" and "at this point, unlikely" to be fulfilled. He indicated this week his earlier comments were deliberately intended to discourage publicity about the proposed plan.

IN AN ABOUT-FACE, Jacobson described in an interview the status of the facility and, while noting that plans still are being formulated, outlined the current thinking on the $8 million project.

Plans have not been formally presented to village officials for approval. Jacobson, however, met with Mayor Robert D. Teichert, Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley and Village Atty. John J. Zimmermann to determine the village's feelings toward the concept. Teichert told The Herald he believes the preliminary plans "jibe very well with the rehabilitation of downtown. My feeling is that it's a very worthwhile pursuit."

As planned, the structure would be located on the air rights above the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks, between Maple and School streets, or approximately two blocks east of the present station. By moving the station, Jacobson said, traffic tieups in downtown Mount Prospect due to trains can be alleviated.

The depot would be part of a 10-story structure including 150,000 square feet of leased office space. The height of the building — which Jacobson indicated is flexible — is higher than the original estimate of six stories.

IN ANOTHER change from the previously described plans, parking facilities may not be included in the building. While Jacobson said parking spaces must be provided for employees who work in the building and for commuters who use the train station, the cost of including parking may be prohibitively high, and the spaces may wind up in a separate structure or on ground level adjacent to the facility.

A study is being conducted by James

P. Foley Associates Inc., a well known Chicago real estate appraising firm, to determine the feasibility of the structure — whether enough businesses could be drawn to it to make it financially worthwhile.

"I think it would be very successful," said Jacobson. "But tenants have to be attracted."

He said Mount Prospect was selected for the structure because "it seems like a good central location." No other communities have been approached by Draper and Kramer, which would build the structure, then manage it, if plans are approved by the village board.

Besides village approval, the plans would have to have the blessings of North Western officials. Jacobson indicated preliminary discussions with railroad officials are encouraging.

No timetable has been set up, but Jacobson said he hopes plans can be formulated within a year. Construction is estimated at 18 months. No drawings of the proposed building are yet available, but the Chicago architectural firm of Solomon Cordwell and Buenz and Associates Inc. has been engaged to prepare sketches.

Mexican fast-food chain hopes to blend right in with Old Town

Statues of sleeping Mexicans, sombreros tilted to protect siesta privacy, may be more at home in Schaumburg's Old Town district than cigar store Indians.

Village officials have been working more than a year to prepare an Old Town ordinance, which would limit architecture in the Schaumburg-Roselle roads area to Midwest, turn-of-the-century style.

But this week they learned Taco Bell, a Mexican menu restaurant chain, hopes to be one of their first new businesses, complete with adobe walls, red tile roof, arched entries and decor variously described as Southern California, Mexican and even Spanish.

MAYOR ROBERT O. Atcher and village trustees convinced Gabriel Callendo, Taco Bell representative, to commission a commercial artist to illustrate what Callendo described as "cosmetic changes" which could make the restaurant more palatable.

While the trustees said they welcome Taco Bell to the village and are pleased to see a plan for food service in that area, they asked for changes in the shape of doorways and a toning down of "garish" special effects that are part of the chain's identification.

Atcher noted the chain's standard sign has "a little bit more of a carnival nature than we intended," and suggested with removal of the sign and "zig-zag blocks" the restaurant "would not look nearly so out of place."

Adobe architecture is among the oldest forms in America, said Atcher, pointing to St. Augustine, Fla., the oldest U. S. city founded in 1593. Taco Bell's architecture is typical of that city, suggested Atcher.

But it isn't Old Town, Schaumburg-style, the mayor asserted.

Spring, summer skating canceled at sports complex

The spring and summer ice skating program at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex has been dropped because of lack of interest.

"I don't see how it can be financially feasible," said facility coordinator Rudy Nelson. He told a park board committee of the whole meeting Tuesday night that the park district would lose at least $5,000 because too few people had indicated an interest in signing up.

The ice hockey program, which was expected to cover most of the cost of keeping the arena open over the summer did not attract enough teams, according to Nelson. Despite a long list of teams and groups he reported contacting, only three teams have put down a deposit and four have indicated an interest in joining. A total of 75 boys indicated they would be interested in the hockey program.

SINCE MOST OF the persons interested were in different divisions and age brackets, Nelson said there would not be enough teams to hold competitive games as originally planned. Because of this, he said, the teams would probably drop out of the program.

Without the hockey program to pick up the major part of the cost of running the arena, the summer and spring ice skating program could not support itself, Nelson added.

Nelson said the low interest could be due to hockey school tuitions that make it financially difficult for youngsters to afford joining teams; summer baseball, vacations and competition from neighboring rinks.

Parents attending the meeting disagreed. They referred to personnel problems, being pushed into paying for semi-private ice skating lessons and the control of the Rolling Meadows Skate Club. Joyce Ford, 3704 E. Frontage, said she saw several youngsters who had formerly attended Rolling Meadows ice skating classes now going to Woodfield.

HER HUSBAND, Brian Ford, said that the park district should run the ice arena, instead of allowing the parents club to run it "for their own selfish interest."

"The situation over there is not attractive to kids any more," he said.

Board members said they were aware of the problems and that changes were being made in the fall and winter programming. "You can't change something in the middle or at the end," board president Roy Neuckranz said.

The park district has been fighting decreasing interest in skating since the year after the arena opened in 1971. The biggest decrease in interest has been in public skating. Subsequently, public skating hours were cut over the last two years and more time has been given over to programmed activities such as learn-to-skate.

The learn-to-skate and learn-to-play hockey classes and the figure skating classes have been increasing in enrollment, according to park district figures. The spring and summer figures are a reversal of this trend. However, park officials indicated that they expected enrollments to pick up during the fall and winter.

Swimming costs will rise here

Daily admission to the Rolling Meadows swimming pool is up 25 cents for students and family passes are up by $5.

Cost increases for pool programs were tentatively approved at a committee of the whole meeting Tuesday night. Final approval is expected at the May 9 board meeting.

Increases are based on the amount of money needed to operate the pool and the number of people expected to use the pool this summer, according to Supt. of Parks and Recreation Steve Person. He said predictions were based on figures from previous years.

The largest cost increase by the park district is expected in chlorine gas which could be double last year's price, according to Person. Chlorine gas, a petroleum product, is used to purify the water. An estimated $625 is budgeted for the chemical. The park board says it must increase the resident fees because of increases in pool chemicals.

ALL LEARN-TO-SWIM classes for residents are $8 this year. Last year they were $5. Junior and Senior life-saving classes will cost $10 for residents this year compared with $7 charged last year. Synchronized swim for residents is $19, double last year's fee.

All individual passes for residents this year are $15. Last year, adults were charged $12 for an individual pass and children were charged $10. Family passes are $30 for residents, up $5 from last year.

Daily admission is $1 for residents. Last year students were charged 75 cents and adults were charged $1. The swim team, open to residents only, is $10 for the first child, $5 for the second child of each family and $2.50 for each additional member of a family. Last year, the charge was $5 for the first member of a family and $2.50 for each additional family member.

The visitors pass, available to pass holders, is $2.50 this year, up 50 cents from last year. Pool rental fees by groups will remain the same — $30 an hour.

A new program, swim sports activities, is being offered this year. It will include swimming games such as water polo. Cost is $5 for residents.

Nonresident costs for all programs, except the swim team which is limited to residents, is double the resident fee.

THE JONAS SALK School PTA picture lady program is a little different from other Dist. 15 schools' — volunteers not only show art works and discuss them, but the students also make their own art works in conjunction with the presentation. Danny Zell, a kindergarten student makes a block print, while another kindergarten student, Mary Whitman, concentrates on creating her own soapy work of art.

$3.9 million city budget gains OK

A budget of almost $4 million to cover city spending for 1974-75 was approved Tuesday by the Rolling Meadows City Council.

The budget, which reflects an almost 14 per cent increase over 1973-74, calls for no tax increase, although a 25 cent tax levy for the city mental health fund and the police pension fund has been included.

However, the levy has been regularly abated each year by the city council and city officials have said it will likely be abated again later this year.

The $3,920,643 package was adopted by an 8-1 vote of the council, with Ald. Kenneth Retzke (5th), as he did last year, casting the lone opposition. Ald. Stephen Eberhard (3rd) was not present for the vote.

Retzke called for a 10 per cent reduction in the total budget, saying figure projections indicate the city will not expend the amount budgeted. His motion to make the city died for lack of a second.

THE BUDGET SHOWS spending will be up in most city departments due to cost increases for services and supplies.

It also calls for the creation of a new department to handle centralized communication among the police, fire and public works departments. Previously each department monitored its own calls. The new department has been allotted some $100,000.

Additional personnel in the police, fire, public works and health department have also been slated for hiring in the new budget. Ald. James Huddleston (4th) Tuesday questioned whether the employment level of the city should be frozen until expected revenue funds are actually obtained, but Mayor Roland J. Meyer assured him department heads have agreed to hold off on new hiring until later in the fiscal year when monies are available.

Budget projections indicate some $3,974,750 will be provided to the city from revenue sources. If the projections hold true on spending, it would mean an approximate $54,107 surplus in the city budget.

SALARIES IN THE new budget indicate police and firemen will be given 13 per cent raises, with most patrolmen and firemen to receive $14,667 yearly. Starting patrolmen and firemen will receive $10,956, police sergeants and fire lieutenants will receive $16,961 while two new sergeants and three new corporals to be named will receive $16,162.

Department heads will receive 13 per cent pay increases. City Mgr. James Watson will receive $22,736, City Sanitarian Donald Schindler will receive $16,162, Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty will receive $21,654, new central communications head Donald Cappelen will receive $11,497, Police Chief Lewis R. Case will receive $21,654 and Supt. of Public Works John Hennessy will receive $20,622.

Elected officials will receive no pay increases.

Most other city employees will be receiving 8 per cent or 13 per cent increases.

Palatine, Barrington may get fire funds

Some $1,500 declined by Rolling Meadows from Palatine Township for the city fire department will likely be divided between the Palatine and Barrington fire districts.

Township Supervisor Howard Olsen said Wednesday distribution of the funds will have to be considered by the township board but the $1,538 total which had been offered to the city probably will be divided between the two other fire departments which have requested the funds.

The funds had been offered to the city as part of a program to distribute $5,000 of the township's revenue sharing funds to fire departments for use in their paramedic programs. The city council Tuesday voted 6-5 to decline the funds, with Mayor Roland J. Meyer casting the deciding vote against the grant.

OLSEN SAID the funds have already been accepted by the Palatine and Barrington fire departments. Distribution of the funds is based on population, with most of the funds therefore offered to Palatine and Rolling Meadows.

The council vote Tuesday came after aldermen and Meyer questioned whether equipment purchased with the funds could be used to service persons living in Rolling Meadows but not within the township limits.

Ald. Thomas Scanlan (1st) read a memorandum from city Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty which said Olsen explained the funds could be used for the paramedic program to serve city residents in Palatine Township. He questioned whether city residents living south of Central Road in Elk Grove Township or in the Meadow Trace complex in Schaumburg Township could then be served by the equipment.

TWO TOWNSHIP auditors, Liston Pennington and Donald Bellm, Tuesday could not contradict the statement, although Olsen denied Wednesday that use of the funds would be restricted. He said (Continued on page 6)

City council wrapup

Property tax funds less than expected?

Property tax funds collected by Rolling Meadows for the city fire department may not amount to the anticipated $400,000 expected by the city. City Treasurer Robert Cole warned the city council Tuesday.

The city's total expected assessed valuation for fiscal 1974 is $100 million, but Cole said the assessed valuation of the fire district area, annexed by the city last year, may not total that high. Cole said the assessed valuation of the fire department in fiscal 1973 did not equal the total city assessed valuation of some $87.5 million.

The fire district boundaries did not cover the entire city, but with the annexation last year the city fire department also annexed all city lands which had not been served by the fire district.

Mayor Roland Meyer said he did not think the discrepancy would exist this year because the Cook County assessor's office should have updated records on the total annexation of the city limits in the fire department.

City Atty. Donald Rose was instructed to check assessment records at the county to determine if the assessed valuation of the fire department area will equal the city's assessed valuation.

City liquor code expanded

The city's alcoholic liquor code was revised Tuesday by the city council to create a fifth class A liquor license. The license is to be issued to Don Moy of Rolling Meadows to open a banquet facility on Algonquin Road and Newport Drive. Moy currently operates a restaurant at 3201 Algonquin Road and has a license to serve liquor at that facility.

Funds OKd for refuse truck body

The expenditure of $7,500 for the purchase of a refuse truck body for the public works department and $2,500 for a second truck for the Civil Defense department were both approved Tuesday by the city council.

Liquor license fees refunded

Fees for a temporary liquor license for St. Colette Church were refunded to the church Tuesday by action of the city council. The license had been required for a parish festival at the church recently.

The council also voted to waive the payment of building permit fees for the Meadows Baptist Church, which is constructing an addition.

Permit and license fees are customarily refunded by the city to non-profit organizations.

New Wilke Road funds OKd

Two resolutions relating to the extension this year of New Wilke Road from Algonquin Road south to Golf Road were passed by the city council Tuesday.

The first resolution authorizes the city to pay $45,000 for the initial cost of the installation of traffic control lights at the Golf-New Wilke intersection. The resolution is based on an agreement with the state, which will refund two-thirds of the cost of the installation to the city.

The second resolution prohibits parking on either New Wilke Road or Golf Road within 250 to 300 feet of the intersection. Violators will be subject to fines of $25 to $500.

The extension of New Wilke Road is expected to begin this summer and be completed by the fall.

Flood light study proposed

Ald. Stephen Eberhard (3rd) Tuesday asked the city to study the possibility of installing flood lights to the rear of property on Pheasant Lane bordering on park district land.

Eberhard said thefts have become a problem in the area, which is unlighted and particularly dark on nights without natural moonlight.

The matter was deferred to committee for study.

Fuel taxes total $13,445

Motor fuel tax funds collected for the city for the month of March totaled $13,445.68.

Fire funds may go to Palatine, Barrington equipment purchased with the funds could be used outside the township because of mutual aid pacts which exist between fire departments.

"I think the thing that everybody should have understood is that we did this to establish the principle that these funds would be used outside the township limits," Olsen said. He said a situation similar to the Rolling Meadows case of overlapping township boundaries also exists in Barrington where the funds have been accepted.

Only a small portion of Palatine Township is served by the Barrington fire district, but equipment purchased with the funds will likely be used in Barrington Township service as well.

"Basically what we are doing is making sure that the equipment will be available to residents of Palatine Township," he said.

THE CITY COUNCIL, in declining the funds, had asked that the funds be used to lower tax rates for city residents, but township officials have said that will not be done because reduced tax rates would mean less revenue sharing allotments to the township.

Ald. Thomas Scanlan (2nd) also said Tuesday that accepting the funds would be "inconsistent" because the council has gone on record as officially opposing township government.

The legal authority of the township's right to distribute the funds has been challenged by Meyer based on an opinion issued by Ill. Atty. Gen. William Scott Scott ruled that townships in Illinois are not empowered to spend the revenues on uses for which it cannot spend its own funds.

Township government in Illinois is restricted by statute in its spending scope. Bellin said Tuesday, however, that former U.S. Treasury Sec. George Schultz has issued an opinion supporting the expenditures.

Memories of Schaumburg Centre

Fred Volkening, 71-year area resident, recalls days when Schaumburg and Roselle roads were hub of farm community

by STIRLING MORITA

Fred Volkening has lived in Schaumburg 71 years, and the mention of Schaumburg Centre brought back memories.

Schaumburg Centre, split by Roselle and Schaumburg roads, once was the social and business hub for the farming community of Schaumburg Township.

Volkening recalled the days of helping to build the first paved road in the township — Roselle Road — and cutting ice on a pond in 20-degree-below-zero weather. He came to the area in 1903 at the age of three.

Some of the buildings still stand, although many have been torn down. Volkening remembered the way they once were.

THE BUILDING housing the Schaumburg Inn on the southeast corner of the intersection was once a hardware store, a soft-drink place, a store with pool table and other machines and later a tavern.

Across the street on the northeast corner, a bank was constructed in the late 1920s. The building now houses the Hoffman Estates Realty Co.

When Schaumburg State Bank (no relation to its modern-day namesake) went out of business, Herman Hattendorf moved his grocery store from down the street to the corner site.

On the southwest corner was a combination general store, saloon and dance hall owned by John Fenze. "The store had everything — women's clothing, food, everything." The store also served as a post office. The area had been in various postal rural routes over the years — Elgin, Palatine and Roselle.

MRS. VOLKENING fondly recalled the box social dances held on the second floor of the store. Volkening said the second floor was used for almost everything, adding that he registered for the Army there in 1918. Once a week a dentist stopped at the store to pull teeth.

Fenze owned a warehouse on the northwest corner, where farm machinery for sale was stored.

The general store burned down, and Volkening was one of the men who attempted to extinguish the blaze. The warehouse was leveled later, and both lots remained empty.

Fred Volkening

Then an Ace Hardware store sprouted where the general store had been.

Next to the general store, Fred and Herman Nerge ran a blacksmith and wagon shop.

In back of the Schaumburg Inn building was an ice-storage shed, where pond ice was stacked and stored in sawdust and hay for summer use. There once was a pond by what is now the Bethel Baptist Church, north of the intersection. Residents went out in freezing weather to cut large chunks of ice and load them onto sleighs.

Between the barn and another building was the firehouse where the hand pumper was stored. The building housed a tavern, which was later to become Leng's.

THERE WAS a special hall in the tavern where all the township meetings were conducted.

Automobiles did not make their way into the area until about 1910. Volkening's family was one of the first three in the area to have a horseless carriage. Use of the horse did not start to die until the 1930s.

Schaumburg Centre had a small railroad line to Roselle, where the main lines were. Materials to pave Roselle Road were transported on the tiny rail line.

Volkening worked on the construction, supplying a team of horses to grade the roadway for about $5 a day. The pavement, when completed, extended from just north of the village of Roselle to Higgins Road.

VOLKENING SAID cars could not be used in winter because of road conditions. The horse remained the surest way of transportation for a while.

A person could tell who was driving down the street by the certain sound made by their team of horses and wagon.

The 74-year-old Volkening, a member of the village police and fire commission, shrugged his shoulders in reaction to the massive growth of the area.

"I've seen it all," he said.

THE STATE AND MADISON of Schaumburg. In the 1920s Schaumburg Centre was the hub of township activity at Roselle and Schaumburg roads, which were gravel and dirt. The view looks south on Roselle.

Correction

The Herald Wednesday correctly reported that just one vote separated Judith Troehler and Stanley Carrier in the official vote tally Tuesday night.

However, the numbers in the vote total were listed incorrectly. The correct official vote totals are 1,346 for Mrs. Troehler and 1,345 for Carrier.

Mrs. Troehler was declared the winner of a three-year term on the board. Carrier has said he will not ask for a recount.

Park board wrapup

New pipes approved for sports complex

The Rolling Meadows Park District board has tentatively approved replacing the 68 heating pipes at the sports complex and putting in a water softener.

Estimated cost for the project in the three-year-old building is about $2,300 from Springsoft Water Conditioning Co. of Bloomington.

Parks and Recreation Supt. Harry Kaczmarek told a committee of the whole meeting Tuesday night that the pipes were slowly springing leaks and that it was cheaper to replace all of them at one time than to replace each separately.

Two of the pipes were replaced several months ago at a cost of $19 per pipe and $150 installation charge. A third pipe recently sprang a leak and hasn't been replaced, he said. "From past experience, the others are going to go soon," he said.

He added that the park district was losing heat in the sports complex because of the clogged pipes.

A new system of pipes is necessary because the old ones, even if cleaned out, would probably spring leaks, Kaczmarek said. The water softener would stop a build-up in the new pipes, giving them a longer life span, he indicated. Kaczmarek also suggested accepting a service contract for the first year, amounting to $20 a month.

The water softener would only be used in the heating system; it will not affect the other water supply.

Contract OK'd for complex

The Rolling Meadows Park District board, during a committee meeting, unofficially agreed to contracting for maintenance at the sports complex.

The money for the contractual maintenance was provided for in the 1974-75 budget and not contested by any board members or residents.

Steve Person, Supt. of Parks and Recreation, said final approval of the program will be sought at the May board meeting. Bids will be solicited afterwards and awarded in June. He said he expects the new maintenance system to go into effect July 1.

Person said a contracted maintenance for the sports complex would be more efficient than the present system because there would be more supervision. Otherwise, he said, the park district would have to hire a full-time supervisor for maintenance.

Annexation plea withdrawn; new proposal asked

A petition to annex to Rolling Meadows and rezone a small parcel of land near Plum Grove School was withdrawn Tuesday in favor of another annexation plan.

Ernest J. Hagenow, 275 W. Emerson Ave., in unincorporated Palatine Township, had sought to annex an approximate one-acre site he owns near Emerson and Smith Street into the city and have the parcel rezoned for multiple family use. A special city zoning commission had recommended that the rezoning petition be denied.

Appearing before the city council Tuesday, Hagenow said he would change his request to only annexation and then request subdivision of the land into three parcels.

City Atty. Donald Rose said a public hearing is not required in a simple annexation procedure, but added that Hagenow's subdivision plan would have to be submitted for review to the city plan commission.

Mayor Roland J. Meyer said the plan would probably be heard by the commission in June and would likely come to the council for approval in mid-June.

Schaumburg seeks to make 'Taco Bell' easy on the eye

Statues of sleeping Mexicans, sombreros tilted to protect siesta privacy, may be more at home in Schaumburg's Old Town district than cigar store Indians.

Village officials have been working more than a year to prepare an Old Town ordinance, which would limit architecture in the Schaumburg-Roselle roads area to Midwest, turn-of-the-century style.

But this week they learned Taco Bell, a Mexican menu restaurant chain, hopes to be one of their first new businesses, complete with adobe walls, red tile roof, arched entries and decor variously described as Southern California, Mexican and even Spanish.

MAYOR ROBERT O. Atcher and village trustees convinced Gabriel Caliendo, Taco Bell representative, to commission a commercial artist to illustrate what Caliendo described as "cosmetic changes" which could make the restaurant more palatable.

While the trustees said they welcome Taco Bell to the village and are pleased to see a plan for food service in that area, they asked for changes in the shape of doorways and a toning down of "garish" special effects that are part of the chain's identification.

Atcher noted the chain's standard sign has "a little bit more of a carnival nature than we intended," and suggested with removal of the sign and "zig-zag blocks" the restaurant "would not look nearly so out of place."

Adobe architecture is among the oldest forms in America, said Atcher, pointing to St. Augustine, Fla., the oldest U. S. city founded in 1593. Taco Bell's architecture is typical of that city, suggested Atcher.

But it isn't Old Town, Schaumburg-style, the mayor asserted.

Salt Creek sewage treatment facility problems ahead?

by STIRLING MORITA

The potential for odor problems rising from the Salt Creek Sewage Treatment Plant in Schaumburg surfaced at the prodding of Des Plaines Ald. Richard Ward (8th).

The Metropolitan Sanitary District held a public hearing Tuesday in Schaumburg for more than $16 million worth of projects for plants in Schaumburg and Hanover Park. Ward posed four questions to MSD experts, but was told the questions were complex and more time would be required to answer them properly. Environmental assessment statements about the projects were distributed at the hearing.

Ward asked if there are any plans to cover a reservoir at Hanover Park like the one at the Clavey Road plant in Highland Park and if there is any history of odor problems in the neighboring residential district around the Hanover Park plant.

Ward also asked if the MSD sets standards for air pollution at plants. The liquid fertilizer farm for the Schaumburg plant was rejected when residents objected to it. Ward asked if the same action is possible at the farm in Hanover Park, which already uses sludge and is expected to continue doing so.

THE ALDERMAN said the answers would help him prepare for hearings on projects proposed for the O'Hare plant in Des Plaines. The city has filed a lawsuit to block construction of the plant on the proposed O'Hare site.

The Salt Creek plant is near Schaumburg and Meacham roads in Schaumburg, and the Hanover Park one near the intersection of Barrington and Irving Park roads. The Salt Creek plant is scheduled to open in about a year.

Projects for the Salt Creek plant call for $960,000 for dewatering equipment, $350,000 for housing of equipment and $30,000 for a pipeline to existing sewers to the plant in Skokie. A $1.1 million pipeline to transport sludge between the Hanover and Salt Creek plants is also proposed.

At the Hanover Park plant, $11 million is slated for construction for doubling the plant's capacity, $2.5 million for a reservoir and liquid fertilizer farming for about 200 acres near the plant and $11,000 for a screening disposal system. Also proposed is installation of new instruments. However, MSD officials have not estimated what the cost will be.

Plans for village fire department to be weighed

Progress in plans to create a village fire department will be discussed Monday at a special meeting of Hoffman Estates joint fire study committee.

Village Trustee Dyrle Rathman, committee chairman, Wednesday said he called the meeting "in order to determine the current status of the project" after learning petitions calling for a referendum to create a district could be in circulation by April 27.

Rathman said details were left to Village Atty. Edward Hofert and Arthur Zimmerman, counsel for the fire protection district.

"I want to find out what the attorneys have decided because I was not aware petitions calling for a referendum to create a district would be out that soon," Rathman said. He noted that target date for creation of a village department is Sept. 1.

THOUGH THE IDEA of a municipal fire department, as opposed to the fire protection district, has been discussed for many years, former Mayor Frederick E. Downey prepared an analysis in March 1972 of the then controversial question of a village department and the current district.

The joint study committee, consisting of village and fire district representatives, was later formed to supervise a feasibility study which concluded that a village fire department would be preferable.

Annexation to the fire district of Winston Knolls, a subdivision now under jurisdiction of Palatine Rural Fire District, is considered a major hurdle to be jumped before the village can establish a fire department.

Rathman said he hopes to determine Monday when district and village boundaries can be aligned for transfer of service.

THE REFERENDUM procedure has been chosen because Winston Knolls is a heavily populated part of Palatine Rural FPD. One per cent of all voters in the area will be required to sign a petition for a referendum for disconnection from the rural district and annexation to Hoffman Estates FPD.

Both disannexation and annexation and eventual transfer to the proposed municipal department will require action by a Cook County Circuit Court judge.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. at the Hoffman Estates Municipal Building, 1200 N. Gannon Dr.

Memories of Schaumburg Centre

Fred Volkening, 71-year area resident, recalls days when Schaumburg and Roselle roads were hub of farm community

by STIRLING MORITA

Fred Volkening has lived in Schaumburg 71 years, and the mention of Schaumburg Centre brought back memories.

Schaumburg Centre, split by Roselle and Schaumburg roads, once was the social and business hub for the farming community of Schaumburg Township.

Volkening recalled the days of helping to build the first paved road in the township — Roselle Road — and cutting ice on a pond in 20-degree-below-zero weather. He came to the area in 1903 at the age of three.

Some of the buildings still stand, although many have been torn down. Volkening remembered the way they once were.

THE BUILDING housing the Schaumburg Inn on the southeast corner of the intersection was once a hardware store, a soft-drink place, a store with pool table and other machines and later a tavern.

Across the street on the northeast corner, a bank was constructed in the late 1920s. The building now houses the Hoffman Estates Realty Co.

When Schaumburg State Bank (no relation to its modern-day namesake) went out of business, Herman Hattendorf moved his grocery store from down the street to the corner site.

On the southwest corner was a combination general store, saloon and dance hall owned by John Fenze. "The store had everything — women's clothing, food, everything," The store also served as a post office. The area had been in various postal rural routes over the years — Elgin, Palatine and Roselle.

MRS. VOLKENING fondly recalled the box social dances held on the second floor of the store. Volkening said the second floor was used for almost everything, adding that he registered for the Army there in 1918. Once a week a dentist stopped at the store to pull teeth.

Fenze owned a warehouse on the northwest corner, where farm machinery for sale was stored.

The general store burned down, and Volkening was one of the men who attempted to extinguish the blaze. The warehouse was leveled later, and both lots remained empty.

Fred Volkening

Then an Ace Hardware store sprouted where the general store had been.

Next to the general store, Fred and Herman Nerge ran a blacksmith and wagon shop.

In back of the Schaumburg Inn building was an ice-storage shed, where pond ice was stacked and stored in sawdust and hay for summer use. There once was a pond by what is now the Bethel Baptist Church, north of the intersection. Residents went out in freezing weather to cut large chunks of ice and load them onto sleighs.

Between the barn and another building was the firehouse where the hand pumper was stored. The building housed a tavern, which was later to become Leng's.

THERE WAS a special hall in the tavern where all the township meetings were conducted.

Automobiles did not make their way into the area until about 1910. Volkening's family was one of the first three in the area to have a horseless carriage. Use of the horse did not start to die until the 1930s.

Schaumburg Centre had a small railroad line to Roselle, where the main lines were. Materials to pave Roselle Road were transported on the tiny rail line.

Volkening worked on the construction, supplying a team of horses to grade the roadway for about $5 a day. The pavement, when completed, extended from just north of the village of Roselle to Higgins Road.

VOLKENING SAID cars could not be used in winter because of road conditions. The horse remained the surest way of transportation for a while.

A person could tell who was driving down the street by the certain sound made by their team of horses and wagon.

The 74-year-old Volkening, a member of the village police and fire commission, shrugged his shoulders in reaction to the massive growth of the area.

"I've seen it all," he said.

THE STATE AND MADISON of Schaumburg. In the 1920s Schaumburg Centre was the hub of township activity at Roselle and Schaumburg roads, which were gravel and dirt. The view looks south on Roselle.

Schaumburg band paper drive Saturday

The Schaumburg High School band will hold a paper drive Saturday in Schaumburg and Hanover Park to raise money for the band's trip to Washington, D. C.

Small amounts of paper may be placed at the curb for pickup Saturday, but organizers of the drive ask that persons with large amounts of paper to donate should contact band director Roland Potter at Schaumburg High School.

She dog paddles with an expert

Things were a little wet for a Hoffman Estates woman and her small dog Wednesday after they waded from her car, which had run into a small pond off Roselle Road near Central Road.

Kathy Richardson, 25, of 198 Jefferson Rd., underwent treatment for exposure late Wednesday afternoon at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. She was taken there by an ambulance from the Schaumburg Fire Department. Her dog apparently suffered minor injuries and was taken by Cook County Sheriff's police to an animal hospital, a Schaumburg firefighter said.

The car she was driving ran off Roselle Road about 3:55 p.m., apparently because of a mechanical malfunction, authorities said.

The car became submerged in about three feet of water, and the pair, apparently under their own power, made their way to dry land, authorities reported.

Ole!

Mexican fast-food chain hopes to blend right in with Old Town

Statues of sleeping Mexicans, sombreros tilted to protect siesta privacy, may be more at home in Schaumburg's Old Town district than cigar store Indians.

Village officials have been working more than a year to prepare an Old Town ordinance, which would limit architecture in the Schaumburg-Roselle roads area to Midwest, turn-of-the-century style.

But this week they learned Taco Bell, a Mexican menu restaurant chain, hopes to be one of their first new businesses, complete with adobe walls, red tile roof, arched entries and decor variously described as Southern California, Mexican and even Spanish.

MAYOR ROBERT O. Atcher and village trustees convinced Gabriel Caliendo, Taco Bell representative, to commission a commercial artist to illustrate what Caliendo described as "cosmetic changes" which could make the restaurant more palatable.

While the trustees said they welcome Taco Bell to the village and are pleased to see a plan for food service in that area, they asked for changes in the shape of doorways and a toning down of "garish" special effects that are part of the chain's identification.

Atcher noted the chain's standard sign has "a little bit more of a carnival nature than we intended," and suggested with removal of the sign and "zig-zag blocks" the restaurant "would not look nearly so out of place."

Adobe architecture is among the oldest forms in America, said Atcher, pointing to St. Augustine, Fla., the oldest U. S. city founded in 1565. Taco Bell's architecture is typical of that city, suggested Atcher.

But it isn't Old Town, Schaumburg-style, the mayor asserted.

Women's volleyball competition Saturday

Six women's volleyball teams, including two from Schaumburg and one from Hoffman Estates, will vie for honors in an invitational meet Saturday sponsored by the Schaumburg Park District.

Other teams include ones from park districts in Hanover Park, Streamwood and Villa Park.

Volleyball action begins at 8:30 a.m. in the gymnasium of Jane Addams Junior High School, 700 S. Springguth Rd., and will continue until about 3 p.m.

Residents are urged to attend. There is no admission fee.

Geese may have to duck out soon...

"Barnyard" domestic ducks and geese that are said to be unwanted gifts left over from many Easters may be evicted from their nests at South Twin Lake in Hoffman Estates.

The building and grounds committee of the park district will recommend to the park board domestic waterfowl be transported to some other place and wild ones be allowed to remain. The committee made the decision Tuesday night under the gaze of citizens disenchanted with the number of waterfowl and their leavings. Also present were residents defending the presence of the ducks and geese. The residents packed the meeting room.

Comr. George Seaver said the park district would investigate where to place the evicted fowl, a procedure to catch them and how to control their population.

The residents will be meeting as a group to form recommendations on duck control and plan for the area. Edwin Huff, 406 Lakeside Plaza, will serve as the liaison between the park district and the group.

SEAVAR SAID MOST of the complaints were about domestic birds and not wild ones.

"We're not in the duck business. We didn't put them there," he said. "The feeling of the park district is being a good neighbor to people who live near the parks."

He added a fowl sanctuary on South Twin Lake sounded like a good idea and such an area might keep the birds away from the houses and children.

Huff, an artist who likes to paint wildlife, told the board and audience it is against federal law to destroy wild fowl.

After the meeting, Huff said he had seen six dead ducks near the lake during the past week. He estimated at one time there may have been as many as 200 birds at the lake, but now there are only about 60.

Savings and loan with tennis courts?

A savings and loan in Schaumburg will give local residents tennis courts along with its banking facilities.

Damen Savings and Loan, planning to build a new facility west of the Black Knight Restaurant on Higgins Road in Hoffman Estates, will use the sunken courts for storm water detention. Water will discharge into creeks through valves, and when the courts are dry they will be available for play.

Damen spokesmen told Schaumburg village officials Tuesday night they anticipate no difficulty obtaining approval from the Chicago Area Metropolitan Sanitary District for the detention without a constantly wet pond.

Local Shelter chapter weighed

The Schaumburg Village Youth Committee is considering establishing a local chapter of Shelter Inc., committee chairman Norbert Wegryn told the village board this week.

Wegryn also told the board the committee hopes to begin circulating a monthly calendar of all activities for youth in the village.

Mayor Robert O. Atcher appointed three committee members to serve on a joint committee with Twinbrook YMCA to oversee activities of a village youth outreach worker. The appointees are Frank Domenico, Chester Brock and Don Mjnen.

Parkway tree contract awarded

Berthold's Nursery and Garden Center, Elk Grove Village, will supply 50 sugar maples, minimum two-inch diameter, for parkways in the Village of Schaumburg. Trustees awarded Berthold's the contract for $49 per tree, or a total of $2,450, lower by $525 than the next lowest of two other bidders.

The board authorized a committee to select a bidder from among five firms for a contract for three 2½-ton pickup trucks with snow plows and salt spreaders. The bids varied widely in price, with the lowest bidder specifying a 12-month delivery date. The trucks are needed for next winter's snow clearance.

Name rep to transit district

Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher this week appointed Bill Nelson to represent the village on the governing board of the Northwest Mass Transportation District, which includes communities between Elgin and Chicago adjoining The Milwaukee Road line.

Fund-raising projects approved

Fund-raising activities for two organizations were authorized by the Schaumburg Village Board this week.

The Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's North Service League will hold a bake-rummage sale May 18, with a May 25 rain date, at Higgins and Golf roads. The Juvenile Diabetes Foundation was granted permission to canvass the village May 5-18 to solicit donations for diabetes research.

The village board declined to review its decision barring Citizens for a Better Environment from soliciting donations in the village, noting its budget does not comply with village ordinance. The local statute requires a minimum of 70 per cent of funds be used for the charity, while 80 per cent of CBE's budget is spent on salaries for workers and administrators, said Mayor Robert O. Atcher.

Bicycle safety violators will face traffic citations

Starting May 1, the Schaumburg Police Department's bicycle safety program goes into its ninth year.

A group of Schaumburg reserve police officers led by Hy Yeargin will start "ticketing" youngsters who violate bicycle safety laws. Failure to stop for a stop sign, failure to signal turns or riding at night on a bicycle not equipped for night riding are among offenses that can end in bicycle court.

When a child is caught violating a law, he is given a citation. Copies of the citation are sent to the parents and bicycle court judge. A hearing is set, and the child appears in bicycle court at the Great Hall, 231 S. Civic Dr.

requested parents cooperate with the program as they have in the past by taking the youngsters to the designated court hearing.

Conroy added, "We are aware many of our adults have taken to bicycle riding, primarily since the energy crisis is upon us, and they, too, disobey stop signs, traffic signals, fail to use hand signals and in some cases their bicycles are not properly equipped for night riding. If the bicycle program is to be a success within any community, the adults who are also bicycle riders must set the example to their children which thereby may prevent a tragedy."

VILLAGE TRUSTEE James Guthrie, an attorney, has donated time during the summer months for the last eight years to preside as judge in the bicycle court. There are no fines levied in the court, but the judge may give lectures or order compositions done by offenders to help youngsters learn more about bicycle safety.

Bicycle hearing days have been scheduled for June 29, July 27, Aug. 31 and Sept. 28.

Children are not required to appear in the court, but Police Chief Martin Conroy

Correction

The Herald Wednesday correctly reported that just one vote separated Judith Troehler and Stanley Carrier in the official vote tally Tuesday night.

However, the numbers in the vote total were listed incorrectly. The correct official vote totals are 1,346 for Mrs. Troehler and 1,345 for Carrier.

Mrs. Troehler was declared the winner of a three-year term on the board. Carrier has said he will not ask for a recount.

Dist. 211 wrapup

September vote looms for schools

by KATHERINE BOYCE

High School Dist. 211 may go to the voters in September to ask for money to build a new high school, remodel Palatine High School and put additions on the other four schools in the district.

Dist. 211 Associate Supt. Bruce Altergott said a referendum would be used to build the district's sixth high school in the Winston Park subdivision of Palatine. The school is scheduled to open in 1976 and ground breaking is planned this spring.

A referendum is necessary because the Illinois Capital Development Board did not approve the district's request for state funds to build the school, said Altergott. The administration was notified of the state's action unofficially on Tuesday, he said, and asked the board of education for the referendum Tuesday night. The board and the administration will study the matter and will probably make a decision sometime next month, said Altergott.

Dist. 211's last referendum for $17 million in bonds passed in 1970 and was used to build Hoffman Estates High School and an addition to the district administration center. $8.65 million left from that referendum will be used for the sixth high school but due to inflation the district does not have enough money left to cover the entire cost. The building is budgeted at $9.5 million.

The Dist. 211 board had hoped to complete the sixth school with state funds through the Illinois Capital Development Board which was created by the state legislature last year to allocate state funds for new school buildings in Illinois. The state board distributes the money on the basis of financial need. According to Altergott, the state said Dist. 211 would not qualify for funds.

The administration has not set a specific dollar amount to be sought in the referendum but has suggested the money also be used to remodel Palatine High School, expand Schaumburg, Fremd and Conant High schools and build swimming pools at all five high schools.

Palatine High School is Dist. 211's oldest school. The oldest part of the school, built in 1929, is in need of major repairs and remodeling.

Schaumburg High School was built in 1970 and planned for 2,500 students. School officials now estimate the actual capacity of the building at about 2,100. Schaumburg was designed and built by the state because Dist. 211 did not have enough bonding power at the time to finance construction. While the school was being built the state made some changes in the building which lowered the capacity.

Dist. 211 officials would like to enlarge the cafeteria, storage and receiving areas and vocational facilities at Schaumburg. They would also like to add an auditorium to Schaumburg, Fremd and Conant High schools.

If a referendum passes it probably would not raise taxes in the district, said Altergott. School officials would probably issue new bonds from the referendum as old bonds approved in 1970 are retired.

Creek reelected president

Robert Creek was reelected president of the High School Dist. 211 board of education by a unanimous vote of board members.

Creek has served as president of the board since 1970. Dist. 211 Business Mgr. James Slater was elected secretary to the board. The board has scheduled its regular meetings for the second and fourth Thursdays of every month at 8 p.m. in the district administration center, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine.

Administrators get 6% hike

The High School Dist. 211 board of education Tuesday approved a six per cent increase in the salary schedule for district administrators.

The increase raises the minimum administrative salary from $15,600 to $16,500 and the maximum salary from $40,900 to $43,350. Administrators are evaluated individually by the board of education and given merit increases in salary. Eight groups of administrators are placed within the salary schedule ranging from the dean of students to the superintendent.

Extra costs on park work to be regained in lawsuit

Any extra costs incurred by the Hoffman Estates Park District to finish uncompleted work by a recently fired contractor will be recouped by suing the contractor, commissioners said Tuesday.

Park district officials have received only one bid from A & J Landscaping Inc., Wauconda, to finish work left undone by Avendale Landscaping, Lombard. The bid was $74,000. However, Board Pres. Fred Weaver said the bid was for manpower time and materials and the figure was a ceiling estimate.

Director Al Binder has been directed to work with A & J Landscaping officials to get a more realistic cost figure and breakdown for completion at 17 park sites.

The park district has about $29,000 left over from the Avendale contracts. About $8,000 of the amount was 10 per cent retainage by the park district. Weaver said any extra costs would be made up after the park district successfully sues Avendale Landscaping for damages.

However, Weaver pointed out that it appears damages could not be sought until the work is done and the extra costs computed.

Weaver noted the $74,000 figure bid by A & J Landscaping is high and the end might be considerably lower.

Fire district vet reappointed to post

Mark Dick, a Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District trustee for nearly 15 years, has been reappointed to the position for another three-year term.

Dick, 408 Basswood St., Hoffman Estates, was sworn in Wednesday night, on his 54th birthday. The Cook County Board of Commissioners reappointed Dick to a term that will end in May, 1977. However, the fire district is in the midst of transferring its services to establish a village fire department, and probably will be eliminated before Dick's term expires.

Dick said the county board "made it easier this year" by sending him a card asking whether he wanted to continue in the trustee position.

Oil polluting lake

Park District officials have asked that residents in the vicinity of North Twin Lake refrain from dumping car oil into nearby storm sewers.

Board Pres. Fred Weaver made the plea after he found a large quantity of oil along the shore of the park lake. He said the oil apparently came through a storm sewer and created about a 150-foot diameter slick at the north part of the lake. The water receded, and the oil was left on the bank, he noted.

"This is the worst kind of pollution you can have," Weaver said.

He added that persons who are dumping petroleum products in the sewers are not deliberately polluting the lake, but rather they don't know where the sewers lead.

Park district crews will work to clean the mess, he said.

Newspaper collection short

Monthly collection of newspaper for recycling fell short of the expected goal in Hoffman Estates the first time around.

Outlook good for 10-story office-rail plan

by MARCIA KRAMER

A representative of a major Chicago development firm said this week "there's a great possibility" plans for a 10-story office building and train station over the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks in downtown Mount Prospect will materialize.

Herbert Jacobson, of Draper and Kramer Inc., was considerably more optimistic than in his assessment April 8, when he characterized plans for the prototype project as "very preliminary" and "at this point, unlikely" to be fulfilled. He indicated this week his earlier comments were deliberately intended to discourage publicity about the proposed plan.

IN AN ABOUT-FACE, Jacobson described in an interview the status of the facility and, while noting that plans still are being formulated, outlined the current thinking on the $8 million project.

Plans have not been formally presented to village officials for approval. Jacobson, however, met with Mayor Robert D. Teichert, Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppey and Village Atty. John J. Zimmermann to determine the village's feelings toward the concept. Teichert told The Herald he believes the preliminary plans "jibe very well with the rehabilitation of downtown. My feeling is that it's a very worthwhile pursuit."

As planned, the structure would be located on the air rights above the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks, between Maple and School streets, or approximately two blocks east of the present station. By moving the station, Jacobson said, traffic tieups in downtown Mount Prospect due to trains can be alleviated.

The depot would be part of a 10-story structure including 150,000 square feet of leased office space. The height of the building — which Jacobson indicated is flexible — is higher than the original estimate of six stories.

IN ANOTHER change from the previously described plans, parking facilities may not be included in the building. While Jacobson said parking spaces must be provided for employees who work in the building and for commuters who use the train station, the cost of including parking may be prohibitively high, and the spaces may wind up in a separate structure or on ground level adjacent to the facility.

A study is being conducted by James P. Foley Associates Inc., a well known Chicago real estate appraising firm, to determine the feasibility of the structure — whether enough businesses could be drawn to it to make it financially worthwhile.

"I think it would be very successful," said Jacobson. "But tenants have to be attracted."

He said Mount Prospect was selected for the structure because "it seems like a good central location." No other communities have been approached by Draper and Kramer, which would build the structure, then manage it, if plans are approved by the village board.

Besides village approval, the plans would have to have the blessings of North Western officials. Jacobson indicated preliminary discussions with railroad officials are encouraging.

No timetable has been set up, but Jacobson said he hopes plans can be formulated within a year. Construction is estimated at 18 months. No drawings of the proposed building are yet available, but the Chicago architectural firm of Solomon Cordwell and Buenz and Associates Inc. has been engaged to prepare sketches.

Correction

The Herald Wednesday correctly reported that just one vote separated Judith Troehler and Stanley Carrier in the official vote tally Tuesday night.

However, the numbers in the vote total were listed incorrectly. The correct official vote totals are 1,346 for Mrs. Troehler and 1,345 for Carrier.

Mrs. Troehler was declared the winner of a three-year term on the board. Carrier has said he will not ask for a recount.

The firm is donating sand for the Mount Prospect Jaycees' annual Operation Sandbox Saturday. An industrial wheelbarrow (three bushels) of the stuff goes for $2. Orders are being taken at 394-0836 and 394-1376. A portion of the proceeds is used to support Jaycee projects.

Conservation department interested

State unit might help buy Rob Roy

by MARCIA KRAMER

The Illinois Department of Conservation "will seriously consider making a substantial contribution" if local groups can come up with at least half the funds needed to buy the Rob Roy Golf Course.

In a letter addressed to Mount Prospect Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppey, Conservation director Anthony T. Dean indicated federal land and water conservation funds may be available toward purchase of the 180-acre course and adjoining 20-acre driving range north of the village in unincorporated Wheeling Township.

While Dean acknowledged that grants are limited and that they are specifically not to be used for purchase of a golf course, he raised the possibility that an exception could be made in the case of Rob Roy.

"In view of the extent to which local initiative has been displayed in regard to this project, it is possible that regardless of whether or not department policy is modified to accept golf course acquisition and development as acceptable projects (to receive grants), an exception may be made in the case of the Rob Roy Golf Course," he stated.

DEAN POINTED OUT that because it is not currently the policy of the conservation department to provide funds for golf courses, concurrence on issuing a grant would be needed from the U. S. Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

Noting that the cost of the golf course would be around $8 to $9 million, he said: "If project sponsor(s) can provide a majority of the funds required for acquisition of this property, the Department of Conservation will seriously consider making a substantial contribution to the effort through the federal land and water conservation fund."

The letter represents the first solid indication that a federal grant may be available toward purchase of the golf course. Previous correspondence was hopeful that the course could be retained as open space but offered little encouragement that funds could be provided through federal or state programs.

Contents of the Dean letter were made public Wednesday by Village Trustee Richard N. Hendricks, who has pushed for obtaining a grant after other board members had virtually given up hope.

THE LETTER IS dated April 11, but according to Hendricks, has not been made available to village board members by Eppey. The village manager, in a robust verbal exchange with Hendricks during the April 2 village board meeting, referred to efforts to secure a grant as "an exercise in futility and a waste of time."

The letter ironically comes at a time when the village appears to be on the brink of abandoning plans to conduct a referendum on whether to purchase the golf course in order to block multifamily development.

Kenroy Inc., Skokie, has proposed building 4,500 apartment and condominium units on the golf course, which is east of Wheeling Road between Camp McDonald Road and Euclid Avenue.

The village at first looked into the feasibility of obtaining a grant to buy the course, then initiated plans for a referendum. Mayor Robert D. Teichert, in a surprise move Monday, suggested the village board squelch the referendum plans primarily because he felt village funds could be better spent on projects in (Continued on page 5)

Library officials not sure if school is suitable site

Mount Prospect Public Library officials apparently are uncertain whether the Central School building, at the southeast corner of Central Road and Main Street, would be a suitable home for a library.

The only library official that could be reached for comment Wednesday, board member John Gladstone, indicated that no determination has been made on whether the existing school building could be converted into a library.

Several months ago, members of the library staff were of the opinion the building would not be suitable.

The use of the Central School site for a library became a real possibility Tuesday night when the village board authorized Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppey to enter into negotiations with the owners on behalf of the library. The property is owned by Al Magnus, owner of the Magnus Farm, 301 E. Central Rd., Arlington Heights, and his estranged wife. The village has received an appraisal of $675,000 for the building and property.

IF THE EXISTING building were razed, the property would be large enough to hold the estimated 40,000 square feet of building space and accompanying parking which library officials say they would need to adequately serve the village.

This is triple the size of the current library at 14 E. Busse Ave.

The library board has estimated it would need $2.15 million for a new library. It is unknown, however, whether the funds for a new building or the purchase of the Magnus property would come from as both library and village officials have said they would like to avoid a referendum if possible.

Three of the four village trustees contacted by The Herald Tuesday — George B. Anderson, E.F. Richardson and Kenneth V. Scholten — concurred with the mayor, while Hendricks dissented. Trustee O. T. Gustus, who was unavailable for comment Tuesday, said Wednesday he believes the village should not hold a referendum Gustus suggested as a compromise that Kenroy build, for example, 2,500 units toward the middle of the property, and that the firm sell back half of the site, around the perimeter, to the McDonald family, which currently owns the entire tract, to use as an 18-hole golf course. Trustee Patrick J. Link has been unavailable for comment.

A CHECK OF SOME local residents who opposed the Kenroy request to annex and rezone, indicated some uncertainty over what to do in light of the village board's new stance.

Ron Burton, chairman of the Northwest Suburban Council of Associations, an umbrella group that incorporates eight homeowners groups in the Rob Roy vicinity, said he was "surprised" by the move. "Unless the area park districts are able to pool their resources more convincingly than they have done so far I'm not optimistic about the future of the golf course."

Marie L. Caylor, secretary and former chairman of the group, said she has observed development of a "political emotionalism" over the Rob Roy question which she said could split the village.

She was referring to a letter recently sent by Edward B. Rhea, president of the Mount Shire Homeowners Assn. on the south side of the village, to 75 residents who had expressed interest in joining an "Active Citizens Assn.," last fall, to drum up opposition to a referendum to buy the golf course.

Rhea listed four reasons: "From a philosophical standpoint, I think it would be a foolish use of public funds. If we can afford a $6 to $8 million bond issue, there are other, much more worthy projects. From a practical standpoint, what would we do with it. We already have a large park and the park district has an excellent golf course. From a pragmatic standpoint, if the village is going to spend $6 to $8 million on land in order to preserve open space, let's spread it around a little. Let's buy up parcels of land all over the village instead of just on the north side. From a selfish standpoint, I have no interest in seeing my village taxes increased by some 40 per cent in order to keep apartments out of the north side of the village."

RHEA INDICATED he has received about a dozen replies, all supporting his position.

Jack Gulligan, president of the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn., said his group's position "has not changed" in light of Teichert's stance. "We still think the area ought to be preserved as open space." He indicated Rob Roy would be discussed by the PHIA Prospect Heights borders the golf course on the north and west, and along a narrow strip on the east.

Village planner Seto gives notice

Mount Prospect Village Planner Jack W. Seto has resigned, effective May 3, to become a senior planner with the Village of Oak Park.

Seto, 47, was hired last June 18 under the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development's urban technical services program, at $12,000 annually.

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said Wednesday the village will not hire a full-time planner to succeed Seto, but will engage outside planning consultants when needed. Having a full-time planner for the first time "was an experiment that didn't work out," he said.

THE VILLAGE planning commission will meet May 22 with two planning firms, Barton-Aschman Associates, Chicago, and Harland, Bartholomew and Associates, Northbrook, and will hire one as a consultant to the village.

"I feel that this way we can get all the services a one-man department couldn't give us," Eppley said.

Seto had planning experience with the city and county of San Francisco, the City of San Rafael, New York City Board of Education and New York City Housing and Economic Development Administration.

He holds a master of urban planning degree from New York University and a bachelor of arts degree from the University of California.

Seto's primary duties in Mount Prospect included helping the planning commission to develop a new master plan for the village and to initiate plans to redevelop the central business district. The master plan is being drawn up and the planning commission has set up a subcommittee to develop a downtown plan.

Residents move against condo plan

Dunne postponed entering the consent decree.

The judge instead set a May 7 deadline for the village and Brickman to submit responses to the request for intervention, and a May 14 deadline for the homeowners to file a counter-response. Oral arguments on the motion have been set for 9:30 a.m. May 21 in the judge's Civic Center courtroom.

Generally, motions to intervene in a case are routinely granted if they are lodged shortly after the case is filed. However, Donald Kreger, attorney for the 16 homeowners, said his clients were under the impression for nine months that the village would defend their interests and had no reason to intervene on their own until after the village board compromised with Brickman earlier this month.

The homeowners oppose the condominium plans for numerous reasons, mainly because they say it is not consistent with the surrounding neighborhood, and could cause flooding problems.

Homeowners who filed the motion to intervene are: Robert Barrett, 1516 Park Dr.; Marilyn A. Fletcher, 1511 Mura Ln.; Albert Van Maren, Thomas A. Helms, 1501 Park Dr.; Janet M. Grimm, 1508 Mura Ln.; Bernard L. Paige, 1509 Mura Ln.; Kenneth Hanke, 1514 Park Dr.; Donald Edwards, 1607 Park Dr.; Elaine Madio, 1601 Park Dr.; Nancy Holland, 1519 Park Dr.; Frederick W. Schierhorn, 1517 Park Dr.; Linda Phillips, 1515 Park Dr.; Helene M. Jens, 1515 Mura Ln.; Donald R. Cripps, 1519 Mura Ln.; Ronald E. Wayer, 1513 Mura Ln.; and Jerome Serek, 1603 Park Dr.

ANOTHER RESIDENT, Michael H. Minton, of 1207 W. Lounquist Blvd., Tuesday night asked village trustees to provide written explanations of their vote on the Brickman consent decree. "We voted you in and support you 100 per cent in any effort you make on behalf of the village," he said. "We would just like to know as concerned residents your reasons for doing things."

Village Atty. John J. Zimmermann responded that because the consent decree had not been signed as yet by Dunne, "we are still in a lawsuit situation," and the trustees could not comment while the case is pending.

Minton was an unsuccessful mayoral candidate last year, defeated by Teichert, who cast the deciding vote in the Brickman case.

Salaries effective despite grumblings

Some police unhappy with wage hike

by TOM VON MALDER

Less than half of the Mount Prospect police patrolmen voted to accept the salary package negotiated with the village, a package that covers all patrolmen.

In that settlement, patrolmen gained an 8.5 per cent wage hike, increased longevity payments, larger clothing allowances and other fringe benefits. The contract was negotiated between village representatives and members of the local Combined Counties Police Assn. (CCPA) chapter.

The village board ratified the agreement Tuesday night and the patrolmen approved it during roll calls early this week. Twenty policemen signed the agreement out of the total 43 patrolmen. The 20 signees is sufficient, however, because it is slightly more than half of the union's 37 members.

Several policemen are apparently unhappy with the agreement, particularly because of the wage increase. Reportedly, the policemen initially were asking for a 13 per cent pay hike. (The 8.5 per cent increase the policemen did receive was the same increase given to almost all village employees.)

A point-by-point comparison of what policemen got and what they asked for shows:

- A salary increase of 8.5 per cent rather than the "substantial increase" — reportedly 13 per cent — they had asked for.

- An increase of $100 per category in longevity pay. Instead of $100 to $400, the range is now $200 after five years, $300 after 10 years, $400 after 15 years and $500 after 20 years. The policemen had wanted longevity based on a salary percentage which would have increased 2.5 per cent every four years.

- An increase in the clothing allowance of $50 to $250 rather than the requested $100 increase.

- Policemen were given an additional personal day, bringing the total to two a year. The policemen had asked that the personal days, if unused, be accumulated with unused sick days. This was not granted by the village.

Car wash nets $30 for Explorer Scouts

The Mount Prospect Police Department's Explorer Scout Troop raised $30.50 during Saturday's car wash at Prospect High School. According to one of the group's counselors, the event went well and the Scouts had "all they could handle."

5 interviewed for police chief

The five candidates for Mount Prospect police chief were interviewed Wednesday by Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley at his house.

Lt. John Savage, Lt. John Homola, Sgt. Ralph Doney, Sgt. Joseph Bopp and Sgt. Patrick Hallihan, will report later this month for a five-hour battery of tests in Elmhurst. Each seeks to replace Chief Bert Giddens, who is resigning May 17 for health reasons.

Eppley has said he hopes to name the new chief designate by May 10 at the latest so that the new chief will be able to work with Giddens for awhile. Eppley said this would lead to a smoother transfer.

- Policemen will now be able to accumulate more than 60 sick days (which would be important in cases of prolonged illness) but they will still receive half salary, instead of the requested full salary, for sick days over 60 not accumulated.

- Patrolmen who work as acting sergeants will receive sergeant's pay for the time they act as supervisors.

- Policemen will be able to take their vacations at three different times, if wished, rather than the current two times.

- Days off will be granted with pay in the cases of the death of a mother-in-law or father-in-law.

In the matter of the grievance procedure, the village will now permit policemen's complaints to be brought to the village manager. Previously, complaints would stop with the police chief. The union had fought this because several alleged complaints in recent months have

Charge suspect attacked cop

A Mount Prospect man was charged with aggravated assault after he allegedly attacked an Arlington Heights policeman in the station Tuesday night.

According to police, Bruce Lindberg, 21, of 803 S. See-Gwun, Mount Prospect, was stopped by Arlington Heights detective Otto Schuster and Ronald Philips when they reportedly observed his car speeding and weaving on North Arlington Heights Road late Tuesday night.

When the policemen stopped Lindberg they allegedly found he had no driver's license, no tail lights on the car, and improper license plates.

At the police station, Lindberg reportedly threatened Schuster repeatedly and tried to attack the policeman when he was being placed in the cell. Schuster was not injured.

Lindberg was charged with aggravated assault, speeding, having no driver's license, and driving a car with no tail lights and improper registration.

He was released Wednesday morning on $1,000 bond pending a May 17 appearance in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

Faulty sewer turns homeowners' dream to nightmare

By KURT BAER

"It's our first house... It was supposed to be our starter house and now it's got us in a bind."

Louis Frederick, his wife and two children took the big step when they purchased the modest red frame house at 722 N. Pine St., Arlington Heights. Too late, they learned the Romans' warning: Caveat Emptor — "let the buyer beware."

The Fredericks learned soon after they moved in last May that their house was not connected to the village sewage system. And every time it rains, they are reminded of it.

Allen Sander, village engineer, described the Fredericks' situation in short order. "The hookup he has is unacceptable to the village system... their line goes into an old field drain tile that was probably in there before the sewer was put in on Pine Street."

SANDER SAID HE has no idea how old the field drain system is, but he said it most likely predates the rest of the neighborhood's sewers that were installed in the 1920s.

According to village reports, the line and tile system has broken down through age, resulting in water and sewage backing into the basement everytime it rains.

Mrs. Fredericks said they first noticed a problem when they discovered sewage in the back yard.

"We called the village health department and they told us we had an illegal sump pump ejector in the basement that was pumping it into the yard. The kids from the neighborhood used to play in that water and muck," she said with more than a trace of revulsion.

Bill Mack, village health inspector, said an inspection was made and the Fredericks were required to disconnect the sump pump. The inspection also discovered roots clogging the sewer, further hindering the flow away from their house, he said.

THIS LATTER problem was alleviated, Mack said, by village giving the homeowners root-clearing chemicals to open the line.

Sander's solution to the problem is to require the Fredericks to hook into the village system at their own expense.

"They've called us and the county and MSD (Metropolitan Sanitary District). Everybody recognizes that they've got a problem, but they would have to be the one to pay for it," he said.

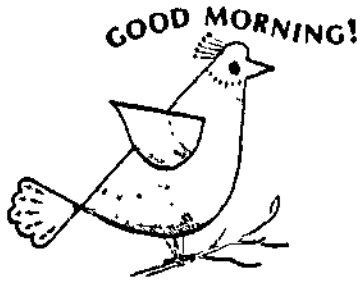

He then quoted from the village report: "... the responsibility for correcting the situation lies with the owners."

MRS. Frederick commented, "They all feel it's not their fault — the county, the village, the real estate company, all of them. Our foundation is falling down. We feel we got the royal shaft."

The Fredericks have estimates for connecting their house directly with the village sewer. The price is $2,700 and according to them, it is more than their

Plan to spend less

Money situation tight; parks face skin-'n'-bones budget

The Arlington Heights Park District is faced this year with preparing a bare bones budget that has little room for frills or free activities.

According to tentative figures presented by the park administrators, the 1974-75 budget will be less than the current budget, despite a rate of inflation last year of more than 10 per cent.

The 1973-74 budget called for expenditures of almost $1.44 million, while the proposed budget estimates next year's expenditures at $1.42 million.

The budget has yet to be approved by the park commissioners, and park administrators say the exact figures for the new budget will not be ready for about a week.

BIG CUTS CAME in the field of building maintenance and supplies. Angelo Capulli, park superintendent, originally pared his purchase requests to $25,000 for "essential items," but will trim it further to $17,000.

About half of this money will go toward maintaining Recreation Park. Thomas Thornton, park district director, said the funds would go just to keep the old structure operational. He also questioned the wisdom of retaining the field-house saying it might be more economical to tear the building down and build a new one.

Ronald Dodd, recreation superintendent, termed it "... a balancing-act operation."

Funding for asphalt paving construction was eliminated from the budget.

MAJOR CUTS CAME with the elimination of summer activities directors, who in past years provided no-cost activities for children "dropping by" the parks. The load will be picked up somewhat by swimming center directors.

Salaries for summer life guards is another item that it is hoped will be kept down. Swimming center directors will be charged with notifying help on days when the weather does not permit swimming.

The administrators said the life guards' wages can be lowered by having them on duty only when necessary.

The use of the park district bus will be curtailed because of mounting fuel costs.

Other items, such as telephone rates and postage bills, will rise because they are beyond the control of the district.

THE MAJORITY OF the parks' income is derived from property tax revenues, totaling slightly more than $1 million. The next largest source will be revenues from the district swimming pools, contributing about $73,000.

Other funds will come from activity fees charged from district classes, lessons and gymnasium-use fees.

The financial future for the district is less than bright, according to the administration. They point out that while assessed evaluation of the district has increased, it has been matched by a falling tax rate keeping the income from property taxes "fairly stagnant" since 1959.

The administration further said revenues from recreation fees have "topped off" as the facilities reach a point of saturation usage.

Park board OKs raises for employees

The Arlington Heights Park District board has approved an 8 per cent cost-of-living salary increase for district employees.

The increase will take effect May 1.

The across-the-board increase was asked by park director Thomas Thornton to meet spiraling prices and to keep district salaries in line with recent raises granted to village employees. District administrators, Thornton, Ronald Dodd and Angelo Capulli, were exempted from the raise, he said.

Individual employees will be considered for merit raises by Nov. 1, Thornton said.

The raises drew opposition from park vice president Kay Muller. She said the district was not in a financial position to grant the raises.

She said last week a 5 per cent raise, as was granted last year, would have been more acceptable to her. She added raises above that level should be considered as merit increases.

Capulli, superintendent of parks, said an employee not worth a basic cost-of-living increase was not worth retaining. He said earlier the district would be ripe for union organizers if the district did not match salary increases with the rising cost-of-living.

THE HERSEY HIGH school mime troupe, including George Pozlinski and Andy Libman, will present "Where Were You When the Sound Went Off" Friday at the high school. Curtain time for the mime show is 8:13 p.m. and the admission is $1.

Charge man with attack on a policeman

A Mount Prospect man was charged with aggravated assault after he allegedly attacked an Arlington Heights policeman in the station Tuesday night.

According to police, Bruce Lindberg, 21, of 803 S. See-Gwon, Mount Prospect, was stopped by Arlington Heights detectives Otto Schuster and Ronald Phillips when they reportedly observed his car speeding and weaving on North Arlington Heights Road late Tuesday night.

When the policemen stopped Lindberg they allegedly found he had no driver's license, no tail lights on the car, and improper license plates.

At the police station, Lindberg reportedly threatened Schuster repeatedly and tried to attack the policeman when he was being placed in the cell. Schuster was not injured.

Lindberg was charged with aggravated assault, speeding, having no driver's license, and driving a car with no tail lights and improper registration.

He was released Wednesday morning on $1,000 bond pending a May 17 appearance in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

There'll be no free games at Pit 'n' Pub

Arlington Heights attorney Tom Hanlon says he has dropped his effort to change an Arlington Heights ordinance that bans pinball machines that reward players with free games.

Hanlon, who represents Pit 'n' Pub Restaurant, 1711 E. Rand Rd., said the recent 2-1 vote of the legal committee not to change the ordinance, was a strong indication of the village board's policy on the matter.

Pit 'n' Pub now has pinball machines which are legal because they do not offer free games to players.

A MEMBERSHIP DRIVE to reactivate the Friends of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library Group began this week. Mrs. Elaine Hruby, past president, and Frank Dempsey, executive librarian, discuss plans for promoting the group, which has been inactive for several years.

Fuel oil spill at Lake Briarwood cleaned up

State conservation officials reportedly have cleared Lake Briarwood of any immediate danger to wildlife after a weekend oil spill into the 20-acre private lake.

Mike Dvorak, 2912 Briarwood Dr. West, met with conservation officers Tuesday night to determine if the oil posed a threat to fish or ducks at the lake.

The oil spilled into a Higgins Creek storm sewer over the weekend when a furnace fuel pump stuck at the Boyer Rosene Moving and Storage Co. warehouse at Algonquin Road and Clearbrook Drive.

Cleanup crews Wednesday were continuing to vacuum the oil out of the creek and the storm sewers, which have been dammed to keep the oil out of the lake.

Dvorak said that while the conservation officer determined the lake did not seriously threaten fish life Wednesday, he recommended continued surveillance to keep more oil from entering the lake.

IT'S STILL TWO LANES but at least it's new for drivers on the unfinished portion of Dundee Road between Elmhurst and Buffalo Grove roads. State officials hope to have traffic riding on new pavement between the entire widening project, Elmhurst Road to Ill. Rte. 53, by June 15.

Completion expected by fall

Dundee Rd. work under way again

by JOE FRANZ

Construction of Dundee Road was in full swing Wednesday and state officials said if the nice weather hangs on, construction should be completed by fall.

Albert Sifrer, project engineer for the Illinois Division of Highways, said workers have finished tearing out the old westbound pavement and have begun final grading. After grading is completed, the sub-base will be installed, followed by paving.

The project consists of widening the road to four lanes between Elmhurst Road and Ill. Rte. 53 through Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights.

BEFORE CONSTRUCTION was shut down for the winter, workmen have paved two lanes between Elmhurst Road west about 300 feet past Buffalo Grove Road.

Sifrer said the two lanes should be completed to Rte. 53 by June 15. At that time, traffic will shift completely from the two battered lanes that now exist to the new pavement. State officials have said the new pavement will make traveling on the road much safer.

Sifrer also said the realignments of Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove roads will be connected to Dundee Road once that initial two-lane job is finished.

Both roads were realigned last summer to meet extensions north of Dundee Road. Officials said the realignments will eliminate congestion and may possibly reduce accidents around Dundee Road.

The realignments originally were not going to be hooked up until the entire project was finished, but Buffalo Grove officials requested the work be done when two lanes are finished.

IN ADDITION TO the realignments, Sifrer said the 900-foot portion of Arlington Heights Road north of Dundee will be repaired after June 15. The road has been in a state of disrepair for more than a year now, and residents have complained about the hazardous driving conditions and damage sustained by their cars.

Sifrer said completion of all four lanes on Dundee Road is scheduled for Oct. 1. The project, he said, is the number one road priority in the northern region of Illinois.

State officials and Greco Contractors, the firm doing the work, have been severely criticized by residents, merchants and village officials because construction was not completed last year. Residents have complained that the road is dangerous and an inconvenience and merchants claim its condition has hurt business.

Under the state contract, Greco has about 100 working days to complete the project before a fine is assessed against them, Sifrer said. Working days are defined as days when weather and other factors will permit construction.

"IF YOU COUNT their working days, they probably would have until clear through December to complete the project," Sifrer said. "But we're going to push them as hard as we can so they finish way ahead of time."

Sifrer said progress on the road will depend to a large extent on the weather and the availability of construction material. Last year, the state blamed rainy weather and a shortage of cement for the delays in construction.

At present, Sifrer said, it looks like there will be enough cement, but he warned that the situation could become "tight" later in the year. "As far as the weather goes, if we get a lot of rain, like we did last fall, we could be in real trouble," he said.

As construction progresses, Sifrer said, the state will be closing several streets where they intersect Dundee Road. The roads will be closed for several days to allow the pavement to dry, he said. Residents will be informed of the closings and be given suggested detours several days in advance, he said.

Homeowners' savings down the drain?

They have the listing sheet from the realtor describing the house. The space for sewers has an "x" in the proper space.

"Sure we have a sewer. It just doesn't go anywhere. You expect your sewer will be hooked up like everyone else in the neighborhood, just like the water and lights."

The Fredericks requested the Illinois Department of Registration and Education look into the possibility of fraud or misrepresentation on the part of the real estate salesman. A hearing found none, but did not rule out a civil suit brought by the Fredericks.

HOWEVER, MRS. Frederick said they don't have the money to hire a lawyer and their financial situation is such that they can't retain one on a contingency basis.

"We asked if there was any flooding problem when we looked at the house. The old owners said they had flooded during a big rain in August (1972). It backs up and floods all the time. Not when it drizzles, but when it rains and especially if there's snow on the ground," she said.

She said they had thought of taking the previous owners to court, but, "They're like us, a young couple without much money. So we get a lien on them, we still wouldn't get anything for a long time."

Other than the danger to the basement, she said they have had to replace the freezer and clothes drier because of water damage.

A FOUR-FOOT HIGH water mark is visible through a fresh coat of paint, applied, she said, by the previous owners. Since they took possession 11 months ago they have had water and sewage a foot deep in the basement on several occasions.

"What can we do? People tell us to sell, but how can we? We know the house doesn't really have a sewer and we could get sued if anybody bought it. I don't know what we can do."

She said of their plight, "We're just little people pushed up against a wall."

The village has given them until summer to correct their sewer problems or the house will be declared unfit for habitation, she said.

"In plain English, I am just fed up," she said.

Outlook good for 10-story office-train station complex

by MARCIA KRAMER

A representative of a major Chicago development firm said this week "there's a great possibility" plans for a 10-story office building and train station over the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks in downtown Mount Prospect will materialize.

Herbert Jacobson, of Draper and Kramer Inc., was considerably more optimistic than in his assessment April 8, when he characterized plans for the prototype project as "very preliminary" and "at this point, unlikely" to be fulfilled. He indicated this week his earlier comments were deliberately intended to discourage publicity about the proposed plan.

IN AN ABOUT-FACE, Jacobson described in an interview the status of the facility and, while noting that plans still are being formulated, outlined the current thinking on the $3 million project.

Plans have not been formally presented to village officials for approval. Jacobson, however, met with Mayor Robert D. Teichert, Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley and Village Atty. John J. Zimmermann to determine the village's feelings toward the concept. Teichert told

The Herald he believes the preliminary plans "jibe very well with the rehabilitation of downtown. My feeling is that it's a very worthwhile pursuit."

As planned, the structure would be located on the air rights above the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks, between Maple and School streets, or approximately two blocks east of the present station. By moving the station, Jacobson said, traffic tieups in downtown Mount Prospect due to trains can be alleviated.

The depot would be part of a 10-story structure including 150,000 square feet of leased office space. The height of the building — which Jacobson indicated is flexible — is higher than the original estimate of six stories.

IN ANOTHER change from the previously described plans, parking facilities may not be included in the building. While Jacobson said parking spaces must be provided for employees who work in the building and for commuters who use the train station, the cost of including parking may be prohibitively high, and the spaces may wind up in a separate structure or on ground level adjacent to the facility.

A study is being conducted by James

P. Foley Associates Inc., a well known Chicago real estate appraising firm, to determine the feasibility of the structure — whether enough businesses could be drawn to it to make it financially worthwhile.

"I think it would be very successful," said Jacobson. "But tenants have to be attracted."

He said Mount Prospect was selected for the structure because "it seems like a good central location." No other communities have been approached by Draper and Kramer, which would build the structure, then manage it, if plans are approved by the village board.

Besides village approval, the plans would have to have the blessings of North Western officials. Jacobson indicated preliminary discussions with railroad officials are encouraging.

No timetable has been set up, but Jacobson said he hopes plans can be formulated within a year. Construction is estimated at 18 months. No drawings of the proposed building are yet available, but the Chicago architectural firm of Solomon Cordwell and Buenz and Associates Inc. has been engaged to prepare sketches.
